TO CALL INDUSTRIAL COUNCIL

Amendments to Treaty Doomed to Defeat

TO QUALIFY THE LEAGUE

Reservations Seem Certain.

President Starts Tour Seeking to Bring Pressure to Prevent Change.

Mild Reservationists Refuse to go Further in Qualifying the Pact.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Aug. 31.—The proposed direct amendments to the peace treaty, voted by the Foreign Relations Committee, appear doomed to defeat in the Senate, while there is every prospect that reservations qualifying the obligations of the United States in the League of Nations will be adopted.

This is the situation as it appears on the eve of the departure of the President on his tour of the country seeking to bring public pressure to bear on the Senate to ratify the treaty and the league covenant without any modifications.

The real fight will come on the reservations and the important question is what bearing the President's speaking tour will have on the Senate's stand toward ratification without qualifying amendments or interpretive reservations.

DUE TO RESERVATIONISTS.

The impending defeat of the amendments transferring Shantung to China, equalizing the votes of the United States and Great Britain in the league and relieving the United States from the processes of enforcing the treaty will be due to the opposition of a small group of Republicans favoring "mild" reservations, but unwilling to go further in the direction of qualifying the pact.

There was a conference of the leaders of the mild reservationists last night, at which opposition to all of the proposed amendments was decided upon. At this conference were Senators McNary of Oregon, McCumber of North Dakota, Colt of Rhode Island, Nelson and Kellogg of Minnesota.

After the conference one of these Senators asserted that the Shantung amendment would be beaten by from seven to ten Republicans, who will line up with the Democrats, and that from eighteen to twenty-two Republicans would refuse to vote for the other amendments.

PLAN FOR BIG FIGHT.

Republican leaders are prepared for the defeat of the amendments and are shaping their plans to stage the big fight on the reservations.

Senator Johnson of California and other Republican opponents of the treaty will take the stump this week also, so that both sides will be fighting for the verdict of the American people.

The question of sending an army to Asia Minor to save the Armenians from the Turks and accepting a mandate to govern Armenia and perhaps considerable additional territory is already at hand. By the time the President returns to Washington he may know whether his followers may vote aye on these propositions, or merely want the issue without its obligations.

READY FOR TOUR.

All arrangements are complete for the President's tour of the country, according to Assistant Secretary Rudolph Forster, whose experience in routing Presidents "around the circle" was gained under McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. Forster maps the itinerary, organizes the expedition, and stays at home to run the executive office.

President Wilson will follow his usual custom of taking Mrs. Wilson with him, and the Pacific Coast is almost as much interested in seeing her as it is in getting sight of the President. While Governor of New Jersey President Wilson campaigned on the Coast during 1912, but his wife is known here only through the medium of the newspapers and the motion pictures.

MEMBERS OF PARTY.

Other members of the party will be Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician; Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty, who will be generalissimo of the train; Charles Swem, Gilbert Close and Warren Johnson of the stenographic staff of the White House, and Howard W. Smithers, chief of the telegraphic

THIRD TERM IS LOOMING

Tour Expected to Develop It.

Democrats Show Unwillingness for Wilson to Surrender Leadership.

See Condition Where He Must Accept Nomination to Carry on Policies.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. — Talk about President Wilson as a possible third-term candidate is a topic of lively interest in Washington today as a result of his forthcoming tour of the West, beginning next Wednesday. The trip is likely to have a far-reaching effect on the next Presidential campaign, the first primaries of which are only seven months distant. In all probability it will develop something definite as to the Democratic programme.

In consequence, all the potential possibilities for the Democratic nomination have their ears and eyes wide open for the first inkling as to the President's intentions. They believe that somehow, somewhere along the line, Mr. Wilson will let his political thoughts be known so that the ball can be set rolling in preparation for the primaries. They are getting anxious over the failure to get started with the preliminary organization work in their respective booms.

LEADERS LOOK TO HIM.

As the matter drags on, certain of the Democratic leaders are becoming more and more convinced that Mr. Wilson will be in the running for a third term. And, looking into the future, they believe that the cards are shuffled to produce just that result — the natural development of a situation, they think, where a considerable portion of the Democratic party, looking upon Mr. Wilson as the only leader in all international and domestic issues, will not be willing to see him surrender that leadership, at least, to some other Democrat. In other words, they see a condition arising where the strict Wilson followers will insist that the President accept renomination and make the fight for re-election to make sure the carrying forward of his policies.

If Mr. Wilson is adverse to this, certainly he has not as yet shown signs of it. And on top of that, he does not appear to be putting forward anybody as his successor in the work he has undertaken and is wrapped up in, heart and soul. So far as can be learned, and this statement is based on a most complete and careful inquiry, Mr. Wilson never has discussed with anybody the political future so far as the Presidency is concerned.

TWO DAYS IN LOS ANGELES.

The President nearly drove to despair the men who were preparing the itinerary for his western trip. Seven perfectly good schedules were torn to shreds before the itinerary in the form announced was finally given the famous "Okeh." At the eleventh hour changes were made to make the trip fit the time allotted by President Wilson for his swing around the circle.

Los Angeles will get virtually two whole days of the President's twenty-five day outing. Here one of the changes was made to permit such an arrangement and give the President Sunday in Los Angeles to relax and gain strength for the return trip which will be by way of Sacramento and Reno. Originally it was planned to have him in San Diego for a longer period but as now arranged he will go straight through to San Diego arriving there September 19 and spending the most of the day there, reaching Los Angeles either late Friday or early Saturday morning. A rest, a luncheon and a speech in the Shrine Auditorium will be the high spots of Saturday and Sunday will be devoted to church, rest and a mild and rather brief sightseeing excursion to give President Wilson his first glimpse of some of the beauties of Southern California.

NO PLATFORM SPEECHES.

California people may be disappointed that they will not see more of the President at the various cities and towns through which his train will pass. Two things the President does not like, one is outdoor speaking and the other is platform speaking from the end of his train. In the first place the President is careful of his voice, which is not over strong, and he always speaks in a rather low and almost entirely conversational tone.

In the center is Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and chief enemy of the treaty with Germany and the League of Nations covenant. At his right is Porter J. McCumber of North Dakota, the only Republican member of the committee who favors adoption of the documents and who has consistently voted with the Democrats in opposing all attacks. At the right of the picture is shown Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, who has led administration forces seeking adoption of the treaty and League of Nations covenant as brought from Versailles by President Wilson.

KILL LIEUTENANT IN RIOTS

Regular Army Officer First White Victim in Curbing Knoxville Race War.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KNOXVILLE (Tenn.) Aug. 31.—Minor disorders occurred in Knoxville tonight following race riots Saturday night and early Sunday, which were the sequel to the storming of the jail by a mob intent upon lynching Maurice Mayes, negro, accused of the murder of Mrs. Bertie Lindsey, a white woman.

The casualty list was increased today by four negroes who resisted attempts to search them for arms. All were wounded by National Guardsmen, two being shot and the other two stabbed with bayonets.

Eleven hundred guardsmen of the Fourth Tennessee Infantry, supplemented by 200 special policemen and seventy-five deputy sheriffs, patrolled the city, dispersing crowds and searching all negroes.

The guardsmen, who were in camp near the city for target practice, also searched all negroes arriving on trains and have established a barred zone in the heart of the negro district where the worst of the rioting occurred. Four machine guns are mounted at a commanding point in this district and other machine guns have been mounted on motor trucks ready for eventualities.

Union leaders today called off the "Labor Day" parade scheduled for Monday.

SPORADIC SHOOTING.

There has been shooting in various sections of the city all day and this continued tonight, causing dozens of riot calls.

Some sections in which the most serious clashes occurred have not been searched thoroughly and reports conflict as to the number of casualties which may be concealed there. Two men are known to have been killed. Fourteen others, eight white and six negroes, are in hospitals. Of these, four, two whites and two negroes, are not expected to recover. Sixteen wounded white men had slight wounds dressed at one hospital.

The known dead are:

First Lieutenant James W. Payne, Madisonville, Ky., regular army; Joe Etter, negro.

The injured include Private E. V. Henderson of the Tennessee National Guard, who may die.

KILLED BY HIS MEN.

Lieut. Payne was killed accidentally early today by machine-gun bullets. He was 200 yards from the machine gunners with several other officers when the party was fired upon by negroes from a second-story window. Payne and his companions replied with automatic rifles and

REDS INCITE NEGRO RIOTERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Declaring that a nation-wide propaganda is being conducted by the I.W.W. to stir up racial hatred in the United States and incite riots similar to those which recently took heavy tolls of life in Chicago and Washington, Representative Byrnes of South Carolina has turned over to Atty.-Gen. Palmer copies of negro publications in which he alleges the inflammatory matter is printed. This action follows a sensational speech he made on the floor of the House last week, in which he declared that the Bolshevik movement is spreading among negroes.

Mr. Byrnes quoted from writings in negro magazines urging negroes to join the I. W. W. as "the only labor organization which draws no race or color line," and advocating the establishment of a Bolshevik government. Inflammatory articles along this line, Mr. Byrnes declared, were clearly in violation of the Espionage Act.

"These radical leaders of the negro race are urging their followers to resort to violence in order to secure privileges they believe themselves entitled to and the recent riots indicate that they are accepting this advice," said Mr. Byrnes. "It is unfortunate that some negroes have changed their attitude, inspired doubtless by the desire to promote the success of the radical leaders. A fair illustration of this type of negro leader is Mr. Dubois, who has publicly rendered great service to his people by intelligent leadership.

"The recent race riots in Washington and Chicago, and the many other similar disturbances throughout the country, have caused the press to speculate as to the underlying causes of the conflict between races. It is manifest that when sanguinary conflicts take place in cities so widely separated and in so short a time, the cause is general and not local."

Mr. Byrnes quoted from the article in the Crisis relative to "a shameful land" in which the negro editor concluded as follows:

"This is the country to which we soldiers of democracy return. This is the fatherland for which we fought! But it is our fatherland. It was right for us to fight. The faults of the country are our faults. Under similar circumstances we would fight again. But by the God of heaven we are cowards and jackasses if now that war is over we do not marshall every ounce of our brain and brawn to fight a sterner, longer, more unbending battle against the forces of hell in our own land.

"We return. We return from

SEEK AVIATORS IN HILLS.

Maj. MacCaulay Says Missing Flyers will be Found in Baja Land Wilds.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 31.—Lieuts. Frederick Waterhouse and Cecil H. Connelly, the Rockwell Field pursuit pilots who have been missing in Lower California since Aug. 21, did not land or "crash" in the desert, according to opinions expressed today by Rockwell Field aviators who have flown over the arid wastes of the peninsula. These aviators have obtained information leading them to believe that the missing airmen landed somewhere in the rough country lying between Trinidad and the coast and a point between Rosario and the San Pedro Mountains. Officers estimate the territory yet to be explored at about 700 square miles.

Maj. Theodore MacCaulay, who has flown over hundreds of miles in Lower California in search of Waterhouse and Connelly, returned to North Island today. He says it is almost a certainty, judging from information gained from Mexicans, that the two airmen and their De Haviland machine will be found in the mountainous country lying between Trinidad and Rosario.

Maj. MacCaulay said that a severe electrical storm occurred at Ojas Negros at 3 o'clock this morning. He said that the ground is so soggy from recent rains that he was forced to seek a new landing place when he returned to Ojas Negros from North Island Thursday afternoon.

Satisfied that Waterhouse and Connelly will be found in the territory lying between Trinidad and Rosario Gov. Esteban Cantu of Lower California today wired Col. H. L. Watson, commander of Rockwell Field, that he is dispatching a large force of cavalry and infantry to assist American aviators in the search.

Lieuts. Queen and Kelly left North Island this afternoon for San Quentin. They are to send back reports by carrier pigeon with recommendations as to just how many airplanes and what supplies are necessary to carry on the search. It is expected that eleven airplanes will be sent to the southern part tomorrow to begin an aerial reconnaissance of the wooded country.

The naval tug Challenger has been moved from Ensenada to San Quentin and will flash radio reports regarding the progress being made. Submarine Chaser No. 273 is standing by in the harbor with gasoline and other supplies and will probably receive orders to sail for San Quentin tomorrow morning.

Stormy weather is interfering seriously with the aerial reconnaissance programme.

WILSON WOULD PUT WAGES ON ANOTHER BASIS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—President Wilson, in a "Labor Day" message to American workers tonight announced that he would call, in the near future, a conference of representatives of labor and industry "to discuss fundamental means of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing.

The President said he was encouraged and pleased with the results thus far of the government's efforts to reduce costs of living and expressed confidence that substantial results would be achieved in the solving of this problem. Patience and vigilance, he said, must be exercised and the government's efforts must have the co-operation of every citizen.

Presumably referring to existing labor unrest and threats of strikes, the President appealed to every citizen to refrain from doing anything that would tend to increase the cost of living but instead to do all possible to promote production.

The President expressed particular gratification at the attitude taken by the representatives of organized labor in supporting the government's programme to meet requests for increases through a lowering of living costs and said he hoped the workers would "move with the government instead of against it in solution of this great domestic problem."

GRATIFIED AT PROGRESS.

The message, as issued tonight at the White House, follows:

I am encouraged and gratified by the progress which is being made in controlling the cost of living. The support of the movement is widespread and I confidently look for substantial results, although I must counsel patience as well as vigilance because such results will not come instantly or without team work.

Let me again emphasize my appeal to every citizen of the country to continue to give his personal support in this matter, and to make it as active as possible. Let him not only refrain from doing anything which at the moment might tend to increase the cost of living but let him do all in his power to increase the production; and further than that let him at the same time himself carefully economize in the matter of consumption. By common action in this direction we shall overcome a danger greater than the danger of war. We will hold steady a situation which is fraught with possibilities of hardship and suffering to a large part of our population; we will enable the processes of production to overtake the processes of consumption; and we will speed the restoration of an adequate purchasing power for wages.

I am particularly gratified at the support which the government's policy has received from the representatives of organized labor and I earnestly hope that the workers generally will emphatically indorse the position of their leaders and thereby move with the government instead of against it in the solution of this greatest domestic problem.

I am calling for as early a date as practicable a conference in which authoritative representatives of labor and those who direct labor will discuss fundamental means of bettering the relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing.

[Signed] WOODROW WILSON.

CONFERENCE FOLLOWS TOUR.

The proposed conference, it was stated authoritatively tonight, would be called to meet soon after President Wilson returns at the end of September from his speech-making tour of the West. It was thought likely the meeting would be held at the White House.

Proposals that a conference between labor and employers be held has been urged from a number of quarters.

Secretary Lane expressed belief in a statement recently that the President should call such a meeting. Resolutions are pending in both Houses of Congress urging that workers and employers be brought together.

In the President's promise to call the conference, officials saw allevation of the tension existing among organized labor.

MARSHALL WARNS OF LEISURE'S COST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—"I have never lived within my salary and have often thought of striking for a higher one," confessed Vice-President Marshall today in the course of a discussion of the cost of living, strikes, etc. "How I spend my salary is nobody's business save my wife's. If I should strike for more money upon the theory that my services are worth more than I am receiving, how I have spent my salary is nobody's business, but should I strike on the ground of the high cost of living then justice would demand that I show how I have spent my salary in order that the arbiters may determine whether it is the high cost of living or the cost of high living that ails me.

"One of the old ideals of the republic was the limit of striving for success, was the limit of capacity and endurance. The real evil which we are confronting today is the high cost of leisure. I speak of it in no censorious way, because I am, myself, the laziest of the lazy. I only beg the thoughtful consideration of younger men, who have the good of the republic at heart, to seriously consider the problem as to whether the only way in which to meet the increasing difficulties of American life is not by additional striving to produce more, to earn more, to economize more and to save more.

"I lost all confidence in a man in Indiana, whose family was starving and for whom I found a job at $1.50 a day during the panic of 1893, when he told me that he believed he would not take a job until he was certain what Congress was to do about the money question.

"All of us are for less hours of labor, better labor conditions, safeguards for women and children and men who labor, a fairer distribution of the products of labor; all of us hope that these things can be accomplished and that all of the necessaries and many of the luxuries of life will be given to every one under the flag and that peace, plenty and prosperity may continue to be the part of the American citizen. But if abnormal conditions such as those which now confront us shall continue to confront us, this generation will have drifted away from the pioneers, the pathfinders and the builders of the republic if we shall refuse to work longer than the legally alloted hours when by so doing we can contribute to the happiness and prosperity of our own families and the common good of the American Republic.

"I have tried to ease my own conscience in holding a position which has so little labor connection with it by saying to myself that the numberless nights of labor which I have performed in the past entitle me to a breathing spell.

"I am not sure however that this is true and not being sure of it I have no word of criticism for those who, like myself, prefer to play rather than to labor."

SAY NO TROUBLE OVER P. E. FREIGHT.

Reports that Southern Pacific switchmen were dismissed yesterday for refusing to handle Pacific Electric freight were denied by company officials. They said there was no truth in statements to the effect that some of the men had declined to handle the freight, had been dismissed and then taken on again after a threat of another walkout.

Government of Carranza, on Last Legs, Tottering Toward Fall.

GOVERNMENT IN MEXICO A JOKE.

Intelligence Officer Says it is Thug Rule.

Says Anarchist Gangs Plunder as They Choose.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico has just made public the second installment of the story about conditions in Mexico by Dr. Paul Bernard Altendorf, a Pole, who has lived in Mexico since 1914 and for twenty months was an agent there of the military intelligence department of the United States while he posed as a German agent and became a colonel in a Carranza army, which, he said, was raised to invade the United States in July, 1918.

In making public the statement the association announced that the article had been submitted to the United States military intelligence department and certain portions omitted at the request of the department.

Dr. Altendorf said:

"Since 1914 I have been in twenty-two of the twenty-seven States constituting the former Mexican republic and in most of them in the last two years, traveling almost continuously on foot, on muleback, in boats and on the few trains that are still running. I traveled as a German, for no one but a German is safe in Mexico.

"Speaking from the fullness of first-hand knowledge thus acquired it seems to me a joke to call Carranza's administration a 'government.' No real government exists south of the Rio Grande, except such authority as a thug with a gun exercises over an unarmed victim. Mexico is nothing more than an agglomeration of anarchist gangs who kill and plunder with no restraint but their own caprices.

LIVE BY PLUNDER.

"The so-called 'rebels' are no more nor less than bandits. To discriminate between Carranzistas and other banditti is to make a distinction without a difference. All alike live by plunder.

"Of these rebels or banditti there are 100,000 men operating in gangs of 40 to 4000, under thirty-seven known leaders of importance who hunt in definite territories. In addition there is an unknown number of smaller fry who operate independently at times and again assert allegiance to some larger gang when they need protection.

"Included in this 100,000 banditti are about 58,000 men who part of the time claim to be Carranzistas and who actually do serve under his banner when expedient.

"But this is not all the story. Carranza's actual, dependable military strength is 67,000 men. These men are banditti like all other Mexicans who own a gun. They kill and rob just the same as any so-called 'rebel.' In fact that is the way most of them get their supplies and pay. That is also the way they make their officers rich; and in this connection it is well to remember thatt he Mexican army has a higher ratio of generals and colonels and majors than any other military organization on earth. Nearly all the robberies of paymasters, so frequent in the oil region, are committed by Carranzistas.

FIENDISH TORTURE.

"Torture is often resorted to sometimes to extort money and sometimes out of pure fiendishness. In this connection I should like to mention that a large proportion of Mexicans, officers ha well as men, are dope fiends. They smoke marijuana, which is made from the loco weed, familiar to cattle men in the southwest, which has an effect like hashish. They will not go into battle without a dose of marijuana, which imparts a sort of false courage.

"The results of bandit rule are appalling. Mexico is sunk to the uttermost depths of desradation and misery. The greater number of the stores in Mexico under the Diaz regime have been looted bare and now stand empty and deserted with windows broken and the buildings more or less wrecked.

"The same thing applies to factories. Such industries as Mexico once had are now irreparably damaged. Many manufacturing plants have been destroyed; many others are not operated because Carranza or some other chieftain would seize the product. One copper mine, representing an investment of $1,500,000 near Chihuahua city, was wantonly destroyed the present year. This happens to be one of many instances of destruction that came under my personal observation.

WON'T WORK.

"Even the plants which might be operated so far as other obstacles are concerned, cannot obtain labor. The peons would rather join Carranza's army or some other bandit gang and take chances on getting a share of the loot than to earn a living by honest work. Even the farmers do not put in more than enough crops to afford their families a bare existence because of the certainty that the whole would be confiscated.

"The railroads are in utter ruin. There is only one line upon which sleeping car service is maintained regularly, and these cars are generally reserved for the use of army officers between Mexico City and Monterey. All upholstering has been torn off the seats of the day coaches and the wooden hulks swarm with vermin. One must often wait for days to board a train, and when at last the train appears it takes a whole day or more to cover a distance that should be run in a few hours."

BORDER FORCES CUT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 31.—"Governors of States, Congressmen, Senators and business men talk of intervention in Mexico. They demand that we go in and take steps to form a stable government in a country half as big as the United States and as unsettled as the Philippine Islands were in the days of Aguinaldo. They shout until the heavens threaten to fall from the echoes of their thunder about protecting the lives and property of Americans and other governments in Mexico. Then they pass a bill limiting the strength of the army to a paltry 300,000 men, and on top of that send out orders like this."

A military man, prominent in the government of the Southern Department, and whose head would go on the military chopping block in a minute if he were quoted directly, exploded in the vein above at Fort Sam Houston and then stalked into the open air to cool off. He held in his hand and referred to as "this order" which calls for the discharge not later than September 30, of all emergency enlisted men and such men of the old Regular Army as were put under "duration of the war" enlistments by an order of the War Department which construed as emergency enlistments all army applications received after the formal declaration of war in 1917.

DISPELS FORCES.

Such an order will take from the border forces approximately 8800 men and an additional 1000 assigned to staff duty. In many cases such as the remnants of the Second Division now encamped at Camp Travis, it will leave the organization concerned barely enough men to care for the live stock, material to furnish the necessary guards over property that is piled in warehouses and cantonments in tremendous quantities. It leaves no reserve forces to swing into action along the border or for relief work for the units now doing patrol duty along the 1830-mile frontier from Point Isabel on the gulf to Tia Juana and San Diego on the west coast.

Indications that the mysterious disappearance of Lieuts. Frederick Waterhouse and Cecil Connolly, missing from Rockwell Field, San Diego, may lead to another "crisis" came to the Southern Department yesterday with the statement from army sources at San Diego that they were not found by troops of Gen. Esteban Cantu, in Lower California, as previously reported.

Should it develop, say San Antonio army men, that another "ransom case" has developed, it will mean another punitive expedition would have to start south across the border line and in the present critical state of international relations it might be the fuse to the powder box.

MRS. CARRANZA ON BORDER.

Word to the intelligence department from Eagle Pass and told also by Mexican dispatches from Piedras Negras, across the line from that point, Mrs. Venustiano Carranza, wife of the President of the de facto government, has arrived at the Mexican town, with a military train and guard of honor, and plans on coming to San Antonio to spend the winter. She is reported to be in poor health. San Antonio people laugh at a story that her coming to the United States at this time presages a possible flight of her husband from the troubles of his reign at Mexico City. They say that Mrs. Carranza has spent much of her time in San Antonio since her husband assumed power in Mexico.

Wives of Hipolito Villa and Pancho Villa are regular residents of San Antonio. Possibilities of what might happen if the wives of the anti-Carranza leaders and the wife of Carranza were to meet are not discussed in San Antonio social circles.

COAL FAMINE FEAR GROWS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Coal production is increasing slightly, but unless the improvement breaks all records between now and the end of the year a coal famine next winter seems to be inevitable. In the week ending August 23 bituminous production was 10,671,000 tons, compared with 9,089,000 the previous week, a gain of 17.6 per cent.

The total for the week ending August 16 was 8,000,000 tons below the output of the corresponding week of last year, while for the week ending August 23 the output was 2,000,000 tons under last year's figures.

The production of anthracite increased from 1,642,000 tons in the week of August 16 to 1,868,000 tons in the week of August 23.

The recovery is attributed to a quickening of the demand and the abatement of labor trouble in the coal fields and on the railroads.

Coal must go from the producer to the consumer as speedily as possible, for there are comparatively few facilities for storing it. At the mines the storage facilities are at a minimum. Many of the mines are located on the mountainside, and the coal is dumped into the cars which are to carry it away as soon as it is mined. The facilities for storage of coal among the wholesalers are comparatively meager when considered in connection with the great quantities used. The consumers, on the other hand, have considerable storage facilities, both in their homes and in the factories.

The shortage of coal cars at the mines has become an alarming element in the situation. Testimony from reliable coal operators before the Senate committee now investigating the situation, and hundreds of letters from other operators, have insisted that the coal-car shortage has resulted in the reduction of the production from 30 per cent. to 50 per cent. in many mines in recent weeks, and some mines have been idle days upon days because of lack of cars.

HINES SAYS NOT SERIOUS.

The Senate adopted a resolution calling upon Director-General Hines of the railroads to inform it what was the situation regarding the supply of coal cars. He replied recently that the situation was not as serious as had been depicted, and was improving all the time. He said that 37,000 new coal cars were being constructed and 17,000 had been put into service. But the miners tell of thousands of "bad-order" coal cars, and say that the new cars, even if all in use, could not make up for the loss of the bad-order cars.

On July 12, out of a total of 794,547 coal cars, there were 98,135 in bad order, requiring repairs, or 10.1 per cent. of all the coal cars were on the shelf for the time being. This situation has been remedied somewhat, according to Mr. Hines, but still there are thousands of coal cars which cannot yet be used.

It has been reported that during ten weeks the car shortage alone has been responsible for a cut in coal production amounting to 12,000,000 tons of bituminous coal and a very large quantity of anthracite coal. On August 1, the production of bituminous coal was 84,000,000 tons short of what it was at that time last year.

From the beginning of the coal production year, which is reckoned from April 1 until August 16, the production of anthracite was only 32,976,000 gross tons, or 15 per cent. behind what it was at the same time in 1918.

The production of anthracite in 1918 was 38,227,575 gross tons. The consumption of anthracite coal, practically equals the production always, it is said.

The consumption of bituminous coal last year, was 585,000,000 tons, and in the year 1917 it was about 550,000,000 tons. The estimate of the requirements for bituminous coal in this country alone for this year has been in the neighborhood of 530,000,000 tons.

The requirements this year are not quite so heavy as they were during the war.

WEEKLY 11,000,000 TONS.

It has been estimated that the production so far this year of bituminous coal has been 250,000,000 tons. There were 30,000,000 tons carried over in stocks from last year's production. This leaves another 250,000,000 tons to be produced during the period between now and January 1, about 19 weeks. It will be necessary to produce at the rate of 11,000,000 tons a week to meet these requirements.

There are several dark clouds on the horizon. The threatened railroad strike would prove a calamity to the coal situation. Then strikes among the coal miners, if increased, would prove equally ruinous for the people of the country who must be provided with coal this winter. The coal miners have called a convention at which all of their organizations are to be represented. They make the claim that 700,000 men are members. This convention is to take place at Cleveland, Ohio, in September. At this convention it is planned to have the demands of the miners submitted and drafted into form which may be presented to the operators. The miners in Great Britain have demanded that the contract for an eight-hour day be cut to a six-hour day; that they work only five days a week instead of six and that they be given a substantial increase in pay. It is understood that the demands of the American miners are to be the same, and in some quarters it is reported they will ask for a sixty per cent. increase in wages.

The claim is made by coal operators that the price of bituminous coal at the mines has not been advanced this summer, but if the miners are to receive such an increase in wages and are to work shorter hours, then it is likely the public will have to bear the burden through increased prices of coal.

The national officials of the miners' organization, it is reported, too, are at work on a bill for the nationalization of the mines, to be presented to Congress. William Greene, secretary of the mine workers, has been quoted as saying that the miners do not want government control of the mines unless they can have it with a democratic management by the miners themselves in large part.

SAN FRANCISCAN WINS CITATION FOR BRAVERY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, Aug. 31.—A citation for bravery has been awarded by the Navy Department to Theodore P. Jordan, chief yeoman of the U. S. S. Oregon, son of a San Francisco newspaper man.

On April 12, 1919, while the Oregon was steaming out of San Diego Harbor, Jordan plunged over the side after Lieut. Acuff, who had been knocked overboard by a swinging block. He held the lieutenant in safety until help arrived.

SAN FRANCISCO PLANS WELCOME.

Enthusiasm Grips Bay City in Anticipation of Fleet.

Vessels Leave Santa Cruz and Wait to Enter the Bay.

Secretary Daniels Recites History at Monterey.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—The Pacific Fleet at 6:30 o'clock tonight was sighted approximately ten miles off shore opposite here, according to advices received at the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce. The vessels apparently were headed for the San Francisco lightship with the intention of establishing an anchorage between the lightship and Bolinas Bay.

Patriotic enthusiasm gripped San Francisco tonight in anticipation of the arrival here tomorrow of the Pacific Fleet and its review in San Francisco Bay by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Finishing touches were being placed upon street decorations and the programme of public and private entertainment arranged for both officers and enlisted men throughout the week of their stay here.

Hundreds of thousands of persons —residents and visitors—made plans to watch the entrance of the fleet into the harbor and its review, either from launches or yachts, or from any one of a score of other vantage points.

Dispatches from Monterey and Santa Cruz told of the departure of the armada from Monterey Bay and of the rendezvous off that waterway in preparation for passage to the overnight anchorage off Bolinas Bay, to the north of San Francisco.

From Bolinas Bay tomorrow at a signal from the dreadnaught New Mexico, flagship of Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander-in-chief of the fleet, the long line of ships will start for the Golden Gate.

Admiral Rodman himself on the bridge of the New Mexico will pilot the fleet through Bonita Channel and down the bay; past the famous old battleship Oregon, from which Secretary Daniels will review the ships and finally to anchorages already designated, both at San Francisco and at Oakland, across the bay.

After the review, San Francisco will ask the officers and enlisted men to partake of her hospitality, which promises to be offered and accepted to the fullest extent.

"This is your city," says San Francisco to the fleet, and the fleet, according to expressions of both officers and men, intend to make it just that.

The week's entertainment includes almost every form of diversion anybody ever thought might be acceptable to a sailorman of the United States Navy.

SAILS FROM SANTA CRUZ.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SANTA CRUZ, Aug. 31.—The Pacific Fleet passed in review here today as it departed for its next port of call, San Francisco. As the dreadnaughts, cruisers and destroyers steamed past Santa Cruz the warships which have been stationed here the past week swung into line. Eight army airplanes circled above the vessels during their departure.

As the fleet passed up the coast a pageant composed of an army convoy and a procession of decorated automobiles kept pace with it on the road that follows the coast. Thousands of persons and automobiles lined the road and cliffs north of here until the fleet had faded from sight.

COMPLETES TRIP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ABOARD THE U. S. S. NEW YORK IN MONTEREY BAY, Aug. 31.—When the dreadnaught New York, with Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his official party aboard dropped anchor here today, it completed a trip of approximately 5000 miles to the Territory of Hawaii. The trip was begun at Los Angeles Harbor August 12.

The Secretary passed six days ashore in the Territory and everywhere was entertained lavishly by citizens. This same hospitality was showered upon every man and officer of the New York and the destroyers Chauncey, Philip, Dent and Waters, which accompanied the secretarial party.

Only one day, Sunday last, was spent at Hilio on the Island of Hawaii, because the Secretary was forced to hurry his return to the mainland. The day at Hilo afforded opportunity for a visit to Kilauea volcano, considered one of the most spectacular wonders. Nearly 300 men and officers from the naval ships also made the thirty-two-mile trip to the crater.

The volcano recently has been more active than for thirty years and as the Secretary stood on its brink the molten maelstrom of lava was particularly spectacular, occasional outbursts sending white hot lava many feet into the air, like a fountain or geyser. At night these outbursts were like fireworks.

Honolulu was reached August 20, and the Secretary's party remained there until the night of August 23, when the fleet sailed for Hilo. Gov. McCarthy and his staff were taken to Hilo aboard the vessels of the fleet and as the Governor was piped over the side of the New York at Hilo a salute of seventeen guns was fired.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN HELP ROUND UP LIONS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 31.—Several hundred persons, including women and children, joined the police in a round-up of two lions that escaped from their cage when a motor truck bearing the menagerie collided with a street car in a residence section here this afternoon. One of the animals was finally cornered in a garage and the other in the basement of a private home and both were secured without injury to anyone. The officers experienced the greatest difficulty in holding back the spectators from what was considered the danger line.

ANGELENO FAILS TO APPEAR FOR WEDDING.

BRIDAL PARTY WAITS AN HOUR; DISAPPOINTED WIDOW IN DOCTOR'S CARE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Laura Watson, a widow, and William J. Anderson, said to be wealthy, of Los Angeles, were to have been married at Westfield, N. J., Saturday afternoon but the prospective bridegroom failed to appear and Mrs. Watson, so it was learned yesterday, has heard nothing from him since. She is prostrated at a hotel where she has been stopping with her two daughters and son. She says she cannot believe Anderson forsook her and fears he may have met with an accident. But Anderson left the hotel rather hurriedly Thursday after having shipped his trunks and other belongings.

Mrs. Watson's husband, Thomas, died about two years ago in Westfield. Since then she has been living in Toronto with her family, where she is said to have met Anderson. He recently bought a car and was to have taken Mrs. Watson and her children to California to live on his estate, she said.

She and her family went to Westfield about ten days ago and were soon joined by Anderson. They obtained a marriage license and the ceremony was to have been performed by the Rev. Wesley Martin of the Methodist church. Mrs. Watson was to have been attended by Vivian Watson, one of her daughters, and the best man was to have been the proprietor of the hotel where they were stopping.

After the bridal party had waited an hour or more Mrs. Watson decided to cancel all arrangements. She became ill and is under the care of a physician.

service of the White House. There will also be Brooks, the colored valet, without whom no Presidential journey would be complete. Mrs. Wilson and her maid will be the only women on the train.

Dr. Grayson says the President is in the best possible physical condition for the trying twenty-five days.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN.

Technically the President's train will be run as the second section of a regular passenger train, which calls for a much slower rate than for a special train running on an important schedule. But in effect it will be a special train, for it may be routed as a section of any of numerous trains on the roads over which it will travel.

The make-up of the train will include two baggage cars, one being used principally to give weight to the train and make it ride smoothly, two compartment cars for the newspaper men, secret service and stenographers, a dining car, and the private car in which will travel the President and Mrs. Wilson, Dr. Grayson and Secretary Tumulty.

The intinerary once decided on, a little group of secret service men ride down to the union station several days before the President is scheduled to leave and climb aboard an outbound train. They visit every city where the President will stop, and inspect every building that he will occupy, even for a few moments. This is done not only for his safety, but to save him all possible annoyance.

EXPENSES FOR TRIP.

The only passengers on the Presidential train whose expenses are not met out of the $25,000 which Congress allows the President annually for traveling expenses, are the newspaper men. These men pay the regular rate for their accommodations, and the expense of each correspondent on the coming trip will be almost $1000, exclusive of telegraph tolls on his copy and his meals.

The Railroad Administration is silent on the amount to be spent for the coming trip of President Wilson, and the White House officials are equall yreticent, but it is known that the figure will approximate $14,000, or a little more than half of the annual allowance.

WILL REPORT TREATY IN WILSON'S ABSENCE.

RATIFICATION CONTROVERSY WILL HOLD CONGRESSIONAL SPOT LIGHT THIS WEEK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Efforts of the Senate foreign relations committee to report out the amended German peace treaty soon after President Wilson's departure Wednesday on his western speaking tour are of greatest interest on this week's Congress programme, starting Tuesday after the "Labor Day" recess.

Republican leaders expect to report the treaty to the Senate late this week or early next week for open consideration while the President is addressing the country, thus bringing the treaty contest to a climax. Controversy over ratification, amendments, reservations and interpretations is expected to ensue indefinitely and be intensified by the President's addresses.

Other important developments expected this week are disposal by the Senate of the prohibition enforcement bill and the oil land leasing bill and report by the Senate interstate commerce subcommittee of a bill proposing a permanent railroad regulation policy. Work in the House will be confined largely to preparation of legislation.

The foreign relations committee will continue hearings this week on questions affecting smaller European nations and peoples and also act on remaining provisions of the treaty, probably by adoption of further amendment.

Debate in the Senate on the covenant will continue, Senator Hitchcock, speaking Tuesday in reply to recent addresses by Senators Lodge and Knox. The Senate judiciary committee is called to meet tomorrow to consider the constitutionality of the French defense treaty.

The railroad bill is to be introduced Tuesday.

Consideration of a permanent military policy will occupy both Senate and House military committees this week.

OFFICER SLAIN IN RACE RIOTS.

sought cover. Just as Lieut. Payne stepped behind a telephone pole for protection, the crew of a machine gun further up the street opened fire upon a crowd of advancing blacks. Lieut. Payne fell into the arms of Capt. A. C. Parker of Memphis, with a dozen wounds in his legs and body. He died in an ambulance.

At least three negroes were injured by members of Company D, Fourth Tennessee Infantry, between daylight and noon, according to statements of soldiers.

Hotels and restaurants in the city operated under handicaps today as few negro employees made their appearance for work.

Several hundred rifles stored at the University of Tennessee arsenal were removed tonight by military authorities after rumors that a crowd of negroes was forming in the outskirts expecting to arm themselves from this supply.

In its attack on the jail last night the mob came upon a large quantity of confiscated whisky, and casks and cases were smashed open.

Early Sunday morning a few negroes came from their hiding places and found their way back to their homes.

RAIDS FOR GUNS.

There is not a firearm of any description to be found in any store in Knoxville, as a result of raids made upon them. Plate glass windows were crashed in, locks forced and in some cases, doors demolished, in an effort to secure weapons.

Damage done the stores and stocks is estimated to be about $10,000.

State troops tonight were standing in front of each of the looted stores with fixed bayonets, under orders to keep the throngs moving.

The mob which broke its way into the jail and the residence of Sheriff Cate, adjoining, took everything of value, including money, guns, whisky, clothing and books. Part of the jail records were destroyed.

The mob first made its appearance in the afternoon, small groups of men grouping about the jail. Shortly before nightfall the numbers began increasing until the building was surrounded.

For a little while the mob contented itself with shouting and shooting into the air. Soon they began pounding on the heavy iron bars of one of the front windows and eventually these gave way. Men began swarming into the jail and the jailer and deputies were overpowered. Heavy timbers were used as battering rams in an attempt to force the doors to the white cells.

WHITE MEN RELEASED.

These failing, guns were brought into play and the locks were broken. All white man confined on the upper floors were released.

The rioters went through the sheriff's house, destroying such property as could not be taken with them.

Four committees were permitted to go through the jail in search of Mayes. No effort was made to release the negro prisoners.

Nelson Easley, negro soldier, who won a citation for distinguished service overseas, dropped dead today. Death was caused by heart trouble induced by excitement over the riots. Joe Etter, negro storekeeper, reputed to be wealthy, was killed early this morning. Etter's body was left lying on the street several hours, owing to fear of undertakers' employees to enter the district.

MRS. CUDAHY DIES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

She was the last of the two women in America made countesses under papal decree. Mrs. Cudahy was 77 years old and was born in Kilbritain, Ireland. Among her surviving children are Mrs. John P. Casserly, San Mateo, Cal., and John P. Cudahy of Hollywood, Cal.

Referring to the fact that the Espionage Act forbidding anyone to publish language intended to ... or encourage resistance against ... United States or abusive language about the form of government of the United States is still in ..., Mr. Byrnes continued:

"If this editorial which refers to this country as 'a shameful law' charging the government with lynching, disfranchising its citizens, encouraging ignorance, and stealing from its citizens, does not constitute a violation of the Espionage law, it would be difficult to conceive language sufficiently abusive to constitute a violation.

A letter quoted from the Messenger, under the signature of William N. Colson, a contributing editor of that magazine and claiming to be an officer in the Three Hundred and Sixty-seventh Infantry, contained the following:

"No intelligent American negro is willing to lay down his life for the United States as it now exists. Intelligent negroes have all reached the point where their loyalty to the country is conditional."

The following is part of an article in the July issue of the Messenger which was read by Mr. Byrnes:

The I.W.W. would include these 140,000 negroes who have the power, by stopping their men, to tie up the railroads as completely as the Big Brotherhood could. If the negroes stopped loading the cars, repairing the tracks and producing the materials which are necessary for transportation the engineers would have nothing to carry.

"We know the history of craft organizations. We know their record on the race problem. We have compared them carefully. We know that the A. F. of L. has a machine for the propagation of race prejudice. We therefore urge the negroes to join their interests, brothers, and ... Workers of the World, the I.W.W."

From the same issue Mr. Byrnes quoted a forecast of race riots as follows:

"Our intimate contact with the large negro centers enables us to know how tense and bitter a feeling between white and black is. All such big negro centers are powder magazines of race prejudice, ready to explode at any moment upon putting the flame to the fuse. Riots are imminent—race riots—in all such large cities as New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago, Pittsburg and St. Louis."

Speaking of the Socialist party and its stand against the war, the Messenger goes on to say:

"With respect to the Socialist party, we indorse wholeheartedly its position on the war. History will record its position as one of the most courageous, far-visioned and intelligent points of view taken by any group in the world."

Feast or Famine

Theatrical advertising is often used as an example of a feast or famine business that falls outside the prosaic rules.

It is pointed out that with the show a great success, advertising is unnecessary; and with a failure, the more advertising the sooner the demise.

In the main, of course, this is true—advertising, like heat, intensifies action. And if a play or a cook-stove is unsatisfactory, the least said the soonest mended.

However, there may be secured from seasonal successes a certain permanent asset.

Take Belasco, for example, has he not secured from his past triumphs a tangible asset in a favorable presumption for his new productions?

If you make silks or art creations that are ephemeral, some part of the season's triumph can be and should be retained as a permanent asset to your line.

For an industry of spasmodic successes, advertising acts as a great conserving balance-wheel.

A.A.U. Ruling Changes Final Score for Teams.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

A.A.U. officials ruled late last night that points won by women in the Pacific Coast swimming and diving championships could not be counted on the final scores. As a result of this decision the team standings are considerably changed and even the winners change place. Following this ruling the scores stand: San Diego Rowing Club 25, Los Angeles Athletic Club 20, Olympic Club 18, Neptune Club 11 and Oakland Athletic Club 7.

TENT CITY (Coronado) Aug. 31.—Before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a swimming meet here, the annual Pacific Coast swimming and diving championships were held this afternoon, and after the wake of the swimmers in the relay had disappeared, it was learned that the Los Angeles Athletic Club finished in first position. The Angel City team took the honors with a score of 34 points. Following the winners came the San Diego Rowing Club, which finished with 30 points. The representatives of the Neptune Club of Alameda were third, with a total of 22 points. Other clubs to finish were the Olympic Club of San Francisco, and the Oakland Athletic Club with 7 points; the Service Plunge of San Diego with 11 points and swimmers unattached scored 14 points.

BEST HELD.

The meet was one of the best held in years, and never before was there such a galaxy of stars entered in competition. Several new performers made their entrance into the Amateur Athletic Union championships, and gave the veterans battle, and in a few cases dethroned them.

Mrs. Frances Cowells Schroth, who swam unattached, established a new Pacific Coast mark in the 220-yard dash, free style, covering the distance in 3m. 9s. According to the record book the former record, held by Mrs. Schroth, was 3m. 10 2-5s, established in 1917. There were no championship affairs staged last year because of war activities.

DARK HORSE.

Miss Rose Haywood, an unknown swimmer, and entered under the colors of the Service Plunge of San Diego, was the chief star of the meet, and scored 11 points. She won the 100-yard back-stroke, took second in the 100-yard free-style, and also second honors in the 220-yard dash, finishing about four yards behind Mrs. Schroth.

For the first time in the history of the San Diego Rowing Club, Pacific Coast championships were won by its representatives. Charles Shields captured the honors in the 220-yard dash; Elliott Burns won the 500-yard swim and Edward Rawlings copped the first ribbon in the 50-yard dash.

RAH FOR 'EM.

Miss Aileen Allen and Clyde Swendson retained their titles in the fancy diving events. Miss Allen had little trouble in winning from Gladys Boehmer of San Francisco, but Swendson was pushed closely by Clarence Pinkston, San Diego Rowing Club man.

Miss Thelma Finn, wearing Los Angeles Athletic Club colors, was declared by many swimming exponents who attended the event as the coming star. Miss Finn is new at the game which was shown by her performance but showed that she takes well to the water by her performance in the 100-yard dash which she won.

Robert Weaver of Los Angeles and president of the Southern California branch of the A.A.U., was in charge of the meet although it was held under the auspices of the San Diego Rowing Club.

W. R. UPDEGRAFF IS WINNER AT GOLF.

LARGE-SIZED HANDICAP GIVES HIM ONE LEG ON CHAPLIN TROPHY.

W. R. Updegraff walked away with the win of a leg on the Chaplin trophy. When a golfer shoots 78 with a 16 handicap and a net of 9 strokes under par it's quite evident that the handicap committee needs to wake up. Mr. Updegraff made his Chaplin cup round over the municipal links at Griffith Park on Saturday and then on Sunday ran up against "Dad" Aborn in the Tufts trophy tournament.

With 4 up at the go-off, Updegraff shot a 79 and licked "Dad," 7 and 5.

Needless to say, the handicap committee, or rather Chairman Aborn, did wake up and Updegraff handicap goes down where it belongs.

There were only four gross scores under 80. B. S. Mills heading the list with 73; "Gordo" Whelan, 75; W. R. Updegraff, 78; W. M. White, 78. Following is the summary:

W. R. Updegraff	78—16	—62
W. D. Whelan, Jr.	75— 8	—67

TUFTS TROPHY.

In the semi-finals of the first flight George S. Lance, who had successively defeated such stalwarts as Frank Deleot and Tom Barret, in previous rounds, went down to defeat before the snappy game put up against him by "Gordo" Whelan.

In the lower half C. M. Buck defeated "Ikey" Platt, 1 up.

Whelan and Buck fight out the finals during this week.

Following are the results:

LABOR DAY EVENT.

The six prizes put up for the 18-hole handicap match play against par golf today prove very tempting, as indicated by the large number intending entries.

J. A. Patterson donates four golf clubs to go to winners of first, second, third and fourth positions in the par match play.

Medal score is also to be kept and for this B. S. Mills presents a beautiful leather-bound canvas golf bag for the best gross card, while for the best net score the greens committee has put up a half-dozen golf balls to go to the winner.

HOLIDAY TENNIS BILL.

Today sees the second day's play of the city tennis tournament on the courts of the Young Men's Christian Association on Stephenson avenue. The second round of the men's singles will be finished, and matches will start in the men's doubles. The ladies will indulge in singles, and the day, being a holiday, should attract a large crowd out to view the racket stars in action.

Interest in the ladies' play was awakened when it became known that Miss Eleanor Tennant will be seen as of old on a tennis court in tournament play. Miss Tennant but recently received certificate of her amateur standing from the National Lawn Tennis Association. For the past several months Miss Tennant had been deprived of her amateur standing and she is to be congratulated by all who know the brilliant tennis she plays. She will undoubtedly provide stiff competition for her opponents.

Tom Bundy, like the old war-horse he is, came through the first round of men's singles and is on his way to a possible championship. Cliff Herd, it is announced, will do his durndest to make the trophy his own private possession. Percy Jones, last year's winner of the city affair, will have no soft time defending his title. The schedule and drawings follow:

Must We Ratify Treaty to Save the World?

At the now famous White House conference with the Committee on Foreign Relations, President Wilson emphasized the moral obligation resting upon the Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty as it stands.

THE LITERARY DIGEST of August 30th cites numerous leading newspapers which have taken up this question with ardor. "The first, the imperative duty of this country," says the Jersey City Journal, is to make the Treaty effective and then "to join the other civilized countries of the globe in an honest effort make peace lasting," and the Philadelphia Inquirer maintains that America "can never return to a sane basis until the Peace Treaty is disposed of and actual peace is brought about." The opposition view is voiced by the Hartford Courant, which feels that while "benefit all around" should result from the conference, the Senators will not be "stampeded by the President's plea for urgency." Senator Lodge hints at delays in his statement that "we all respect and share" the desires of those who want a Peace League, but "some of us see no hope, but rather defeat, for them in this murky covenant."

TIGERS CONTENT WITH ONE GAME

Take Opening Contest with Ease and Dispatch.

Yippers do All the Scoring in the Second.

Piercy on Mound in Both of the Affairs.

BY WARDE FOWLER.

There really wasn't much accomplished out at Washington Park yesterday. Vernon and Sacramento wrangled around from 1:30 to 5:30 o'clock, and the worst they could do to each other was to split even. All the scoring was done in four innings. If it had been known in advance that such a few innings would settle the double-header, the four could have been played off together, and the bugs would have gotten away at 3 o'clock instead of 5:30. However, Vernon won the first game, 4 to 0, and Sacramento took the second by the 3 to 0 counts.

RAH! FOR PIERCY!

Old Kid Piercy played a double role in yesterday's struggle, the villain in the initial game and the conquering hero in the second. Piercy stepped onto the mound for Sacramento in the opening contest, and was knocked for a loop and six runs in the first three innings. As a matter of fact, Piercy really doesn't deserve to be called a villain at all. A lot of funny backing-up in the outfield assisted by a couple of timely hits by Vernon was the cause of his downfall. But he was plucked at the end of the third and Larkin sent in to save the day.

Larkin did his darndest, and didn't follow the Tigers any more runs, but the team-mates couldn't seem to put anything over in the way of scores, and the game passed into history as stood.

MITCHELL STARTS IT.

In the first inning Mitchell stepped up and singled. Chadbourne followed this up with a double, which gave things a hopeful appearance for the home team. Meusel fanned and Mitchell was soon tagged out as he was struggling around third base. Edington then singled, and stole second. High singled to right, scoring both of his friends. He then stole second and scored on Fisher's single to left.

A couple of errors, Edington's infield hit and Fisher's double were the cause of the three Tiger runs in the third.

SECOND GAME.

The second game started off peaceably enough, except for a fight in the bleachers. A couple of the fans became involved in a technical point of the game, and decided to fight the thing out, arbitration, cops and leagues of nations to the contrary. A member of the police standing in the vicinity of the argument put an end to it before bets could be placed on the winner.

High kicked up quite a sensation in the second inning all by himself. He picked up a fly just as it bounced off the ground, tossed his mitt a mile in the air and started for the dugout. All the other Vernonites frantically let loose of their mitts and started in after him. This left a Yipper on first and another at bat, without any opposing team to play with 'em.

The Sacramento manager, with a horrified look on his face, rushed out to the umpire and asked him whether or not he was going to permit that kind of murder. The umpire said he was not, whereat all the Vernon players rambled out onto the field again, and the game went on. High giggled to himself all the rest of the afternoon. It was a high-class stop anyway, even if the ball did hit the ground first.

Sacramento started scoring in the sixth. Cady doubled and Piercy fanned. Stumpf singled and Cady came home. The Vernon pitcher got his hand in the way of the ball on the throw to the plate and Stumpf ran around to third before things could be rearranged. Middleton then popped to left and Eldred was beaten out by the ball on his way to first.

In the eighth, Piercy stole first on a badly handled bunt and Stumpf sacrificed, putting him on second. Middleton then hit at the first thing that came along and raced to second while they were engaged in getting Piercy out on his way home. Eldred singled and went to second while Middleton was scoring. Wolter banked out a double, scoring Eldred. Griggs popped to center.

Two games for the price of one will be dished out again today. The scores:

Washington Pounds Jones and Cops from Boston.

New York Easily Captures Game from Athltics.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—The locals decreased Chicago's lead in the American League pennant race to six games by defeating the White Sox.

Graney, Speaker and Gardner, all left-hand batters, hit the first ball pitched to them in the first inning for doubles, and drove Williams from the box. Lowdermilk replaced Williams and Wambsganss greeted him with a single that drove in two runs.

The Indian later scored two additional runs, and threw many others away because of reckless base running. The score:

ANGELS WIN IN EXTRA INNINGS.

Manage to Grab Last Part of Double-header.

Sam Crawford Rings up One More Home Run.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND, Aug. 31.—Although McCredie's Beavers outplayed the Angels during the three hours and fifty minutes of the national pastime this afternoon, the best they obtained for their pains was an even break. Portland won the first endeavor 4 to 1 and succumbed in the second sketch 5 to 4 after twelve innings of labor.

THE GHOST.

Suds Sutherland, who is dubbed "The Ghost" in the Angel dugout, would have lathered the would-be pennant winners with whitewash in the first tilt had not Sam Crawford registered his third home run of the week. Sutherland permitted but three hits and was never in danger. Bill Pertica, who tried to win his second game of the week, was nicked for ten healthies. Los Angeles got away to an early lead in the second contest. Five hits off Southpaw Jonathan Oldham in the second inning gave the Angles four runs but the Beavers kept pegging away, tying the count in the sixth. Both Oldham and Shultz, who opposed him, settled down from this stage on and neither aggregation dented the rubber until the fatal twelfth.

GETS A DOUBLE.

Manager Wade Killefer, that great outfielder who pilots the southerners, opened the inning by doubling to left centerfield and went to third on Bunny Fabrique's sacrifice. Fournier tapped a slow roller toward Wisterzil which seemed frozen to the grass. "Tex," dashing madly forward, picked up a handful of lawn and one baseball, but found it impossible to get it all to Koehler in time to head off Killefer, who slid across with the winning marked.

Portland drew first blood in the second inning of the first battle. With Suglin and Kingdon on second and first, respectively, Pitcher Sutherland, who shone throughout the first contest, doubled to right. Both runners hoofed it across but Kingdon was ruled out for not touching second.

GAME ON ICE.

The Beavers put the game on ice by bunching three hits in the third, which, with two errors, gave them three runs but when the 5500 rabid ones present stood up in the seventh it was more than the lads could pass up. Once more Mr. Sutherland drew additional compliments his way when he sent the ball safely into left field. Spesa's sacrifice put him on the keystone from whers he scored on Wisterzil's double.

Although Kingdon continues to look woefully weak with the stick, his fielding is sensational. Jack Farmer's hitting was a feature. He made seven hits in ten trips during the afternoon.

SAVING 'EM.

When Ray Bates tipped Pitcher Schultz off to the ball on which Oldham was to start for the plate on an attempted squeeze play in the seventh inning of the second game, he probably saved Los Angeles from a double defeat. Oldham had doubled and Spesa's sacrifice had placed him on the difficult corner. With the count 2 and 2 on Wisterzil, Bates yelled to Pitcher Schultz while the latter was in the midst of his delivery, that Oldham was off for the plate. Schultz threw the pellet too high for Wisterzil to bunt and Oldham was snagged.

If Oldham could but erase his one bad inning, the second, he would have won his fourth straight win over the Angels on the local lot. Ray Bates opened this disastrous round by singling through short-stop. Walter Boles hit down the third-base line. Kenworthy beat out a bunt to Oldham and when the red-head threw the ball away Bates scored and Boles took third. Rube Ellis singled down the third-base line, scoring Boles and puting Kenworthy on second.

Schultz grounded out, but Killefer registered Kenworthy and Ellis on his bingle across second. Killefer reached second in the first inning when he was hit by a pitched ball and advanced to the keystone on Fabrique's sacrifice. He died there, however, for both Fournier and Crawford grounded out to Kingdon. Ellis reached second in the fourth, beating out a hit to Oldham and getting on the keystone as a result of Red's bad throw.

From then on until the twelfth Oldham was master of the situation.

RUSSIAN REDS DRIVE WHITES

Army that was to Take Petrograd Goes Other Way.

Officers and Men Distrust Each Other.

Bolsheviki Bribe Commanders to Give up Positions.

(This is the first direct special dispatch from the region of the armies engaged, telling of the fall of Pskov, the poor morale of the Russian White Guards and Esthonians and the opening of a new Bolshevik drive in the West.)

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REVAL, Aug. 27 (via Copenhagen, Aug. 31.)—Pskov, the most important city on the Baltic front, has been captured by the Bolsheviki after several days of heavy bombardment. The Russian White Guard line has been pushed back fifteen versts and the retreat is continuing. These are the troops that Kolchak expected would capture Petrograd before the end of September. Campaigning must stop then on account of the rain and cold. But, instead of advancing the Russian White Guard is being driven in confusion in the opposite direction to Petrograd.

I have just returned to Reval from a visit to the Esthonian and Russian sectors east of Narva. I attempted to reach Pskov, but was turned back by the retreat of the Russians. I found the morale of both the Rusian and Esthonian troops bad. Much jealousy existed between them and they were not co-ordinating.

OFFICERS AND MEN AT OUTS.

Russian officers say their soldiers mostly are deserters from the Reds who are fearful of torture, if captured by the Bolsheviki, and run away at the appearance of the enemy. The soldiers say they have no confidence in their officers and are afraid, if they make a stand, that the officer commanding them may have sold out to the Bolsheviki. Several late incidents confirm the reasonableness of this belief.

Col. Stojaken, Chief of Staff to Gen. Balakowitch at Pskov, was found guilty by a court-martial a few days ago of accepting a bribe of 1,000,000 rubles from the Bolsheviki to turn over a part of the line under his command to the Reds. Stojaken was executed by a firing squad. Gen. Balakowitch was placed under arrest charged with insubordination, but he is said to be thought implicated with Stojaken. There are officers who have deserted to the Bolsheviki on promises of high office and big estates in Russia.

ESTHONIANS INDIFFERENT.

The Russian White Guard is poorly armed and clothed and is jealous of the Esthonian army, which has been well clothed by England. The Russians lay the blame for the loss of Pskov on the Esthonians, who last week evacuated a large sector in front of Pskov without warning to the Russians. Fearing the Esthonians would continue their retreat to the Esthonian boundary, they were sent to the Narva front, which is identical with the Esthonian boundary line. The Russian troops rushed to the Pskov sector, but too late to check the advance of the Bolsheviki.

Esthonian officers admitted to me they did not see why they should advance and fight for the Entente nations when those nations will not recognize Esthonia as a republic. They declare that if America or England would recognize the independence of Esthonia, the troops would be willing to advance against the Bolsheviki, but at present they are willing only to put up a defensive fight on the boundary line of Esthonia.

REDS IN GOOD POSITIONS.

I saw the Bolsheviki in good positions wherever I went, with plenty of ammunition, putting down a well-placed fire whenever they felt like it. The Esthonians and Russians said the discipline of the Bolsheviki was excellent. The Red troops are well officered and have plenty of machine guns, cannons, and ten armored trains. The Russian White Guards have now at their front four whippet tanks recently sent by England, but the soldiers declare that the Russians are so afraid of having the tanks captured that they keep them far in the rear.

I talked with Bolsheviki prisoners, who looked fat and well-clad. They say the Bolsheviki drafted all able-bodied Russians into the army and compelled them to fight. There are 100,000 Bolsheviki on the Narva-Pskov sector. Official reports by the General Staff of both armies issued today say that in the fighting before Pskov the Bolsheviki hung all their prisoners by the heels, stabbing them to death with bayonets and disemboweled all the wounded.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—Crude politics, too easily recognized by Americans, has deprived Berlin of four carloads of foodstuffs at bargain prices.

Three months' rations, including bacon, corned beef, roast beef and other articles, which are luxuries to the Germans, were on hand when the United States military mission departed, and were offered to the highest bidder. They were sold for 243,000, but although they had deposited 20,000 francs, the buyers refused to complete payment and sought better terms.

The food was reoffered and then the first buyers threatened the prospective bidders with political punishment and they drove them off. They though they had the American depot quartermaster in a corner where he was compelled to lower the price, but instead orders were issued to ship the food to Gobiens.

The bargain schemers' deposit was confiscated.

CHICAGO TO PASADENA.

Guide posts leading direct to Pasadena and Southern California are to be placed on Michigan boulevard, Chicago, by the Auto Club of Southern California, as its next sign posting undertaking, declared H. A. Martin, Pasadena representative of the club, here today. The club now has its own sign posts on the Old Trails highways, to and including Kansas City and on the Lincoln Highway as far East as Big Springs, Nebraska. Most of the auto tourists that come to Southern California, it has been found, start from Chicago.

NOW WHO'S CRAZY?

J. C. Sturmer reported to the police today that a crazy man was at large in the fashionable west side district. As proof of the man's insanity, Mr. Sturmer reported that the fellow was pushing a lawn mower up and down a smooth sidewalk continuously. The police investigated and found merely an indignant householder who had put emery dust on the blades of his lawn mower and was pushing it up and down, reversed, in order to sharpen the blades.

SPELLIN' BEE.

The old fashioned spelling bee is to be revived as an indoor sport in Pasadena this winter, if W. H. Hall of this city has his way. Mr. Hall believes there are some crack spellers in Pasadena and being an adept speller himself, would like to meet some of them. He is thinking of issuing a challenge to all sundry.

TO ISSUE PASSPORTS.

United States passports for foreign travel will now be issued at the Pasadena branch office of the internal revenue collector's office it is announced, obviating trips to Los Angeles for those who seek to visit other countries.

RANCHER AND HELPER HAVE BLOODY FIGHT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Aug. 31.—Answering an emergency call from the Grand Hotel at an early hour this morning local officers found two men lying on the floor, covered with blood and at the point of exhaustion after a desperate fight. They were V. Kikilikian, a vineyard owner of this district, and Vernon Bentley, a grape picker, who had been for some time in Kikilikian's employ.

Bentley is being held at the local jail to await the outcome of Kikilikian's injuries, which are said to be serious. He told the police Kikilikian attacked him without provocation after he had been asked to share the latter's room. Kikilikian declared Bentley attempted to rob him of a considerable sum of money he had in his room.

Former Mayor of Phoenix Enjoys Beach Vacation.

Does Daily Dash on Santa Monica Sands.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 31.—Performing a 200-yard dash every morning before breakfast along the sands of Santa Monica and declaring that life ceases to be a thing worth while if he does not have a daily cold shower, Emil Ganz, 81 years of age and president of the First National Bank of Phoenix, Ariz., and former Mayor of the city, says that this is the happiest, most eventful summer he has ever spent. Mr. Ganz, his wife and 10-year-old daughter, have come to the Ocean View Hotel, Ocean Park, to spend the rest of the hot season, and he thus far has not allowed a day to go by without taking a daily dip in the ocean and a run up and down the beach, which, he declares, has been a lifelong habit.

A favorite place of recreation for Mr. Ganz is the dance hall, and every night finds him and his daughter "tripping the light fantastic" on the pier. The banker is fond of all manner of acrobatic stunts and the young people of Ocean Park make a daily audience watching him perform on the sands. He stoutly refuses to believe that there is anything unusual in his youthfulness.

"Eighty-one years is simply nothing in my young life," he said today when questioned. "I eat anything I want and as much of it. I'm an incessant smoker of anything I can get hold of and before the country went dry I enjoyed other things. I think if there is any secret to my youth it's that I have always been a fighter and things came up in the last few years that kept me blazing, so I had no time to get old. Not long ago I was made Mayor of Phoenix and held that position for three terms, during which time I kept up a barrage of rapid fire in the faces of a number of worthy politicians who would like to have tarred and feathered me. And then I was a Confederate soldier in the Civil War. I fought at Bull Run and several other places. A man who lives through a war usually lives a long time. It makes him a fighter."

Like all young men, Mr. Ganz has a pal in the person of his small daughter, Frances Emily Ganz, who is his constant companion. The two spend many whole days in the bathing suits, swimming and lolling on the sand at intervals. The little girl is a brown, wiry youngster and admits that the heighth of her ambition is to be as strong and wise as daddy. She and daddy have it "all planned out" that when he is 100 years old and she is 30 they are coming to Santa Monica and they are going to swim to the end of the long wharf and back.

VENICE SEEKS BATH IN THE LIMELIGHT.

PROPOSED NOVEL NAVAL RECRUITING SCHEME AS A PUBLICITY FEATURE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 31.—Mayor A. E. Coles and the Venice Civic Commission have adopted a plan proposed by Thomas H. Ince for recruiting men for the United States Navy. Mayors of Southern California cities, by this plan, will be asked to appoint a beautiful young woman to represent the city and recommend her name to the government as recruiting officer for that city.

Venetian officials will co-operate with these recruiting officers in inducing young men to enlist in the navy. Names of the recruits are to be sent to Venice and bells will be rung on a replica of the warship California to be erected in Venice, signalizing one more enlistment. On a day to be appointed the young women recruiting officers are to lead their recruits to an assembly in Venice where all are to be sworn in for service.

Naval recruiting officers are said to have approved of the Venice plan as a novel and striking one and one that promises to bring results in adding many young men to the navy's roster.

VINEYARD IS HEAVY LOSER.

Grape Growers at Ontario Suffer by R. R. Strike.

Prohibited Making Wine by Federal Law.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 31.—Probably affected more seriously by the recent railroad strike than any one concern in Southern California, heads of the Italian Vineyard Company, whose mammoth winery and 4000-acre vineyard, the largest in the world, lie just at Ontario's eastern gates, saw little relief in sight for probably another week today, despite the fact that transportation facilities were slowly getting back to normal.

With 14,000 tons of grapes rapidly ripening on the vines, and with any chance of settlement of the suit recently brought in the courts of New York to set aside war-time prohibition as it applies to the manufacture of wine probably some months distant, the railroad strike has even made it impossible for the big concern to fill large orders for grapes placed by eastern concerns.

The Italian company had planned to ship as many as 600 carloads of the grapes to eastern points for use by individuals in the manufacture of wine for their own private stock, of which they are allowed 200 gallons, it is said. Should the railroad companies be in shape to handle their business before the grapes spoil on the vines, many hundreds of carloads of wine grapes will yet be sent East, according to Secondo Guasti, Jr., son of the head of the company, and its active manager.

In discussing the situation today, Mr. Guasti declared their hands tied and that about the only thing they could do was to maintain a policy of "watchful waiting." He stated that his company has thousands of gallons of wine in its warehouses, on which the government exacts a tax, but which it forbids the company to sell.

Mr. Guasti said that some wine would doubtless be made for medicinal and sacramental purposes, but was unable to say in what amount.

By way of being "prepared for the worst," the Italian Vineyard Company has recently planted out 600 acres of its vineyards to walnut trees, all of which are doing splendidly; has developed water on an extensive scale, through the sinking of wells, and has constructed a storage reservoir of 13,500,000 gallons, the largest in the State. None of the Guasti lands have been irrigated before.

Notwithstanding the planting of the walnuts, none of the grape vines have been pulled out, nor will they be unless it is definitely and positively established that the wine industry is forever taboo. It takes seven years, according to Mr. Guasti, for a grape vine to come into full bearing, and they will therefore, not be removed until it is established to a certainty that their days of commercial value are over.

Mr. Guasti recited how his company had transformed the "Cucamonga desert" into one of the most productive sections in Southern California, and expressed the hope that the courts would decide, and speedily, in favor of its continued production.

CLAREMONT, Aug. 31.—With practically a month yet remaining before the opening of Pomona College on September 22, preliminary registrations point to the heaviest enrollment in the history of the institution. Applications are being received daily at the office of the registrar and already credentials have been accepted from nearly 100 men and 130 women. Also, there are a large number of transfers from eastern and Middle West colleges, which will increase the number of upper classmen.

Formal registration, for old and new students alike, will open on Monday, September 22, and continue through Wednesday, September 24, with classes meeting for the first time on Thursday morning.

The teaching force of the college is being enlarged, in keeping with the increased enrollment anticipated this fall, and in addition to the new instructors, several former faculty members who have been absent in war work will return, among them Miss Laura C. NO TIME FOR GOSSIP.

Santa Monica Band Stand No Place for Idle Talk.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 31.—In the future if a well-meaning citizen in Santa Monica "listens" to the municipal band for the purpose of discussing whether "Mary is really engaged to Peter" and "if Oswald will sue for divorce next week," he will suddenly be interrupted and find an ugly piece of cardboard thrust under his nose, on which will be written an apt phrase from the penal code, which treats of the penalties for disturbance in public places. Also on the bit of cardboard will be a picture of a guilty and noisy-looking sinner behind prison bars.

Numerous complaints have reached the city declaring that loud talking at the band plaza has become unbearable. The City Commissioners this morning decided to make disturbing talk at the plaza a violation of the law.

RAILROAD MAN GAINS 19 POUNDS

Engelmann Went Down-Hill For a Year.

About All He Could Eat Was Milk and Cracker.

Has Fine Appetite, Now—Is Well and Strong.

"Yes, sir, I certainly can recommend Tanlac, for it set me right several months ago and I've enjoyed the best of health ever since," said Dominick Engelmann, a car repairer for the Salt Lake Railroad, living at 3815 South Woodlawn street, Los Angeles, California, in a statement at the Owl drug store, recently.

"About a year ago," he continued, "I began suffering from indigestion and going down hill rapidly. I could not eat anything but what would bloat me all up with gas and there was the worst kind of a pain in my stomach all the time. I finally got to where about all I dared to eat was malted milk and crackers and even this caused me pain. I was badly constipated, lost weight all the time and got so weak that I could hardly keep up with my work.

"You may know there was something radically wrong with me when I tell you I had dropped down in weight from one hundred and fifty-eight pounds to one hundred and thirty-nine. I just tried everything I could hear of but got no relief until one day I read a Tanlac testimonial that described my case to a T. So I at once got a bottle of this medicine and the third day there was a remarkable change in my feelings. Then, of course, I kept on taking it and after using five bottles I had picked up nineteen pounds and balanced the scales at my old weight, one hundred and fifty-eight pounds. That was four months ago and I have been eating just anything I want ever since and have never had the least trouble with my stomach. In fact, I never have an ache or a pain of any kind and am feeling as strong and well as I ever did. I believe Tanlac is the best medicine ever sold in a drug store for any sort of stomach trouble.

Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by the Owl Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

SHIPPING BOARD IS IN UPHEAVAL.

Payne, New Chairman, Starts a Housecleaning.

Wholesale Dismissals Order of Every Day.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The Shipping Board is in the midst of an upheaval following the advent of John Barton Payne of Chicago as its chairman. Mr. Payne has started out to reorganize the board from top to bottom. Wholesale dismissals have taken place. Other employees and officers have left voluntarily. An efficiency committee is at work and as a result of its recommendations further reductions in the pay roll are contemplated in addition to the planned abandonment of the supercargo system.

One of the five members of the board, Henry M. Robinson of California, is said to have tendered his resignation to the President. The resignation has not been formally announced, and no explanation has been given. Mr. Robinson came to Washington originally as a dollar-a-year volunteer in the service of the Council for National Defense. His appointment was confirmed early in August at the same time as that of Mr. Payne.

CUTS OUT DIVISION.

The entire division of planning and statistics of the Shipping Board, comprising 100 employees, passed out of existence today, as a result of orders given by Mr. Payne. This division included a number of university professors who made inquiries and submitted recommendations to the board on various topics connected with shipping. Mr. Payne is reported to have considered it a superfluous appendage of the board. Following a change of policy, as to sale of ships, Mr. Payne has reduced the force of the ships sales division at New York from twenty-one to six. Mr. Payne takes the position that no unusual efforts should be made to promote the sales of ships until the country is more prepared to absorb them.

John E. Barber, formerly Mr. Hurley's private secretary, who was elevated by the former chairman to the vice-presidency of the board a few weeks ago, and placed in charge of sales division at New York, has resigned, effective September 15. Before the order reducing the sales force was actually issued, Capt. J. W. Munn, who has been conducting the sale of wooden ships, retired, and several other officials made plans to obtain positions elsewhere.

The Philadelphia information office has been ordered closed and its work will be handled hereafter at Washington. Other similar retrenchments and consolidations are being made throughout the organization.

The Efficiency Committee is composed of some of the officials of the board. Its members are making a canvass of the Shipping Board Building, inquiring just what duties various employees are performing, and preparing recommendations for a reorganization.

That there was a duplication of work in several departments of the board was the opinion expressed by some members of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries recently, after all the bureau chiefs appeared to testify regarding their work.

RAILROAD HEARINGS END IN TWO WEEKS.

COMMITTEE WILL THEN BEGIN UNSCRAMBLING ASSORTMENT OF PLANS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. — Two more weeks will wind up the hearing on railroad legislation by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The committee will then begin the task of unscrambling the varied assortment of plans presented during the last two months.

Witnesses to be heard this week include N. C. Kingsbury, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and representatives of various other telephone and telegraph companies relative to the proposal in the Esch-Pomerene bill for control of their rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sokesmen for the short-line railroads also will be heard this week. There will be some additional witnesses also from the coastwise and lake shipping companies who offer emphatic objection to the plan to coordinate rail and water transportation by giving the Interstate Commerce Commission control of port-to-port rates.

Representative Esch of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee, has not changed his belief that there should be an extension of jurisdiction in this direction, notwithstanding the protests of the shipping companies and others.

"It is just as it was in 1906 and 1910, when we sought to amend the Interstate Commerce Commission Act in its application to railroads," Mr. Esch said. "The carriers came in and said to let them alone; that they did not need regulation. Now the shipping men say the same thing."

Charles Pies of Chicago, representing the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, recently appeared before the House committee in opposition to this provision. He said the shippers in that section who use the lake boats believed the present system preferable.

SAHARAFIED WORLD IN 1940, PREDICTED.

PROHIBITION PROPHET SAYS HE WILL DRIVE DEMON RUM OFF EVERY OLD MAP.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—H. P. Faris, treasurer of the National Prohibition Committee, who in 1914 predicted the United States would be dry by 1920, now sees the world absolutely Saharafied in less than twenty years.

"It took us fifty years to dry up the United States," he said, "but less than half that time will be enough to chase John Barleycorn off the face of the earth."

Faris is one of the notables of the prohibition ranks in Chicago to participate in a celebration and jubilee marking the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the party. The festivities are to take place in the Morrison Hotel Monday evening.

Faris's home is in Clinton, Mo., and it was there he gave the country a shock with his prediction five years ago.

"All statements that drinking in Europe is not what it is in this country are bunk," he continued. "There is no such thing as the temperate drinking of Europe. That stuff is John Barleycorn's propaganda.

"Our first efforts outside America have been in Australia, and we have made considerable progress there. Our workers are getting into England and elsewhere on the continent."

"Won't you be compelled to work differently in foreign lands? Do you realy believe the peasants of Europe will give up their beer and wines?" Faris was asked.

"Booze," he said, "and the effects of drinking booze are the same there as they were here; therefore we will go after it with the methods that beat it here. That is, our first moves will be along educational lines. Then we will get a vote in smaller towns.

"Just as here, the voters in London, Paris and other big cities will at first concede we can carry a few of the smaller places but will argue the big cities will never go dry. But, remember, twenty years from now what I say today. The world is going dry."

LEARN THE ART OF SINGING— SAVE THIS ADV. VOICE CULTURE.

Voice culture is an asset that cannot be overestimated from a health standpoint alone. The deep breathing required makes red blood, quiets the nerves and gives correct poise to the body.

It requires only a little intelligent study, time and money to equip you to take your place as a singer.

By learning to use your breath correctly, you will be greatly gratified at the interest your audience will take in your singing. Your voice will be heard farther, the tones will be sweeter, and you will not fatigue, but will enjoy the singing as much as your friends.

It is our object to master all of the elements that are necessary for a singing artist to know, including diction, phrasing and interpretation and leadership. Only the best music is used. Not a song is learned that could not be used at a dignified concert.

I am giving a special rate in voice culture and singing for the summer. Voice tried free of charge, and will tell you frankly if it is worth your time and money to study.

I am especially interested in young people's voices and give a special rate to high school students or public school teachers.

We have monthly recitals for the benefit of the students, also a night singing class, to which students are admitted free. Daily lessons may be secured at reasonable tuition where home practice is inconvenient. Come and talk it over. You will not regret it, and it may mean much to you.

SAILOR SPENDS HIS SPARE TIME ON ART.

WITH WASTE COPPER AND BRASS MACHINIST MAKES MANY USEFUL VESSELS.

Modeling beautiful things from copper and brass scraps seems a far cry from the savage game of war and yet one of the war experts who recently visited this section with the fleet had such a hobby. N. W. Mackley, chief machinist's mate on the United States destroyer Sproston showed a collection of copper vessels which were worthy of the name artcraft indeed. Bowls, and ash trays, plates and cups, also a large coffee urn equipped with an electric percolator were among the things in his collection. A huge floor lamp seventy-two inches high was the piece Mr. Mackley was working on while the ship was in port here and showed promising lines.

The materials used were bits of scrap metal found around the engine room and the time was snatched from work and leisure hours. The coffee urn, for instance, was made from a piece of copper tubing without a seam in it, being pounded with a hammer into an attractive shape.

Mr. Mackley is an old seaman wearing three service stripes and will soon earn another, making six-teen years continuous service in the navy. During the recent war he was on a destroyer and made many trips across the Atlantic Ocean, traveling an estimated distance of 275,000 miles during the time that the troops were being taken to France. He has taken up this fad without instruction of any sort, solving the problems of heating and welding himself. A greater part of his work has been sent to various friends and relatives as remembrances and some of the most beautiful pieces were those made during the war while he was keeping the heart of the destroyer pumping in the mad dashes after submarines in the danger zone.

In a year or two Mr. Mackley says he will be able to retire from service and live on his income. Then he will devote all of his time to his hobby.

DROWNS IN SURF.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 31.—Caught in a sudden rip-tide, the furious whirling of which not only sucked him under but confused life guards as to his whereabouts, Frank Oral, a Japanese servant at the Ellison apartments, Venice, was drowned this afternoon far out in the ocean at the foot of Ozone avenue.

According to reports, Oral had been bathing for a half hour in water considerably beyond his depth. It is believed that he was exhausted when he signaled for help. Life Guards Kirby and Townsend reached him after several minutes struggle with heavy surf. He was snatched from their grasp, however, byt the rip-tide. Prolonged search by members of the force failed to discover the body this afternoon.

ADVENTISTS END TENT ASSEMBLY.

Farewell Service Conducted by Elder M. M. Hare.

Leaders Say Big Meeting an Unqualified Success.

Thousands of Campers Leave for Homes Today.

The farewell service of the big annual Seventh Day Adventist camp meeting, which has been in session at Western and Melrose avenues, Hollywood, was held last night, the speaker being Elder M. M. Hare of Los Angeles, president of the Southern California conference. His theme was "The New Earth." He said that not in some fanciful abode "beyond the bounds of time and space," but on this very earth, after the purifying fires of the last day have done their work, and God has beautified it, like Eden, with verdure, trees and flowers, will be the eternal home of the saved.

"The popular method of spiritualizing away the plain statements of the word of God is destroying the hope of millions in real life beyond the grave," the speaker said. "The future has been made vague and uncertain. But the Bible says God is going to make this world over again: Paradise will be restored and those who follow Christ will inherit the earth eternally. This is no dream. It is not even a theological theory. It is the plain statement of the Bible.

THE NEW CREATION.

"In the new earth will be no curse, no sorrow, no pain, no tears, no sickness. There will be no crape upon the doors of the new Jerusalem. The climate will be absolutely perfect. Read Revelations xxi and xxii, and Isaiah lxv, 17 to 25, if you would know what God says about that new land. When renovating fires go out and the curse of sin has been removed, as we read in Second Peter iii: 10, will be done, out of the ashes God will bring forth that new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. In that land the inhabitant shall not say 'I am sick,' in the joy of that new creation the sorrows and hardships of the present life will be forgotten, and all will unite in saying that 'heaven is cheap enough.'"

Elder J. W. Christian of Glendale, president of the Pacific Union Conference, spoke in the big tent yesterday afternoon on "The Sacrifice of Christ and the New Birth." He said Jesus converted does not change an individual's physical makeup, but despite the clamorings of the flesh for indulgence in many ways which are contrary to the law of God, the spiritual strength which Christ gives to the person whose heart is surrendered to Him enables that individual to deny these selfish clamorings, and to follow Christ.

YIELDING IS SIN.

"Temptation is not sin, but when a person yields to the temptation he commits sin, and the ultimate end of sin is death. The Christ who upon the cruel cross gave His perfect life to pay the penalty for your transgressions, invites you to give yourself to Him, to be God's man or God's woman, to follow in His steps, and at last to receive the overcomer's reward."

Saturday night Elder Elbridge Adams, who for years has been a missionary under the Seventh Day Adventist Foreign Mission Board, gave a stereopticon lecture on the Philippines, in the big canvas pavilion. He also exhibited many curios and showed the native dress of the islands.

The big meeting of the Adventists has been a success in every way. Not including the large sum invested in camp paraphernalia, President Hare announced the cost of the big gathering was more than $5000. Today the thousands of campers and visitors will return to their homes.

WALKS IN THE ROAD. IS KILLED BY AUTO.

COUPLE RETURNING FROM VISIT TO BEACH RUN DOWN WOMAN IN BLACK.

An unidentified woman of about 70 years, was instantly killed late last night when she was struck by an auto driven by Mrs. Frank Bellan of 202 North Grand avenue who, with her husband, was returning from the beach. At the corner of Thirteenth avenue and West Adams street the woman was observed walking in the middle of the road. Evidently blinded by the machine's headlight she stumbled directly into the path of the car, according to the statement of Mrs. Bellan to Detectives Shy and Hurt. The woman was placed in the Bellan machine and rushed to the Receiving Hospital where Dr. Dieterle pronounced her dead. After making a statement Mrs. Bellan was released.

No marks of identification were found on the dead woman. She was dressed entirely in black. In her purse was an unaddressed letter and several pressed rose leaves. The body was later transferred to the funeral chapel of Sutch Brothers.

POMONA A MECCA.

Many Knights of the Grip Make the Little City Their Home.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Aug. 31.—Pomona is rapidly becoming a center of residence for traveling salesmen making different districts in the Southland, according to C. P. Bayer of the Chamber of Commerce. During the last year many families in which the head of the house is a traveling salesman have moved to this city. They like it here as they consider it is a good place for the families to be while they are away and the school facilities especially appeal to them. The automobile is largely responsible for these new residents for with the use of the machine the men can come and go when they desire and the fact that they are away from their main offices in Los Angeles appears to make little difference.

DEATH TRYST ENDS ROMANCE IN OFFICE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Death ended suddenly yesterday the tryst of Charles W. Richards, vice-president of the D. W. Bosley Company, manufacturers of weather strips, and his stenographer, Miss Marie Meyers.

The woman shot the man in her rooms at 4220 West Adams street, it is believed, and then killed herself.

Their bodies were found late at night, that of Richards lying on the bed, a bullet hole in the back of the head, another under the right shoulder.

The woman—she was about 35—lay on the floor near-by, the bullet hole behind her right ear, the pistol a few inches from her outstretched hand.

Richards was married and lived at 3248 Washington boulevard, according to the police. He frequently visited Miss Meyers at her apartments, according to Capt. James Gleason of the Fillmore-street police station.

The "Book of Chicagoans" says Richards was born in 1865 and married Mary L. Blessing in Chicago on November 16, 1889. He became secretary of the Weather Strip Manufacturing Company in 1899 and was made vice-president in 1912. He was a Republican, a Thirty-second Degree Mason, a Shriner, a member of the Town and Country Club, and his recreation was motoring.

"The neighbors say he has frequently come to visit Miss Meyers," said Gleason, "and had taken her on numerous automobile trips."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The alimony club goes out of existence at midnight tonight and slacker husbands, immunized from alimony payments by a sojourn at the club, face jail prospects. An amendment to section 1773 of the code of civil procedure becomes effective at midnight and it provides that the husband who refuses to obey a supreme court order for alimony payment may have to spend his life in jail under successive contempt orders.

The alimony law as amended reads: "And where a judgment or order directs payment to be made in installments or at stated intervals the failure to make such single payment or installment may be punished and such punishment by fine or commitment, should not be a bar to subsequent proceedings to punish him as for a contempt for his failure to pay subsequent installments, but for such purpose he may be proceeded against under the said order in the same manner, and with the same effect as if such installment payment was directed to be paid by a separate and distinct order."

IRELAND TO BE STORM CENTE

British Politics Focusing Home Rule Issue.

Lloyd George Prepares to Statute Through.

American Interference to Complexity.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Christmas Ireland is certain to the new storm center of Brit politics.

The Home Rule bill now on statute books goes into force automatically at the end of the war; only question is when the war officially comes to an end. Consequent agitation in the United States is a pleasant and recent debates during Irish freedom in the Paris ment of Australia are viewed disturbing. The French press printing many articles sympathizing with the unhappy position of land. A solid chorus of the immediately influential liberal party in Britain demands a permanent settlement of the Irish ques Whether England likes it or Ireland has become the most pressing international question the world.

Certain things have recently happened which seem to make possible the conclusion that Premier Lloyd George has decided make the Irish settlement his fighting ground.

SOLDIERS GO TO ULSTER.

This morning the London Times printed an obscure statement that two battalions of a Welsh regiment of regular soldiers had been sent to Ulster. It was also announced that 16,000 more troops would be sent to Ulster at once. There are plenty of soldiers in Ulster already. The last time I heard definitely there were 80,000 English troops in Ireland. The new detachments would bring the total up to 100,000. When they arrive there will certainly be more than 30,000 in Ulster. Is this great concentration of military in Ulster?

Why, unless the government has decided to accept the claims which Sir Edward Carson has thrown down, and is about to let Home Rule down the throats of the Belfast rebels? Evidently this and his followers have either prior information of the government's intention or else have read the handwriting on the wall. Months ago Sir Edward held a series of meetings in Belfast at which he denounced unionist clubs would be organized and a Belfast volunteer army to fight home rule in the reorganized.

CARSON AN AGITATOR.

I wonder how many people at home know that Carson is an Ulster man at all. He was a young lawyer in Dublin when the latter men picked him out as a man to lead their fighting forces. Carson began fighting the Tipperary riots have occurred. The really difficult annual fights between Orangemen and Catholics, but this year they were especially severe, the interference of the military to suppress a Catholic procession revealed a sensation. The troops were commanded by Gen. Hackett Pain.

In 1913 Hackett Pain resigned from the British army. The following year, when Sir Edward Carson organized his force of Ulster rebels to prevent home rule being put into force, Gen. Paine became his chief of staff, his real military leader. What farce, then—declared the papers—to put him in command of British troops charged with the duty of keeping peace between Carson and the Sinn Fein.

Evidently Gen. Paine's appointment was made without the knowledge of the heads of the government. At any rate, when Secretary of War Churchill was asked why Gen. Paine in Parliament he replied not many weeks ago, that Paine was on the retired list and was not holding any present command.

Gen. Paine's appointment will probably made as a mere matter of military routine, but the fact remains that Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, his immediate superior, and one of the so-called "Curragh mutineers." British officers who refused to force home rule on Ulster before the war.

INFLUENTIAL BACKING.

That Sir Edward Carson is still influential in the government is indicated by the fact that Lord Birkenhead, who was a Carson adherent, camp, or galloher, in the British army, is now Lord Chancellor of England, and that Bonar Law, leader in the House of Commons, is an Ulster man, though he happened to be born in Nova Scotia.

On September 16 Sir Edward Carson has called a great rally of the old Ulster army at Belfast. It is announced, tens of thousands of volunteers will renew the old pledge of the covenant, pledging themselves to die rather than permit any part of home rule. It also is stated that no show of concealment that the Ulster volunteers still have the thousands of rifles stored away for use. How many—if any—of these weapons came from Germany is a question.

Meanwhile, there is another move which points strongly toward the determination of the Lloyd George government to force a settlement of the Irish question or demand a new election of a new Parliament which will enforce it.

Sir Edward Grey, Liberal statesman and friend of Ireland, has accepted a temporary appoint

That Sir Edward Carson is influential in the government is dicated by the fact that Lord Birk enhead, who was a Carson aide-camp, or galloher, in the Ul army, is now Lord Chancellor England, and that Bonar Law, le er in the House of Commons, is Ulster man, though he happened be born in Nova Scotia.

BROUGHER TO RESIGN IF BAPTIST CHURCHES JOIN.

Pastor, Back from Overseas, Favors Union of First and Temple Congregations Under Francis.

That Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher, who made a sensational appearance with his family before 2000 people at Temple Baptist Church yesterday, is in favor of the uniting of the First Baptist and Temple Baptist churches, that he refuses to become a candidate for pastor of the combined congregations and that he hopes the membership will call Dr. James Allen Francis, was the information given to The Times yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Brougher's appearance before the big congregation yesterday constituted a great surprise. Following the sermon by Dr. Brougher's son, Rev. Russell Morse Brougher, who will leave Los Angeles next Wednesday to take up the study of theology in a New York seminary, B. E. Bassford, president of the Temple Men's Club, stepped on the platform and announced a reception to be given Dr. Brougher next Sunday morning. Mr. Bassford also announced an informal reception for Friday night, September 7, in Bethlehem Hall. As the speaker retired, Rev. Henry Miles Cook stepped forward and informed the audience that, although Dr. Brougher was expected to arrive this morning, the uncertainty of travel had necessitated a change in the programme. "However," continued Mr. Cook, "it gives me pleasure to announce that Dr. Brougher is already here."

GREAT WELCOME.

At this juncture Dr. Brougher, dressed in military uniform, stepped on the platform from a side entrance and beamed upon the astounded audience. For a few seconds there was an intense silence, and then followed a great outburst of applause.

"Yes, I'm here," smiled Dr. Brougher, "and so is the rest of my family." At that moment Mrs. Brougher, her daughters, Miss Corinne Morse Brougher and Mrs. Isabel Brougher Saint, together with James Whitcomb Brougher, Jr., stood up in the box to the left of the platform and the people gave them an equally vigorous welcome.

"I need not tell you," began Dr. Brougher, "that I am the happiest man in America. No one but the soldier boy who has been overseas can fully understand the significance of my joy. After six months overseas, mingling with peoples of strange tongues, eating meats of uncertain origin and various dishes of mysterious compound, drinking water that was not considered as healthful as beer and wine, and being compelled to be away more than 6000 miles from the folks you love, it is just like coming to life again to get back into America. Best of all is the delight of looking once again into the faces of the people I love.

"In a double series of sermons which I will begin next Sunday I shall tell you about my experiences overseas as a special speaker for the international Y.M.C.A. Next Sunday morning I shall speak on 'The Superman — Did I Find Him in France or Germany?' and Sunday night I shall speak on 'A Tenderfoot Abroad.'

"For more than two months I spoke every afternoon and night in the camps of France and for two months I was with the Army of Occupation in Germany. Between my speaking engagements I found time to visit many of the notable battlefields in France and Belgium. I went up and down the Rhine by steamer, and by automobile from Cologne to Weisbaden, and one of the most thrilling experiences was an hour's flight over the Rhine and surrounding territory. I believe I shall have something to say that will interest all of you. In the meantime I shall be at my home, 1331 West Fourth street, or in my office in this building—that is, after Labor Day.

"I arrived in New York nearly a month ago, having crossed the briny in a steerage. After recuperating from the unpleasant voyage I went at once to Gearhart, Or., and spent three weeks with my family, and then came south to my big family whose home is the Temple Baptist Church. I want to assure you that I have spent my money, my energy and time in the last six months in the most valuable services it has ever been my privilege to render, yet I am more happy to be back again than language can express."

GREET THEIR PASTOR.

Following the services, Dr. Brougher and his family gathered in the lobby near the doorway and the personal greetings began. The congregation was nearly half an hour getting out of the church and there were few men in the audience that did not shake their pastor by the hand. As for the women, they laughed or wept or did both at once, according to their temperament, many throwing their arms around Dr. Brougher as if he had been a long-lost brother.

Later Dr. Brougher made a statement concerning his future relations with the Temple Baptist Church, as it has been rumored that he is considering a call to a New York church. A statement printed in The Times recently, concerning the merging of the Temple and First Baptist churches, was shown Dr. Brougher and, in answer to the from the folks you love, it is just question, "Have you received a call to an eastern church?" Dr. Brougher replied:

"No, I have not received a call to any church East or West. I promised my people, before I left, that I would not consider a call to any church while I was away from them. I have kept that promise, both in letter and spirit.

"I have told churches wanting to call me that I was under obligations to Temple Baptist Church to stay with it until its future permanence was assured. Up to this present minute I have made no promises or arrangements of any kind whatsoever to leave Temple Church."

FAVORS MERGER.

"Are you in favor of the merging of Temple Baptist Church and First Baptist Church?" was asked.

"For more than five years I have advocated, publicly and privately, the importance of having only one downtown Baptist Church," he replied. "About nine months ago, at my suggestion, the Southern California Baptist Convention Board appointed a commission to consider the whole question of downtown Baptist work in Los Angeles. My own efforts in trying to get a permanent home for Temple Baptist Church taught me that the following fact must be considered: First, Temple Baptist Church is doing a unique and wonderfully successful downtown work. Its name in this regard has become famous all over the United States. Naturally the people of Temple Church think it best for them to remain downtown and continue their work. At the same time the Temple congregation is not unanimous in its desire to own the Temple Auditorium. If Temple Church does not purchase the auditorium as its future home, then it must move sooner or later to another location. If it remains downtown, this will put it much nearer the First Baptist Church than it is now. In these days when we are trying to unite Christian forces and not overlap in our work, such a move would not seem to be a wise one.

OWNS ITS PROPERTY.

"Second, the First Baptist Church owns the property where it is situated and is doing a splendid work. The congregation naturally does not want to leave that location. But if both churches are to remain downtown, and if the Baptists are going to have only one great church in the center of the city, it is quite evident that the only thing that can be done is to unite the two churches. Up to date it has been impossible to arrange for just one downtown Baptist Church in any other way. As the last resort, therefore, I have favored the union of these two strong churches. Consequently, when I left for Europe I not only urged the committee to endeavor to bring it about, but I wrote a letter to Dr. Francis and to some of the Baptist laymen, expressing the hope that such a union might be consummated if it could be done happily and satisfactorily to the great majority of the members of both churches. It was with the idea of further cultivating the cordial relationships between the two churches that the pastor and deacons of Temple Church invited the First Church congregation and Dr. Francis to combine the Sunday evening services during July and August. I am told this combination has worked well. The two choirs have sung together delightfully, and the two congregations have worshiped together most happily."

WHO WILL BE PASTOR?

Dr. Brougher was asked if the union of these two churches was effected, who would be the pastor of the united church? He smiled and said:

"I don't know. I have told the Temple committee that I am not to be considered, under any circumstance, as a candidate for the position. I hope the combined churches will call Dr. Francis. The church cannot have two pastors. Either both pastors will have to resign and let the united church call some one else as their leader or one of us will have to resign and let the other take the pastorate. I have stated publicly, on several occasions, that I was willing to make the sacrifice and step aside in order to bring about the desired result. If Temple Church votes to unite with the First Church, I shall resign as pastor of Temple Church

GENERAL STRIKE SET FOR TODAY IS DISCOURAGED.

Indications Are That Few Crafts, if Any Will Answer Call—Failures In the Past are Responsible.

Developments of the past few days, notably the collapse of the steam railway strike and the failure of the Pacific Electric and Los Angeles Railway walkouts, have raised grave doubts in the minds of local union labor chiefs as to the feasibility of the projected general strike scheduled for Los Angeles and originally slated to begin today. This strike was voted on at the Labor Temple ten days ago, and decided upon, with the understanding that the American Federation of Labor would back it, and that President Gompers would come West to direct it in person.

The temper of the community, as shown during the recent steam and electric line strikes, has given pause to the scheme. The failure of every strike ordered in Los Angeles this year augurs poorly for the success of this final grand effort to unionize the city. In it the unionites counted heavily upon the moral support of striking brotherhood men on the railways and strikes successfully progressing on the electric lines. The collapse of both these hopes was a serious blow to the plan.

Indications multiply that the "general walkout" will be confined to a few crafts, if it materializes at all. The journeymen tailors went out Saturday. The builders have indicated that they may strike tomorrow, in which case their employers state that they will merely suspend operations till the men are ready to go to work again.

DON'T WANT STRIKE.

The electricians of the Southern California Edison Company and the electrical workers of the Southern California Telephone Company are not anxious to strike, and the telephone operators are said to be absolutely opposed to it. Their union is short of money, and the girls are satisfied with their jobs.

Local carpenters, who lost a strike eighteen months ago, have demanded an increase from $6.50 to $7 a day for eight hours. Their ultimatum has already been served upon the Master Builders, and answered. The sheet metal workers are out with a demand for $7 a day for eight hours, with closed-shop conditions. Unless this is granted, they say, they will strike at once. They are now drawing a sliding scale, which ranges well above $6, it is said.

The union teamsters, who have been organized during the past ten months, are preparing a new schedule, which they expect to submit to their employers during the next ten days. Mike Casey, the celebrated San Francisco teamsters' strike leader, is reported to be on his way here for the purpose of persuading the teamsters not to strike. He is said to be hopeful of gaining a few points in conference with employers.

At union headquarters yesterday it was reported that "Curly" Grow, business agent of the Machinists' Union, went before the striking street railway men on Wednesday and strongly urged them to return to work, pointing out that unless they did so the union would be wrecked and that all the ground gained by various local unions within the past five years would be lost.

PARADE TODAY.

Something of the future programme of the laborites in this city will be decided by the showing they are able to make in the Labor Day parade today, the first one to be held in this city in some years. The parade will form on Grand avenue south of Seventh street, and will move east on Seventh to Broadway, north to First, east to Spring, south to Eighth and disband. John S. Horn is grand marshal. Women's organizations will lead the six divisions.

Following the parade, a picnic will be held by the union members at Selig Park Zoo. There will be a programme of sports, dancing and various other amusements. The Mayor will make a speech and touch a match to the second mortgage on the Labor Temple. Boyle Workman, president of the City Council, is also on the programme.

NO CARS IN PARADE ZONE.

Owing to the almost complete suspension of business today the Los Angeles Railway will not run cars on the downtown streets where the parade takes place while it is in progress. Instead it will turn all cars back at a point one or two blocks from the parade district.

After the parade normal service will be resumed, except that no cars on the Grand avenue line will be run over the North Main street strip of track, nor southbound on the Maple avenue line during the day. Night service on all city street car lines will be suspended at 7:30 in the evening.

Officials of the Los Angeles and the Pacific Electric Railways were in conference for several hours yesterday afternoon relative to the resumption of night service on both lines. At the conclusion of the discussion it was stated that no official announcement could be made before Tuesday, but that the outlook for an early resumption of night runs is good.

Pacific Electric officials declared yesterday afternoon that shipments of beets to Southern California sugar factories and consignments of fresh fruit to canning factories and perishables to markets in this vicinity are moving without interruption and that the pulse of commerce is again throbbing normally.

The steam railroad officials say that aside from a little difference of opinion regarding the handling of Pacific Electric transfer freight on Saturday, everything has been going along smoothly since operations were resumed Saturday morning. Transfer freight is now being handled.

J. H. Dyer, general manager of the Southern Pacific Railway, left on the Shore Line Limited yesterday morning for San Francisco after having supervised the clearing up of the local freight congestion which was a result of the recent walkout of steam line trainmen.

It was reported last night that many trains of staple food products had been dispatched to Arizona and New Mexico towns, and that fruit shipments from the San Joaquin Valley will now receive the earnest attention of the fast freight service. It is expected that fruit and vegetable shipment from all parts of the State will reach the Los Angeles Terminal in time for the opening of the market tomorrow morning.

George K. Wark, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Firemen, was in the city yesterday, conferring with M. E. Montgomery, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and A. F. Whitney, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. The three brotherhood officials met for a short time yesterday at the Hotel Alexandria and then absented themselves from the hotel for the remainder of the day. F. F. McDowell, Pacific Coast chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said no meetings were held yesterday and that no important conferences were being held. He stated that Mr. Wark came down from San Francisco, Saturday, to talk things over with the other brotherhood vice-presidents, but that no significance was attached to their meeting.

SCHOOL CHIEF RESIGNS POST.

Shiels Asks to be Relieved by November First.

Says His Relations with the Board Most Harmonious.

Wants to Complete Books and Must go East to Study.

Dr. Albert Shiels, superintendent of the city schools, has resigned. His resignation is to take effect November 1 at the latest. In his letter, which will be presented to the Board of Education this afternoon, the reason given by Dr. Shiels for quitting his post before the expiration of his contract next June is that he desires to do some writing and must do some reading, which present conditions forbid, all his time being taken up by his duties as superintendent. It is said he wishes to complete certain books on sociology.

Dr. Shiels was elected superintendent of schools in 1916. He was brought here by the Board of Education from New York, where he had been head of the department of reference and research in the public schools. While in Los Angeles he instituted many innovations and it is said that the city schools rank the highest of any in the country.

In the opinion of several members of the Board of Education the resignation of Dr. Shiels will not be accepted without a serious effort to get him to reconsider it.

In his statement Dr. Shiels says his association with the board has been very pleasant. He declares that the greatest harmony has prevailed between every member and himself. He speaks with the highest regard of the staff at the superintendent's office.

ORGANIZED FOR WORK.

"At the present time the school system is organized for work," reads the letter. "Various new activities in education are well started and need only to be extended. A census will be necessary in October and plans for its organization are under way. I shall submit to the board a very full and detailed statement of our physical needs in grounds and buildings."

The text of his letter of resignation follows:

"In confirmation of oral conversations in the past, I wish to discuss with you the matter of my resignation as Superintendent of the Schools of the Los Angeles City School District.

"My service in our city has been replete with pleasant experiences. My association with the members of the supervisory and teaching force has been particularly happy. From all the members of the past and present Board of Education I have received nothing but courtesy and consideration. If, therefore, I contemplated continuing as a superintendent of schools, I could imagine nothing more delightful than to be associated with all of you.

DESIRES TO WRITE.

"On the other hand, I have felt for a long time that I should like to be relieved from the details involved in the administration of this great school system. A man has only so many years to live, and it is natural that he would wish to complete certain work that he feels of importance during the period of life that may be allowed him. The demands of this position are insistent, and as you are aware, they take all the incumbent's time, not only during the usual school hours but during evenings and holidays. I desire to do some writing and I must do some reading in my profession—which present conditions forbid.

"I appreciate fully the very kind expressions as to my work, from various members of the Board of Education as well as from the members of the supervisory and teaching force. As it has been my good fortune to make many happy friendships in Los Angeles, I shall expect eventually to make my home here in Southern California. In the interim, however, I shall go East, in order to have a share in the work which was initiated there under my direction a year ago, as well as to pursue certain studies in educational and social activities.

"I should be glad to be relieved at the earliest possible time, and I should like to conclude my official relations with the Board of Education November 1, 1919.

"At the present time the school system is organized for work. Various new activities in education are well started and need only to be extended. A census will be necessary in October and plans for its organization are under way. I shall submit to the board a very full and detailed statement of our physical needs in grounds and buildings. The work in the administration of a school system is never complete in itself. It is always susceptible to modification and extension. So far, however, as that is possible, I think it may be stated that at this time the public schools of the Los Angeles city school district are well adapted to continue the work laid out for them.

LOYAL SUPPORT.

"May I add one word more. No one can appreciate as I do the loyal unselfish service and support of the deputy and assistant superintendents' corps. You have all doubtless had occasion to note some of the excellent things done by them, but no one can know them so well as I. Also, might I add a word of especial commendation of the clerical force attached to the superintendent's office? Since its reorganization I have not had a single word of complaint, from any person in the city, showing that any member thereof has been lacking in courtesy and consideration to visitors. From the chief clerk to the latest addition to the corps, there has been a constant disposition to do work at any time and under any circumstances. They are people who are not interested in the clock. Whenever there is something to do they will do it gladly, because they consider the work adds to the efficiency of the school administration.

"There is always a disposition to attribute a great deal of credit to the head of a large organization. Most people forget that whatever he accomplishes would not be possible unless it were through the loyal cooperation of those others who, because they occupy a less prominent place, are apt to be forgotten. I feel very deeply the debt I owe to the members of the staff employed in this office.

"Permit me to express to you personally my sincere appreciation of courtesies you have extended and to tell you that I trust in the future I may have the pleasant experience of renewing our relations under unofficial conditions."

CAME FROM NEW YORK.

Dr. Shiels made his way up from the teaching ranks in New York, having been made district superintendent some years ago and later he was raised to the position of one of the seven advisory superintendents of one of the New York city schools.

He is a man in the prime of life, conservative yet thoroughly in sympathy with the methods employed in the local schools system. He was educated in the New York public schools and received his degree of A.B. in 1912. After three years' service as cashier of the Panama Railroad in Panama he returned to New York. He was the first principal employed in the New York schools after they were chosen by competitive examination.

After six years as principal he was appointed District Superintendent of Schools serving the populous lower East Side district in the lower half

STRIKERS ARE LOCKED OUT.

Merchant Tailors Refuse to Meet the Demands of Employees.

With between 700 and 900 tailors on strike, members of the Los Angeles Merchant Tailors' Exchange have locked their doors, with the determination that they will make no attempt to do business while the strike is in progress. The situation is that a lockout has followed a walkout.

The exchange yesterday learned that the tailors in San Francisco are planning to walk out today, and it is believed that there will be other walkouts at Portland and Seattle. The local merchant tailors are planning to send a delegation of representatives to San Francisco to attend a conference of Pacific Coast merchant tailors Wednesday. At this meeting ways and means of settling the strike for the whole Coast will be discussed.

HEROIC FAMILY NEAR REUNION.

Christopher's Sons and Wife to Come from France.

All Three Youths Decorated for Gallantry in War.

Household Scattered During the Past Ten Years.

A reunion of the members of his family, who through the exigencies of war and other circumstances have been separated for the past ten years, is the cherished hope of A. D. Christopher of Venice, a brother of L. J. Christopher, prominent business man of this city. Three of Mr. Christopher's sons, two of whom formerly lived here, have won honors in the service of France, their native land, and now that this service is practically completed Mr. Christopher is looking forward to having his sons come to Los Angeles, bringing with them their mother, who has been residing in Paris.

Few families have had more to do with the making of history. Mr. Christopher's father was in the army of Napoleon; he himself fought in the Franco-Prussian war, and at the outbreak of the recent European war, both his elder sons immediately joined the colors, Henry Christopher, the second oldest, was in France. As soon as the news of the German invasion reached Paris he reported to his regiment. He was among the first sent to the front, fighting in the battle of the Marne, where the tide of Teutonic troops was brought to their first halt.

Emile Christopher, who at that time was assistant cashier of the International Savings Bank, in charge of the foreign department, was the second to enter the lists. He sailed for Europe just a few weeks after his brother had become a part of the conflict. He was in the early battles of the fall of 1914. For several months he did not get a chance to meet his brother. Then one day, in the midst of an attack, they came face to face with each other in the trenches. For several months they were in the same sector and were relieved at the same time. Both brothers recall this as one of their happiest experiences of the war.

Both Emile and Henry Christopher were members of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and made many friends during their sojourn in Los Angeles.

THIRD IN SERVICE.

The youngest brother, Robert, has never been to California. At the outbreak of the war he was completing his education in Paris, his mother having remained with him until he should have finished his schooling. Eighteen months after Emile and Henry had gotten their first taste of life in the trenches, Robert was called to service. However, it is doubtful whether during their longer period the

The People and Their Troubles

Beware, Men! London's Famous Vampire Here

BY JANE DIXON.

"The American husband is the finest husband in the world. He is the most generous, the most attractive, the most admiring and admirable.

JANE DIXON

"The American woman is a queen. To appreciate the height of the pedestal on which the American man has placed her she must travel. She must compare her own position with that of her sisters in other lands. Only then will she realize her good fortune.

"My people of New Zealand love America and Americans. They have a broad sympathy with a kindred feeling for the great, free country. To be an American in New Zealand is to be a personage of importance.

"I would like to come to America to live. Why? Because I believe it offers wider opportunities in art and progress, richer fields for success and happiness than any other land on the civilized globe.

"The moving picture industry in England today is where it was in the States years ago. We are still in the shoddy stage.

"An English stage artist who has descended to the cinema feels like a pianist turned bricklayer.

"We have no Mary Pickfords in England, no Charlie Chaplins nor Douglas Fairbanks. The British public gets most of its thrills and laughs through the American camera.

"What impresses me most over here? Well—I should say your marvelous canteloupes. They are truly wonderful, those canteloupes. A land that can produce such melons should live forever—and will. EVE BALFOUR."

London's Theda Bara has come to town."

That is—she is not exactly in town, as it were, but she is hovering right where she can place her two feet on the sacred soil the minute the cameraman gets through grinding.

She is not here to do any private or personal English vamping, y'understand, though she has been busy registering the "come hither" look for the little glass eye in the film box. That, however, is all in a day's screening.

Miss Eve Balfour is spending a few exciting days on the peaceful bosom of the Hudson, while painted yellow gentlemen with handmade slant eyes pursue her in quest of "the papers."

These papers, according to the plot of the play, are a secret treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

Eve has them, but she isn't twelve-sheeting the fact to the slant eyed yellowish gentlemen.

The chances are these villains would have tied her to the top of a well-weighted gunnysack and tossed her into the river long ago were it not for the quick wit and strong right arm of the handsome hero, Mr. A. B. Immeson, likewise of London and the cinema.

Mr. Immeson is the greatest little roller that ever balked the machinations of a deep-dyed screen "heavy." He fools them, mustache or no mustache. He saves the life of the heckled heroine at least seventeen times a day.

Miss Balfour was waiting to be saved the other day when I found my way aboard the good ship Lapland, scene of all these darksome plots and daring deeds.

WHAT SHE WAS LIKE.

I must confess to considerable curiosity as to what an English vampire would be like.

You know, old dear, they might have blond hair or blue eyes or something equally extraordinary, what? One never knows about vampires. Such bally uncertain creatures, aren't they, now?

An English vampire, old fellow, looks exactly like an American vampire, only more so.

Miss Balfour could walk right into any Fort Lee studio tomorrow and begin vamping in the good old American way. Her looks and methods are identically the same as those of the feline creatures who scratch and purr their way through prize Los Angeles output.

London's pet vampire is tall and slender. Her bobbed black hair riots thunderously about her pale olive face. There are mysterious lights in the depths of her great dark eyes. The lips of her full mouth are scarlet splashes, sensitive in repose, sensuous in screen action.

And she wore the loveliest vampire garment—Miss Balfour, I will always thank her for that garment. It was so beautifully "in the picture." It fitted the part like a No. 5 glove fits a No. 5 hand. It was a long, loose blouse affair of crimson, with waving fringes and glinting Oriental embroideries. Becoming? My word! Can you ask?

I can't for the life of me tell you about the other garment worn with the vamping blouse. I never progressed beyond the crimson. It fascinated me.

And a weird Egytian trinket suspended around the neck by a heavy silver chain. Green it was, with odd blues and sultry yellows.

Also a queer blue scarab from the banks of the Nile, built into a ring for some potentate of the pyramids four thousand years ago, now starting strangely from the slender olive finger of a New Zealand-Great Britain queen of the movies.

Small wonder London throws its shillings into the till and tells the man up in the gallery to turn the crank.

Who wouldn't, with an unusual young lady like Miss Eve Balfour to siren herself through seven reels.

DISLIKES HER ROLE.

"I suppose I am like every other vampire," smiled this vivid English version. "I dislike the role very much. It would be more agreeable to do the right thing, the good and beautiful thing, even in make believe.

"And you know I'm not a bit of a siren in real life. I'm just the quietest sort of a person. Not at all interested in luring men to destruction, really. I spend a great many of my spare hours studying psychology and psychic phenomena.

"I'm very psychic, have been so since childhood. It used to worry mother and father, this gift of—I suppose you would call it divination.

"As a little girl I often cried out because I saw strange figures like those on an Egyptian frieze passing before my eyes. In later years these figures resolved into one, that of a tall Egyptian, who often stood by my chair or appeared back of me when I was looking into a mirror.

"Once in a station in Scotland an old lady followed me on to the train. She said she had seen an Egyptian from the psychic world at my side and a wonderful light about my head. She was psychic, too. I had never seen the woman before, and I am quite sure she had never seen or even heard of me.

"Many tell me I am the reincarnation of an Egyptian maiden. I do know that when I passed through Egypt I seemed to know the country. Everything was familiar to me, the scenery, the people, the customs. I felt more at home than I do in London. I am a New Zealander, you see, and London is only my adopted home.

"All England is awake to the study, the possible influence of the psychic. I believe it will be the big force of the future.

"One of the women aboard heard I had vision and asked me to read from a ring she placed in my palm. I obliged her. From that moment on I was besieged. I do not like to use the power this way. I shall never do it again. I believe we weaken it by forcing vision.

"In London I was annoyed for a time by a circle which dealt with black magic. These parasitic creatures use persons with psychic powers to hypnotize helpless victims. Often they use you without your knowing that evil is being done. The ring is broken up now, thanks to the police."

Miss Balfour gazed into some far land of wraiths and dreams. Will o' the wisps danced wanton light steps in the clear pools of her twilight eyes.

Black magic? Vampires? Creepy music and a handy exit please!

"How do you like the States?" I asked. It seemed like a pretty safe question, and, besides, we always speak of them as "the States" in jolly old London.

"Like them? I adore them." The lights were doing a regular fandango now. "I'm going to try to come back here and live. Such opportunities for the artist! Such opportunities for every one with ambitions and the courage of them!

AMERICAN WOMEN FORTUNATE

"I have a young brother, a New Zealander. He was four years in the war. I wrote him to come to London and stay with me for a while. 'I'll meet you in the States,' he answered. 'America for me.'

"The women here—how fortunate they are! American men make queens of their women. They live and let live. A girl here has every privilege, every encouragement to develop in any direction she desires. She is a free agent. She is respected no matter what her walk in life. As a wife she demands and receives the homage, the attention, the devotion of her husband. She is not a chattel; she is a queen.

"Tell your women, please, they are born under lucky stars—and stripes."

I inquired concerning movie madness in London—if it was raging as in the U. S. A., if cinema players were topping bank presidents and steel magnates, and if it was true Charlie Chaplin was negotiating for the King's yacht.

"Your American favorites are English household words," was the assurance. "We have American pictures almost entirely. You have made of photoplays a high art. Your Mr. Griffith, the director, is a master. There is no one to touch him in England.

"With us the industry has been purely a money-making machine. Get everything and spend nothing is the working basis. Artistry is not considered.

"Only lately some of our artists and students of composition have become interested in the cinema and its possibilities. That gives us hope. We may make rapid strides in the next few years. But we must wear seven-league boots to catch up with the States.

"Our boys like your picturizations of Western life, or the 'Wild West' as we call it. England has no thrillers for her boys, although there are India, Canada, Australia and any number of virgin picturesque colonies to depict.

"Pauline Frederick is a great favorite in London. So are Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin.

"I was playing with Sir Herbert Tree when they came to me about the cinema. I thought then it must be a dreadful thing, but the offer was so attractive I decided to try it.

PROUD OF HER ART.

"My first play was 'Five Night,' the Victoria Cross story. It was daring. It created a furore in London. There was everything from stampedes to magistrates, courts and police interference. 'Five Nights' played in five West End theatres at the same time.

"After this startling success I was firmly fixed as a cinema player. The best of it is I have come to care for my work, to believe in the screen as a medium of fine art and higher education. I am a true temple maid of the camera and proud of it."

What more eulogy of films might have been spoken I will never know because at this point Mr. Harry Lorraine, of the Lorraine Productions Company, London, England, sent a messenger to inform his leading vampire luncheon was being served in the dining room below.

We descended. There were no cups of red, red wine, no dishes of strange savor, no spices nor condiment nor capers, no siren food of any sort.

Miss Eve Balfour, the Theda Bara of England, vamped a perfectly good American apple dumpling with cream and finished off with cantaloupe.

OPEN LETTER TO THE GOVERNOR.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30, 1919.
Hon. William D. Stephens,
Governor of the State of California, Sacramento, Cal.
My dear Governor:

As a member of the Assembly from the Seventy-first District, which district is composed largely of people of moderate means, and upon whom the present high cost of living has fallen so heavily as to become almost unbearable, I write requesting you to call the Legislature in extraordinary session, for the purpose of enacting legislation, that will afford the people of this State such relief as obtains within the power of the State government to render.

The acute and unprecedented labor situation, in the last analysis, in my opinion, is due to profiteering in food supplies, and other necessaries of life.

There is no statute of this State under which this profiteering may be prosecuted or prevented, except the so-called "Cartwright Anti-Trust Law" and this law is practically a dead letter.

The State government can take cognizance of a number of conditions which make profiteering possible; for example, unrestricted cold storage of food supplies, and the State Market Act, by which the money and power of our State is actually employed to build up a monopoly of food products and combinations in restraint of trade.

As a method of remedying abuses arising from too long storage of food supplies, a law might be enacted requiring everyone putting food in storage to obtain a license from properly constituted authorities, such license being limited to ninety days with renewal privilege of not more than ninety days, if good cause be shown therefor, and if not used or disposed of within the license period, the food must be confiscated and sold by the State.

In this way, the State would have a record of all the storage food on hand, and thereby prevent any hoarding of food for higher prices.

Another State law needed at present is one making it a crime to destroy food products in order to keep up the prices, which practice is now prevalent.

It is the duty of the legislative department of the State to enact laws to remedy these evils, and the duty of the executive branch to see that they are put into execution; should the State fail, there is grave danger of the people taking matters into their own hands without regard to law and order.

A recent statement in the press purports to be a communication from the Attorney-General of this State to you in which he states the subject of the high cost of living should be left to the Federal government to deal with. Assuming that the learned Attorney-General has been correctly quoted, I take issue with him both on the law and policy. The State has the jurisdiction, and should exercise it to enact beneficial and remedial legislation in this crisis and unless the State government has quit functioning it should be done at once.

Respectfully,
HENRY E. CARTER.

Can't Forget.

OAKLAND, Aug. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I think those that do not know or understand, are quite too ready to forgive and forget "the crime of the century."

President Wilson may sign the peace pact any day and the war will be officially over, but it will be a long time before we can forget what Germany has done and tried to do—"if indeed we can ever do so."

I shall never forget "my only son was killed by these infernal huns" who set the world aflame by their ambitions, and I tell you frankly, though I am a good American and try to be reasonable, I'll never have a man with a German name in my house or store. No matter how deserving he might be, I could never forget that he belonged to the race that murdered my son.

I think they ought to all change their names, if they pretend to be good citizens. If they stay in America let them be Americans. I say we ought to wipe out everything that smells German. Now, may be you'll think I am a crank, but I guess you'll find a lot more like me. My boy was the same kind of a crank and he died to prove it.

This is not the time for any delicacy any more than it was a year ago, when our lads were being slaughtered. It's a very dangerous period for, believe me, I would not trust a German across the street in peace or war!

Use Upper Floors.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Regarding the immediate future of the "north end" of town it seems to me that the property owners there are overlooking a great opportunity in not turning the upper floors of the many vacant blocks in that locality into first-class flats and apartments. There are scores of well-constructed buildings, idle except as to the ground frontage, that with moderate expenditure could be quickly and readily remodelled into modern up-to-the-minute living apartments, for which at this time there is a pressing and growing demand.

A Formula.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is no need to be amazed at the unwarranted obliteness of the railroad strike when their conduct is viewed in the light of the following formula:

"Pumpuritanicalsinism — Prohibition equals Bolshevism — Insanity."

CECIL E. REYNOLDS.

Shoes.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The following is a fact. A resident of Los Angeles passing a shoe store on one of the principal streets saw in the window a pair of shoes of a certain make. Upon entering and inquiring the price he was told it was $16. "It will be a long time before I pay $16 for a pair of shoes," said he. "Oh, no," smilingly replied the salesman, "We have just had a raise from the boss and he said to raise the price of every pair of shoes in the house from $3 to $2.50."

Now here is one of your patriots, but would it do any good to report him? Would he not in all probability deny the truth of the statement? And would he not go on to tell how the manufacturer had notified him of their inability to sell his last order except at an advance in price? And would not the manufacturer in turn tell you that the packers had warehouses fairly bursting with hides, but that they could get unlimited quantity at the old price? And the packers will pass the buck along to the live-stock men.

But to return to our profiteer, because he expects to have to pay more for the next lot of shoes he raises the price of his present stock and practically doubles his profits, and what are you going to do about it? Where is the authority that can go into this man's place of business, examine his invoices, ascertain what his expenses are and fix a price on dozens of different styles of footwear?

A great many people are undoubtedly too close to see the "vision," but it would be well for some men at times to pause and put their ideals to paums and put their feet on the ground and listen.

Two Orange Growers

Their groves adjoined. One developed his grove scientifically—studied each tree individually—supplied the proper chemicals to the soil to meet each condition that arose.

The other merely fertilized, irrigated and cultivated. Unlike his neighbor he was not a student of scientific culture. He could never understand why his neighbor had so much bigger crops and finer fruit than he had.

The same principle applies in bread making. It is only by scientific processing such as is employed in the production of that the gluten in the wheat can be developed to its highest food value—and food value is bread value.

When you buy "Bradford's" bread you get what you really pay for—food value—not just filler. For this reason "Bradfords" is more economical than ordinary bread, and you really benefit by eating it.

THE SPINSTER REVOLTS.

BY CAPT. LESLIE T. PEACOCKE.

I'm a staid old maid—I'm 31—and never have been kissed,
Regretting what I might have done and all that I have missed.
I did what mother told me and what father counceled, too,
And I've tried to do to others as you would they'd do to you.
My life's been regulated so I've always missed the fun,
And when I've tried to start I've stopped before I had begun.
I've been good, so very good, and I've obeyed the golden rule,
I'm as innocent as when I entered kindergarten school.
I've never had much figure, but some parts of me are good.
Yet not so good as formerly; that's easy understood.
My teeth are fairly even, though the wisdom ones are gone,
And my thin shanks look quite stylish when I've got silk stockings on.
My chest is flat, yes, very flat, yet that is all the style,
Though when I tell some men that fact I wonder why they smile?
I wonder had I better eat the things that make you plump?
For if that will help me any I don't want to be a chump.
I've always read the nicest books and kept my thoughts most chaste,
And no man has ever dared to put his arms around my waist;
I screamed with fear when some bold man once kissed by finger tips,
But nothing male, except my cat, has ever touched my lips.
Of course I've had romances with some heroes in some books,
And wandered with them, hand in hand, beside the babbling brooks;
But now I'm going to do some things to make some man propose;
I'm going to use peroxide and put powder on my nose.
I've bought some rouge and pencils for my eyebrows and my eyes,
And a special liquid powder for some moles I would disquise;
And a most expensive corset—let me whisper in your ear—
It is padded so judiciously that I need never fear,
I'm spending money on my hair, to get the wave marcelle,
And some strands of gray I've camouflaged so not a soul can tell;
But my elbows cause me worry, for I fear they're rather sharp,
And that's the reason, though I own, I never play the harp.
However, I can wear long sleeves, and not unduly tight,
For I'll never wear decollete when invited out at night.
Of course, I'm somewhat fearful of what men may say to me,
And I know I'll have a spasm when the first one bends his knee.
Yet there's something that keeps telling me I ought to be a wife,
And it isn't right for women to go wandering through life
Without a man to smooth the spots that bump along life's way,
And if a dog has, surely an old maid should have her day!
And, anyway, it's GOT to be, I've got to make a bluff,
For I'M 31 and I have been an old maid long enough!

THRIFT STAMP SALES DEFEAT BOLSHEVISM.

ADDED EFFORT TO SELL BABY BONDS AND RESTORE SOUND THINKING PROPOSED.

The 1919 War Savings and Thrift campaign is to be taken up with renewed vigor for the remainder of the year throughout the Twelfth Federal Reserve District by the reorganized War Loan Organization, of which Robert E. Smith is director and C. A. Farnsworth, formerly manager of the General Publicity Committee in the Victory Liberty Loan, is associate director.

In its essence the Thrift movement in America today is the country's protection against a threatened invasion of the political and economic experiments now sweeping Europe. The lowly twenty-five-cent thrift stamp, offering, as it does, the wage earner the opportunity of economic independence by regular investment of his savings in United States securities, promises to bring America back to the hardy thinking and independence of the men who built the republic. The thrifty, saving, independent man has no patience with those who would tear down America.

BRITISH GENERAL A COSSACK.

A message from Ekaterinodar says that Maj.-Gen. Holman has been elected a Kuban Cossack. A deputation of Cossacks, headed by the Ataman, presented him with the protocol of his election, as a mark of their appreciation of the support of Great Britain in the struggle against Bolshevism.

"We, desiring to express our gratitude to the whole British nation," the protocol said, "and to do so in such a manner as to insure that it shall be manifest and handed down by one generation to another, especially in our stanitza, have decided to elect Maj.-Gen. Holman, the supreme representative of Britain in the Kuban, a Cossack of our stanitza" (Cossack settlement.)—[Manchester Guardian.

CHAPLIN TO FLY.

FAMOUS COMEDIAN WILL MAKE AVIATION COMEDY.

By Grace Kingsley.

Laying aside for the time being his high-brow aspirations to play "Hamlet," and consenting to be the idol of high-brows, low-brows and no-brows for awhile yet, Charlie Chaplin announced yesterday that today he will commence the making of a new comedy along the lines that have made and kept him famous, and in which, despite his detractors, he is known as a real artist.

The theme which Chaplin's comedy will have is one in which the public is becoming more and more interested, viz., aviation. One scorns of course, to suggest that an aviation comedy made by Charlie Chaplin will help boost Brother Sid's airplane business! In any event a Chaplin comedy concerning the new and mountingly popular sport of aviation is sure to be a knock-out. Mr. Chaplin is known to be quite madly devoted to the sport of aviation and to be entirely fearless.

The aviation scenes will be made at the Chaplin airdome, Beverley Hills. So if, on glancing up into the sky today, you see a topsy-turvy gentleman hanging from the landing gear of a plane, or horse-back-riding on the fusilage, don't be frightened. It'll be your favorite Charlie Chaplin doing stunts for the camera. Of course, the world's most famous screen comedian refuses to divulge the name and nature of his story, other than the above, but I have a hint he's going to call it "Sky Jazzing." Edna Purviance is to be his leading woman, and the picture will be a First National Exhibitors' release, according to present plans.

WALLY REID, PETER KYNE, PAIR O' ACES.

That Wallace Reid and Peter B. Kyne are a pair of aces in the amusement world was shown yesterday at Clune's Broadway, when the combination packed the theater and trailed another crowd down the sidewalk, with Kyne's breezy, thrilling story of the big red woods, called "The Valley of the Giants."

It's a crackling, snapping story, this, from the minute the popular Wally, as young Bruce, comes home from abroad to his dad and his dad's red woods, to find the old gentleman nearly blind, ruined financially, but still gamely bucking the lumber game against heavy odds and unprincipled sharpers, including some railroad owners, his deepest interest centering in the beautiful valley, that had been his wedding present to his now dead wife, whose body reposes under a giant redwood. It's the son's job to win back the valley from the desecration of the unprincipled butters-in, and he does it in characteristic and spectacular fashion, involving a really ingenious plot. One big zip of the story occurs when the lumber train runs away down the mountain, carrying some of young Bryce's enemies and also the heroine in the caboose, and Wally skips over the lumber, car after car of it, and uncouples the caboose. Another thriller comes when, while his enemy tries to buy off the Mayor in regard to the franchise, the hero gets busy with his gang in the middle of the night building his own railroad, and a big fight ensues.

Wallace Reid, judging from the crowds and the applause yesterday, would appear to be one of the top-notchers among screen heroes in the popular favor. Grace Darmond, who is very young and lovely, has a role worthy of her in the part of Shirley Sumner, who is by no means a rag-doll heroine; Charles Ogle gives a beautifully sympathetic and appealing characterization as the elder Bryce; Ralph Lewis is as good as he always is, which is very good indeed, as Pennington; Billy Brunton is delightful as the press agent; Guy Oliver does a fine bit as George Otter, the half-breed Indian, and all the characters are well played. Jones Cruze, in his directing, preserved the crisp, pungent character of Kyne's story; besides which there is some marvelously beautiful photography of the big redwoods of Northern California.

MILDRED CHAPLIN SHINES AT SUPERBA.

If you are a girl or ever have been one, you're going to be right at "Home" with Mildred Harris Chaplin at the Superba this week! For, while "Home" is the most simple and natural of plays, it reflects the superficial aspects of girlhood problems in crystal clear fashion—girlhood's poignant griefs and joys, perplexities and pecadilloes. In fact, so natural and sincere are is the story and the manner of its doing that the effect is quite that of peeping through a window at an intimate little domestic drama. A Lois Weber picture is always well worth seeing, and this one is no exception.

The story centers around a girl who is just a bit spoiled by fond parents who send her to an aristocratic boarding school, but whose spoiling is only superficial, after all, as she proves sound at the core, but who meets up with some painful experiences when she tries to keep up the pretence of being wealthy like the other girls at the school. Sometimes these experiences are amusing, as when she pretends an automobile is hers and orders the chauffeur about. But just to relate the story would be in no way to convey its really holding qualities, its humanness, charm, and naturalness. It is one of those picture plays that have to be seen to be appreciated.

There is some beautifully sincere acting done not only by Mrs. Chaplin, who has grown into a really fine little dramatic instrument, but by all the cast, including Al Ray (who is now a Fox star, by the way) as the young mechanician, by Lydia Knott as the mother, Helen Yoder as the heroine's friend, Frank Elliott as the wry-smiled trifler with women's affections, by the man who played the father, whose name I didn't get, and by the others of the cast.

BURBANK MUSICAL COMEDY SPARKLES.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" is being sparklingly presented at the Burbank this week. Frank Adams can claim credit for one-half of the piece, the other half belonging to Will Hough. Some of the catchy music is so well known you just can't help humming along with the chorus.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" is a happy combination of bright music, clever lines and ingenious plot, which latter centers around a summer hotel suddenly quarantined for smallpox, with all the servants deserting and all the guests being commanded to go to work by the hero—"or else you don't eat!" There is a three-ply love story, too, nicely worked out by the principals in the piece, including the popular and rotund Larry Richmond, who makes his usual hit in the role of the rough-diamond hero; Arline Levy, Marjorie Lake and others. The catching song numbers include "Waning Honeymoon," "Lonesome Tonight," "Don't You Tell," "Si, Si, Senor;" and others, many, of course, interpolations of popular late songs.

A delightful and somewhat unusual thing about these Burbank musical comedies is that the principals as well as the chorus really can sing. Marjorie Lake's supremely pleasing contralto voice is heard to excellent advantage in "Lonesome Tonight." Vida Raymon answers many recalls in "Waning Honeymoon" and Cliff Thompson's fine baritone voice is heard to excellent advantage in "Davy Jones's Locker."

Those who enjoy real musical comedy—something more than a jumble of junk—really well sung, should make a habit of the Burbank.

Marguerite Clark Leaves.

Marguerite Clark and her husband, Lieut. H. Palmerson Williams, left yesterday for New York, where Miss Clark will resume her screen work for Famous Players-Lasky at the eastern studio. En route, however, the happy two will stop off at Lieut. Williams's winter residence near New Orleans, where they will spend a fortnight.

Grauman Buys Rialto.

One of the biggest deals in local picturedom was put over last Saturday when final negotiations were completed between J. A. Quinn and Sid Grauman, whereby the latter purchased a one-half interest in Quinn's Rialto Theater and whereby the famous showman assumes management of that popular theater immediately, planning to devote the house to big screen "specials."

Quinn's Rialto has been noted in the past for staging pictures for long runs, and, realizing that it is an ideal house in which to give big pictures the length of run they deserve, Mr. Grauman has decided to adopt this policy.

Mr. Quinn leaves again for New York tomorrow, where he will bend his energies to the development of the Motion Picture and Theatrical Co-operative Associaton of the World, recently organized in New York for the purpose of eliminating many of the evils now existing in the motion-picture industry, such as misleading advertising, fake stars, padding of pictures, etc.

Elder Farrars Arrive.

Geraldine Farrar's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Farrar, arrived at the Santa Fe station yesterday morning after a week of travel. At least, they were on the train all that time, only, of course, they didn't travel. That was the worst of it and that is why the last few days have been troubled ones for the prima donna.

When she received a telegram saying that her mother and father were waiting at Albuquerque, delayed on account of the strike, her first thought was characteristic of her—she began to make arrangements to send provisions to them via airplane, having all kinds of wild ideas that they were starving, or at least in need of something more than they could obtain. But by the time Lou Tellegen convinced her that anyone pausing in the capital of New Mexico would have ample nourishment, she had abandoned that idea and decided to send her machine for them at Barstow. When she couldn't learn by wire where they were she resigned herself to patient waiting.

Miss Farrar's vigil began at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night and as each discouraging bulletin came in, advancing the coming of the train hour by hour, she and Lou Tellegen passed the time away at various movies, finally leaving their chauffeur and secretary at midnight to wait at the station, hoping that the train might come in before 6 o'clock. It didn't, however, but Miss Farrar was there at that hour, having dressed in such a hurry that they do say that even her long leopardine coat couldn't conceal the fact that something was wrong with her petticoat. Or did it happen in the enthusiasm of her greetings?

Anyhow, all the Farrars are together now and they're going to the Goldwyn studio tomorrow to be present when Reginald Barker and Cinematographer Percy Hilburn "shoot" the first scene of the new Farrar-Tellegen picture.

LEWIS STONE WILL PRODUCE BAYARD VEILLER'S "DANGER."

Lewis S. Stone is to assume the leading role in Bayard Veiller's "Danger," which will have its first production in this city next Monday. The presentation of this play is to be a banner event in the Majestic Theater season. Special sets and effects, made under the direction of Charles Baker, formerly D. W. Griffith's art director, are to be provided for the four acts and five scenes of the mystery drama, which is said to rival "The Thirteenth Chair" and "Within the Law," by the same author. Rehearsals will start tomorrow morning. The principal role is written around Lewis Stone, and following its production here it will be taken to New York.

"Danger" is a play of crime and criminals—full of surprises and trick effects that first startled the public in "The Thirteenth Chair."

Veiller wrote it principally in Los Angeles—"the only place to write," he says. He wants to stay here—to supervise the first staging of his works at the Majestic Theater, of which he is a frequenter.

Florence Oakley has the important role of Elizabeth Smith in the production; Beasley has powerful characterization. A cast of sixteen appears—Louis Morrison, Forrest Seabury and others already being secured and others are being negotiated for.

RESCUE THREE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 31.—Because of the heavy surf and rip-tide today, life savers were constantly on the lookout for bathers in need of assistance. Three rescues were made between Paloma avenue and Navy streets, Venice, this afternoon.

Sol DeCaproni, of Ocean Park, bathing at the foot of Paloma, was rescued by Life Guards Vultee, James Leach and Charles Kirby. DeCaproni was in an exhausted condition but recovered.

George Kelly and James Edwards, of Los Angeles, bathing at the foot of Navy street, were rescued while they were bathing beyond their depth by Life Guards S. Townsend and Tud Combs.

"The Miracle Man" at the Kinema.

Betty Compson and Joseph J. Dowling.

A TRIUMPH OF ART AND ACTING.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

When it comes to defining the best in picture making, you can say that some features have borne a resemblance to narrative, others to drama, others again to painting, and still others to the spirit of music. "The Miracle Man," which is showing at the Kinema Theater this week, like certain other remarkable films, partakes of all of these, and while it is not a stupendous production, it has the quality of real art, and the throb of humanness, which go to make a truly worthy example of photoplay achievement. What is more, it is acted out with that telling emphasis that causes each separate climax to become a burning concentrate of previous developments.

How much this particular photo-drama owes to the play by George M. Cohan matters little. It stands on its own merits as a production. Cohan had the sense of a big and appealing idea when he wrote "The Miracle Man," and he commanded the popular taste for the triumph of good over evil.

The photoplay is built of delicate material. The mystic beauty of the theme has a strange power over the imagination, especially as worked out in the silence of the screen. Yet its frailty makes insistent calls on the reflective intelligence, both in direction and acting. There is no point, however, at which those appearing as the four crooks seem not fuly to realize the gradual steps in their regeneration. Were they to waver, I would hesitate to say how much the story would be weakened. The triumph of splendid acting is what gives vigor to the human drama of "The Miracle Man."

It is a harmonically perfect quartette that appears in the roles of Tom Burke, Rose, the Frog and the Dope. Tom Meighan has seldom offered a more carefully-balanced portrayal than as the ringleader. Betty Compson has risen at one flight to the higher stellar spaces as the girl who learns love that she may teach it to the man who brought her only lust. The Frog and the Dope are two fine portraits as delineated by Lon Chaney and J. M. Dumont. The other parts are all highly important to the convincing production, principal credit being due to Joseph J. Dowling as the Patriarch.

The pictorial quality seems to hold a place equal to that of the dramatic values in this picture. Many of the shots reveal a talent for composition that is rare. The art titles are fashioned with an excellence of taste that shows a conception of grace mingled with the suggestion of grandeur.

The story of the play is really the simplest part of its finely-adjusted mechanism, but it is the kind of story which holds a tremendous fascination for the public. It is just a human tale of how a gang of swindlers, bent on using the mystic healing powers of the Miracle Man, fell under the spell of goodness and truth, until their own minds were made whole. Its sentimentality is veiled in the subtle finesse of intelligent direction and acting.

SOCIETY ROMANCE AT THE ALHAMBRA.

"Men, Women and Money," at the Alhambra Theater this week, takes us into a world made familiar by the novels of Robert W. Chambers. We meet the dashing debutante and the ever-young dowager, the young society hanger-on and the millionaire cynic. However, the photoplay is minus the banality of a great good-man hero, who is wasting his life in the realm of frivols. Instead, the one who wins the girl in the final reel is the millionaire cynic, who leaves the paths of easy virtue, and his beliefs that every woman has her price, for the sake of the more congenial attitude revealed to him by the heroine. Said heroine had become rather involved in gambling debts, but holds to the straight and narrow by going to work.

The play has a light and cheerful tinge of romance, despite the fact that its theme tugs at vital issues in the lives of its various people. The story leans directly from the ease of idleness to the strength of purposeful realities. It is healthy and sane in its message, and interesting besides, and is conveyed with the sense of beauty.

Ethel Clayton is always a shaft of sunshine in any romance, whether it touch the sordid or not, and therefore fully suits her starring role. Leave it to Cody to portray the millionaire cynic. For the rest there are some very good character bits by various people, chiefly Miss ZaSu Pitts.

"Men, Women and Money" is the kind of play you will enjoy because it deals with wealth and fashion, which are always attractive, and has a good story besides.

TALMADGE SUCCESS AT THE SYMPHONY.

The story of a young girl's devotion to her ideals in the midst of the trials she suffers from unwelcome attentions of the men where she is employed makes the appeal of "The Social Secretary," the starring vehicle of Norma Talmadge, at the Symphony, a sympathetic one. The revival of the Talmadge success is induced by the fact that it is regarded as one of her most notable achievements.

After several experiences, the girl heroine conceals her beauty behind the disguise of plain dress and coiffure and a huge pair of spectacles. But when she takes a position as a secretary to a society woman, her dissembling is all in vain, for the son of the family discovers her attraction. After many a pretty tangle in the development of situations he also wins her high regard.

Miss Talmadge has excellent support in the play.

"Love—In a Hurry," the latest Christie laugh feast, is an accompanying feature, and attracts smiles and hilarious approval.

Morosco.

A special holiday matinee of "Civilian Clothes," which opened its tenth week yesterday at the Morosco, will take place today. The play will have its New York premiere tonight, just at the time the local performances are approaching the 100 mark.

It is planned to make the hundredth presentation here Friday night a gala affair.

The success of "Civilian Clothes" locally has far outstripped expectations, and the East has been receiving Thompson Buchanan's play with acclaim.

"HEART OF WETONA" A GRIPPING PLAY.

Every suggestion of froth and frivolity is suspended at the Majestic Theater this week, not to say that it has ever been strongly in evidence at any performance, and the Lewis Stone players get down to the grim business of producing a Belascoesque melodrama of the primitive and magnificent sort. "The Heart of Wetona," by George Scarborough, has the strength that distinguishes the oak from the stately poplar. Its gnarled form is softened only by the beneficent shade of humanness. The roots of its story are buried in the soil on the edge of civilization and its topmost branches push their way to the light.

The story of the play is the simple one of a woman's betrayal by one man and of her finding the way to faith through another. The latter makes the supreme sacrifice for the sake of the woman's honor. The former proves himself a cad and a coward to the moment when the Indian tribe of which the girl is a member makes him pay the penalty of death.

The play is not a new one, but it has the gripping intensity of situation that time leaves untarnished. Also it possesses the conviction of high purpose contrasted with the wavering temptation of low design. Technically it has the reinforced hold of great drama on the stage, with a background that is like forewarning of a tempest. Constantly the suggestion of the Indian tribe lying in wait for their revenge is flashed through the lines of the play.

All this recounting of the idea of George Scarborough's achievement is necessary because its effect is so well brought out in the production at the Majestic. The role of John Hardin, the Indian agent who marries the young princess of the tribe to save her honor, seems to be part and parcel of Lewis Stone. It is entirely different from the character sketches he has given his audiences. It is more like the straight roles he used to portray in the old days at the Belasco Theater. David Hartford made the rough and ready range man, who never wore a coat because he lost it long before the play opened, a picture of superlative vigor. Donald Stuart, in the cad role, has never realized a finer performance. The Indian portrayals were the weakest, but Byron Beasley at times rose to heights of dramatic effectiveness, even if his characterization was not a guaranteed certainty.

Florence Oakley has the big role of the Indian girl, Wetona. She is hardly the type, and at first felt the difficulties of the part. In each succeeding act she reached stronger climaxes, and probably with more familiarity with the role will give a more comprehensive interpretation. She deserves credit for her stressful emotional work.

The performance was not as free from flaws as the opening night of "The House Next Door," the previous vehicle, but the "Heart of Wetona" has merit as a production which places it close to the other success—for entirely different reasons, however. Going back to my original comparison, it is the oak where the other was the stately poplar.

HIGH BIDS FORCE USE OF DAY LABOR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Aug. 30.—Day labor will be used in the construction of the State highway over the Tejon Pass, according to J. B. Woodson, division engineer of the State Highway Commission. This decision was reached, he said, when it was found that bids were 100 per cent. higher than the estimates as prepared by the State.

Work is to be started immediately. It is stated by the State road officials, with the purpose of having all that portion which cannot be detoured, completed by the first of December.

GARDENER HELD UP.

Claiming to have been held up at the corner of Wilcox and Yucca streets by two young men in a stripped Ford, Arthur George, a gardener living at 6058 Hollywood boulevard, reported to Patrolman Aulbert of the Hollywood police that he had been relieved of $40 and a gold watch. According to Mr. George both men were unmasked and carried revolvers.

CAN'T SCARE 'EM WITH HIGH COST.

Hundred More Licenses to Wed Issued in August than Same Month Last Year.

That the high cost of living is not causing the young people of this city to remain single was evidenced yesterday when R. L. ("Cupid") Sparks, in charge of the marriage license bureau, made his monthly report public.

The total number of marriage licenses issued during August was 867, as compared with 774 for the same period of 1918. There were 5909 marriage licenses issued from January 1 until August 31, 1919, and during the similar period of 1918 there were 4942.

THE TIE DIDN'T BIND.

Brotherhood officials had some difficulty in reaching California on account of the brotherhood strike, but they were finally put through. You'll notice that a walking delegate never really has to walk.

HANG TO THE JOB.

The Governors of ten States are drawing less money than the maximum pay of some of the conductors and engineers on a few of the railroad systems of America. But you hardly ever hear of a Governor going on a strike.

RUNNING AWAY.

Every now and then a labor agitator will start something he cannot check. That's the Bolshevist of it. It would be a poor engineer who could start his locomotive, but could not stop it. Yet that is apparently the position of the brotherhood officials.

A SHANTUNG CHAMPION.

Senator Johnson's love and affection for the Chinese has never been of that fervent and eager quality that would warrant his present immense excitement over the disposition of the Shantung Peninsula. Not many moons back he would have been willing to permit the Kaiser to use it as a door mat. The Senator has sometimes been suspected of sincerity, but hardly in the present case. Let him first show his regard for the oriental by having his shirts done up at a Chinese laundry.

PRICE OF EXISTENCE.

What good does it do for one to spend his months trying to solve life's problems by learning to eat rolled barley and alfalfa hay? The hardened reprobate at the feed barn now wants to charge us about $3 a sack for rolled barley. When we first commenced to form the habit we could get it for seventy cents a sack and few takers. Likewise, if we want a nibble of alfalfa for supper we have to put up for it at the rate of about $4 a hundred. Tell your folks it costs like hell to be a rabbit in these times.

AGAIN IN SERVICE.

The War Department has now received its first hundred thousand enlistments for the new regular army and more than two-thirds of them are from the ranks of the returned soldiers. This seems to cast a cloud of doubt on the assertion that the khaki boys would never go back into service again unless dragged by main force. Uncle Sam's army is not such a bad place when certain conditions as to pay and place of service can be understood at enlistment. Your uncle takes good care of his men and he made better citizens out of some hundreds of thousands of them than they were before we had our spat with Germany.

GETTING FAT PAY.

A reason may be found for all movements and one is discovered for the recent hegira of real estate brokers in Hollywood to the fruit-pickers and packers' camps in the San Fernando Valley last week. The land salesmen have a keen nose for ready money and they found it in the workers' camps.

A Van Nuys cannery manager is authority for the statement that many couples, man and wife, are making $100 per week in his establishment, a sum which is largely net, as the workers are furnished free tents, firewood and water and buy a great part of their provisions at low cost in the near-by fields. Some families are laying by enough money each week to make the first payment on a city lot. One little miss of Italian extraction is averaging $8 per day cutting peaches, says this cannery manager. But, while the field pickers and cannery workers are riding the high-wages horse for all it is worth, grief will come to the householder in the peach pack, when a No. 2 can will be marked fifty cents.

OUT OF THE DIM PAST.

Really it is a fine thing to have a scientist about the house. Without them we should miss so much. One of them has just dropped in with evidence that they had mosquitos a foot long in the Eocene period—a matter of some two million years ago. This news, coming just at a time when we are wrought up over strikes and things, brings blessed relief. It is easier to bear the ills we have when we realize that others have borne burdens as great or greater than our own. When we think of the hapless Eocenian being pursued by a flock of 'skeeters larger than woodpeckers we realize that the buzzing of an occasional agitator is merely a petty annoyance. Just think what would happen to baby if a mosquito with a beak like a corkscrew should tap its pink body as it slumbered! Ha!? a dozen of these malignant insects would be able to break up the Wednesday evening prayer meeting. Sometimes we feel that life is hardly worth living and that this is a hard and despicable world but when we read through the granite records of the Eocene days we realize that it is becoming better and better all the time. In another two million years this world may be quite comfy and respectable.

THE LARGER VIEW OF LABOR.

Who is the "laboring man"? Answer: EVERY MAN THAT LABORS. The time has come to write "Amplius" over the threadbare phrase and give it a wider meaning. The application of the term "laboring man" is, in the popular mind, narrow and misleading. In the minds of many it means only a certain class of laborers. The narrowness of meaning, usually attached to the words "laboring man," has bred clannishness, prejudice and unbrotherliness. It is high time for all men to know that the "horny-handed sons of toil" are not the only sons of toil.

Was not Noah Webster, who toiled forty years to make a dictionary, as much of a toiler as the old-fashioned type-setters who set the type for the printing of the book? Was Webster any less a son of toil because he worked with a pen instead of working with a pick? Is not a brain worker as strenuous a worker as a brawn worker? Who is this "laboring man"? He is any man anywhere who labors honestly at an honest job. Who is the carpenter that he should say the teacher of his children is not a toiler? Who is the builder of a fine house that he should say the builder of a fine hymn is not also a builder? It is possible for even a man with soft hands to do hard work.

To know the whole truth about labor and laborers we must widen out in the meaning we attach to the word "labor." There are only three classes of workmen in the world. There is the man who does his work chiefly with his hands. He is the man who builds our railroads, our sidewalks, our houses. He is the man who runs our street cars and our trains. We could not get along without him. But, remembering this, we are also remembering that he couldn't get along without us merchants, blacksmiths, grocers, millers, bakers, bankers, barbers, teachers, editors, lawyers and preachers. WE CANNOT GET ALONG WITHOUT EACH OTHER. That is the human situation. That is pre-eminently the American situation. If you are not in the business of raising grain somebody else must grow your wheat and corn and oats and barley for you. You must have shoes, but since you cannot make them for yourself and family somebody else must make them for you. You are not a doctor. But you and your family are sometimes sick. Then you must give somebody a chance to be your doctor. You are not a school-teacher, but your children need schooling. Then you must help build the schoolhouse and employ the teacher. WE ARE ALL NEEDED FOR EACH AND EACH IS NEEDED FOR ALL.

You do not build car or railroads, but you travel on them. And when you send your mother in New York transportation money and she purchases from the railroad a ticket to Los Angeles NOBODY CAN POSSIBLY HAVE ANY SOCIAL, LEGAL OR MORAL RIGHT TO STOP HER SHORT OF HER DESTINATION AND LEAVE HER OUT IN THE MIDDLE OF SOME SCORCHING DESERT. It is wanton wickedness to inflict punishment on tens of thousands of women and children who are innocent in order to get at somebody whom you may fancy to be guilty. In every civilized country there are normal processes of justice and right by which any well-grounded grievance may be righted. If you lay claim to being a member of the human race, then proceed humanely to get your rights.

II.

THE trouble with the labor unions in their strikes is that, while they claim to be FIGHTING FOR THE RIGHTS OF THEIR OWN CHILDREN, THEY INFLICT WRONGS ON THE OTHER MAN'S CHILDREN. The striker right here in Los Angeles will tell you that he is trying to secure for his family what they ought to have. But to do this he proceeds with an insane inconsistency to bring about conditions which will make it impossible for your family to have what THEY OUGHT TO HAVE. Whatever the most radical of the radicals may have to say about the justice of his cause no sane man can believe that it is RIGHT TO INFLICT SUFFERING UPON AN ENTIRE COMMUNITY OF INNOCENT PEOPLE IN ORDER TO FIND SOMEBODY IN THAT COMMUNITY WHO MIGHT BE GUILTY.

The strike itself is always in the nature of anarchy, because it is always attended with violence. It is wickedly wholesale in its method of attack. Only a crazy fool would shoot his neighbor's entire flock of sheep in order to kill the one guilty wolf that stole his own chickens. That method would be the method of a mad man. Wrongs can never be righted by wrong methods. Unjust methods can never secure justice. One wrong can never be righted by doing another wrong. And to secure their fancied rights the strikers are doing wrong to a community.

The average labor union is un-American. A man may not act individually. He must act communally. He is not free to follow the central convictions of his own conscience. He must follow the dictum of the strike leaders or be ostracised. THE SPIRIT OF THE LABOR UNION IS AGAINST THE AMERICAN UNION. It is a sort of organized autocracy. It is a kind of mobilized monarchy. Its philosophy, if it can be said to have any, is the wagon wheel philosophy. Here it is: I'm a part of this wheel, just as much a part as that other spoke is. If that spoke goes into the mud, then, being a part of the wheel, I have a right to go into the mud. Members of the unions to whom we have talked lately have acknowledged as much. In different communities of Southern California we held friendly conversation with these men. In every case they confessed that personally they did not like to strike. What one said they all said, namely: "We are in it and we can't hold our places unless we strike with the strikers." Fellow citizens, an organization of that sort is an un-American organization.

III.

HUNDREDS of these strikers have not stopped to consider that there are only three classes of real workers in the whole world of labor. First, there is the HAND WORKMAN. As the word implies, his activities are chiefly physical. We often see swarthy sons of toil crawling from one end of a sugar-beet field to the other. As we put the sugar in our coffee we ought to lift a prayer for the man who works so hard to keep us sweet. A while ago we saw a Salt Lake train stand still in Long Beach for half an hour, with many fine folk on board, waiting till twenty workmen repaired a dangerous place in the track just in front of the engine. These men worked hard and faithfully and rapidly for the ministers, teachers, editors, capitalists, attorneys and all the fine society folk who might have been on that train. It would have been a gracious and brotherly recognition of good workmanship if the passengers on that train had thrown up the windows and given those workmen a cheer. Let every dollar it is worth be paid for such service.

But there is the man who does the most of his work with his head. No one who knows this toiler will wish to deny him an honorable place among "laboring men." What we need to recognize is that mind work is at least as important as muscle work. Some men can do better work with the tongue than they can with the trowel. Demosthenes, Webster and Wendell Phillips, for instance. The men who use the Westinghouse air brake are toilers, but what about Westinghouse, whose brain invented that brake? The engineer who runs the steam engine is a worthy workman, but what about Watt and Robert Fulton whose ideas made that work possible? The telegrapher must not forget Morse and Franklin. The wireless operator must not forget Marconi. There is every reason why the hand worker and the head worker should be the best of friends. They are complements to each other. Neither could be without the other, at least not to any great advantage to human society. They both belong to the "laboring men." The teacher, the lawyer, the physician, the editor, the author, the artist, the musician, the minister will laugh at you, and rightly, if you reckon them out of the ranks of "labor." And do they not justly rank themselves among the world's workmen? How long and patiently did Pasteur work to discover the anti-toxine? How many months and years of toil did Keeley work on his miraculous bichloride of gold cure? Thomas Carlyle was at work about thirteen years on his "Frederick the Great." And Carlyle's book turned out to be greater than Frederick.

But, countrymen, consider this: What if Webster and Phillips and Westinghouse and Watt and Morse and Robert Fulton and Pasteur and Keeley and Carlyle had gone on a strike before their work was done? What if Washington and Wilberforce and Lafayette and Kossuth and Lincoln and Garibaldi and Foch had gone on a strike and had walked out before their glorious jobs of freedom were finished—then, in the name of Liberty, THEN WHAT?

That reminds us of the third class of workmen, the HEART WORKMEN. In these days of mines and stocks and railroads and rivers and oceans and automobiles and flying machines we need to be constantly reminded that we have hearts as well as heads and hands. Let us salute the heart workers in the home and the nursery, the school and the church and everywhere. Let the hand workers, the head workers and the heart workers get together and keep together. Joaquin Miller has a word for us all:

"Is it worth while that we jostle a brother,
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other
In blackness of heart?—that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

God pity us all as we jostle each other;
God pardon us all for the triumphs we feel,
When a fellow goes down with his load on the heather,
Pierced to the heart—words are keener than steel,

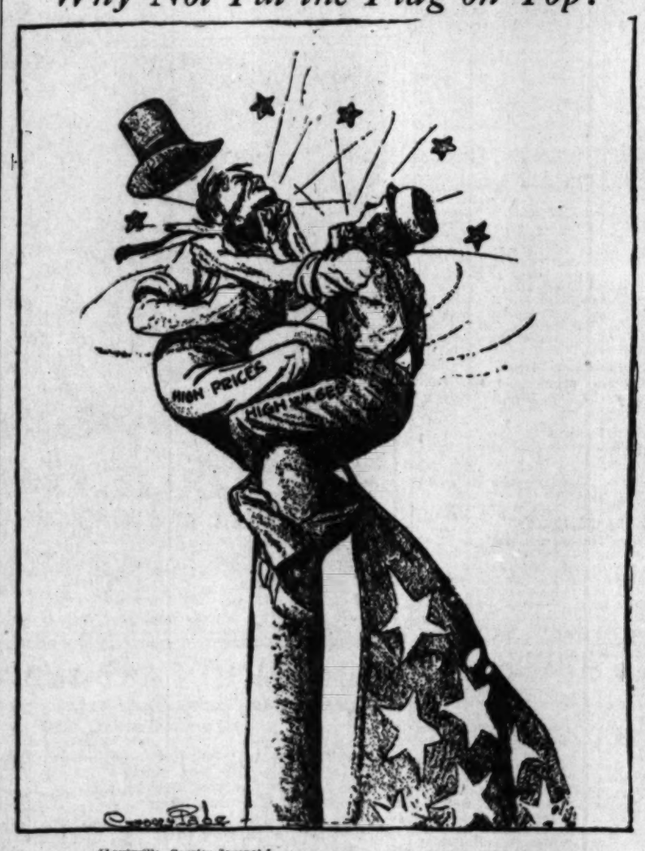
LIGHT ON KNUTE NELSON.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota is the second oldest man in the Senate. He is just rounding out his 83d year in public life and is as rugged as a man twenty-five years his junior. He gets up every morning at 5 o'clock, drinks plenty of water, eats cornmeal mush and chews tobacco. When he can't chew he takes it as an indication that he must take stock of his health assets and acts accordingly.—[Boston Post.

Why Not Put the Flag on Top?



[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

UPHOLDS JUSTICE.

Years ago, when the population of California was exceedingly sparse and the only means of communication between the few important centers was by rough roads, a few bold men conceived the daring idea of building the Southern Pacific Railway. The people of the State and the Federal government were so anxious to have the line built that they encouraged the project by every means in their power short of providing money. They didn't believe the road would ever pay, but they rejoiced to find men willing to expend capital on the venture so long as their own cash was not involved. The government helped the project along by giving the railroad a grant of land which was absolutely valueless without transportation facilities.

The railroad sold as much of the land as it could at prices ranging from $2.50 to $10 an acre, but there was not any great demand for it. Then came the oil discoveries in Central California which electrified the State and it was found that part of the territory given to the Southern Pacific was underlaid with petroleum. Later came the muckraking period and the Southern Pacific, the construction of which had been so eagerly sought by the people, was held up as a horrible example of obliquity by magazines which were trying to build circulation on sensations. The effect on the people was such that a somewhat obscure lawyer was able, by vigorous beating of the anti-Southern Pacific drum, to get himself elected to the Governorship.

Then the government, encouraged by the attacks on "predatory corporations" and "malefactors of great wealth" and anxious to get back some of the land which it had so easily parted with when it considered it worthless, instituted suit to recover a part of its gift. It alleged that fraud had been used in securing the patents to the land.

This suit was started seven years ago and now, after spending a fortune to defend it, the Southern Pacific has won and the government's charge of fraud has been declared baseless by the court. The evidence convinced the Federal judge, as it must have convinced all fair-minded people, that the conduct of the Southern Pacific officials "was more consistent with honesty of purpose than with fraud and chicanery."

It is the opinion of The Times that this suit should never have been brought. Moreover, the officials at Washington who were responsible for it deserve censure. They caused attacks to be made upon the honesty of officials of the company who are still alive and they sought to attach a stigma to the memory of great railroad builders who have passed away. The dead don't care; they are beyond reach even of the opportunist Senator and erstwhile Governor; but the sting is felt by their relatives and the company itself suffers because in the public mind it has been associated with a charge of fraud. The fact that the charge was groundless will not make much impression upon those people who, stirred to hatred by such men as Hiram Johnson, cannot bring themselves to believe the truth.

THE STRIKE CRIMF.

BY EMORY D. MARTINDALE.

The growing evil of strikes is one of the greatest internal menaces to public welfare and constitutional liberty. Agitation offers no solution; friendly arbitration has exhausted its strength; appeals to patriotism and humanitarianism have been resorted to and still the evil thrives, and the public welfare continues to suffer from the putrefying strike evil. What superior right over capital has organized labor to create a condition destructive to life, liberty and property? The public has cried out against capitalistic monopoly and legislation against abuses of organized capital is the result.

Labor unions have closed down coal mines and stopped the wheels of commerce and as a result men, women and children have suffered from hunger and cold and died from disease induced by privation and exposure. Life, liberty and property have been destroyed by the lawless and criminal classes during these periods of strikes, while unions are becoming more and more severe in their demands, and the public has only one remedy, and that to implore a cold-hearted, blood-thirsty union to be more considerate and not force a strike at unreasonable times or to make its demands not quite so hard to meet.

Every patriotic citizen believes in law and order and not in the want of it. And to that end if a citizen anywhere within the jurisdiction of the government receives a summons to appear in a court of justice within the jurisdiction of which he is a resident to sit on a jury he does not stop to question the authority of the court out of which the summons issues, but lays aside all business and, answering the summons, appears at the time and place fixed to obey the further mandate of the court. It may call him from the shop, factory, farm or profession, and it is wholly discretionary with the court to excuse or require him to sit on a jury to determine the rights of litigants over a shipment of jack rabbits. But any eligible citizen can be required by the court to sit on a jury, listen to the evidence and, together with eleven of his peers, render a verdict according to the law as instructed by the court and the evidence. Every citizen inspired with a sense of justice recognizes the necessity of obedience in this respect. It is not the character of the particular case to be presented to the jury, but a part of a great jury system guaranteed by the Constitution of the land whereby every citizen is entitled to have his rights in law tried before a jury of his peers.

Is there any citizen so ignoble that, because of the fact that he may be called away from his business for a few days, or it may be weeks, would, if it were in his power, abolish the right of trial by jury?

Maritime laws make it a crime for the master of a ship at sea to refuse assistance to a ship in distress. Yet labor-union adherents may abandon a railroad train freighted with human life and in delicate condition and in places where there is neither food nor suitable accommodations without fear of punishment. For hundreds of persons to be abandoned in desert towns and in places without accommodations and with threatened shortage of food and in a delicate condition is no less a crime than for a ship to refuse assistance or for a citizen to refuse to obey the mandate of the court when summoned as a juryman, or for a citizen to refuse to render assistance in fighting mountain fires when life and property are threatened.

When life, liberty and property are threatened by unionism constitutional liberty cries out in agony and its cries are unanswered and union oppression continues. Unionism promises unreasonable demands and threats of force and violence. Any proposed remedy must have as its basic principle justice and equity.

A statute creating a board of arbitration to which all grievances of both labor and capital must be submitted, with the right of either party to the controversy to appeal to the highest court in the land, offers a solution which is neither unfair nor oppressive and preserves to each the right to the redress of a court of justice. And any person or organized body of workmen or corporation refusing to pursue a course provided by such a law is an anarchist, a violator of law and constitutional liberty and should be dealt with as such. "Let everything be done decently and in order."

If a court can summon a citizen to lay aside his business or profession to sit on a jury with no alternative but fine or imprisonment to try the rights of litigants affecting a shipment of jack rabbits, or the government by force of statute punish the master of a ship at sea for refusing to render assistance to a ship in distress, or the fire warden to command the services of every able-bodied citizen when life and property are threatened by fire the same government, by force of statute, can punish a man for refusing to operate any means of transportation when the operation of such means of transportation is necessary to preserve life, liberty or property or all.

This is not the enunciation of new principles of constitutional law and government, but a new application of well-established principles.

Didn't Interest Him.

A gentleman here from Georgia says the labor situation in the South this year reminds him of this story:

A negro applied to a cotton plantation manager for work.

"All right," said the manager. "Come around in the morning and I'll put you to work and pay you what you are worth."

"No, suh, I can't do dat," replied the negro. "I'se gittin' mo' dan' dat now."—[Commerce and Finance.

SOUTHERN LIGHTS.

The Zelzah Tribune says that a farmer near that place is successfully growing a fine crop of tobacco, while the Brawley News boasts of 160 acres of cotton that went almost a bale to the acre. Southern California will grow anything—except pessimism.

Political lightning struck Editor Perry of the Artesia News and landed him in the postoffice. He received his appointment last week.

The Fullerton Tribune makes application for admission to this prosperity column with the following item: Mrs. J. A. Ellis brought to town today the best flavored and largest peaches ever left at the Tribune office. They are as large as the average-sized cantaloupe.

No small part of the success of the Downey Community Fair last Thursday and Friday was due to the aggressive and intelligent advertising campaign conducted by the Champion.

A perfectly good finger was picked up at the intersection of the two busiest streets in Pasadena and a diligent search has failed to find the hand that it fits. Perhaps some unauthorized person stuck their finger into the School Superintendent row.

With the building boom going full speed ahead at Van Nuys, the News continues to cry for still more houses.

La Verne Leader: According to the August 8 report of the bureau of crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture, Riverside county is the second largest alfalfa growing county in Southern California. Imperial county is first, with 125,000 acres planted to this crop and Riverside county second with 40,000 acres. Inyo county is third with 33,000 acres.

Hemet News: The Hemet peach crop is estimated at about 4500 tons, most of them of varieties suitable for canning. All of these will be processed at home.

Wakefield Star: There will be no meeting of the Good Health Society Tuesday evening, because of the illness of so many of the members.

The lid goes on female khaki breeches at 8 p.m. at San Pedro, and because a couple of young ladies neglected to don skirts before that hour they were arrested by the local police.

Alhambra News: Alhambra is mentioned as "one of the principal cities of the United States" in the new Universities Dictionary. Is that dictionary all right? We'll say it is.

Grape growers in Coachella Valley have introduced and developed a new grape larger in size and more prolific in growth than the Malaga and which sells for $2 a crate more on the eastern market. Its name is the Dattier de Beyrouth, which in itself is a mouthful.

Owensmouth Gazette: The State Bank is getting to be a real Chamber of Commerce exhibit of late, and serves a pretty good advertisement for our upper valley. The most attractive display is a cluster of Bermuda onions that are each as large as a small basketball.

While other towns brag of crops of their locality, Hemet puts forth a claim for unusual fertility of climate and soil in the production of a magnificent crop of whiskers grown in imitation of the mustache worn by a returned soldier.

It took five shots to kill a young coyote in the Pacific Electric car barns at Riverside at 2 a.m. The neighbors thought the strike had reached the riot stage.

The Sierra Madre News runs a poem each week signed "A. L. Soran," evidently written by a disappointed poet, as indicated when the name is joined together and spaced after the first four letters.

TURBULENT TIMES.

Uncle Sam is feebly swearing, as he never did before, and his wintry locks he's tearing and we see him walk the floor; for the country's all excited and our old-time peace is blighted, and the wrongs that should be righted come a-rapping at his door. Every man has got a hammer, and we all rear up and knock, and we yawp around and yammer, and we heave the brick and rock; and we strike and quit our labors and go rioting with neighbors till the soldiers with their sabers drive us homeward in a flock. We are full of pep and mettled, and we stamp old systems flat, for the country is unsettled and we don't know where we're at; profiteers are driving shoppers to the refuge of the paupers, and we whip the village coppers and knock off the statesman's hat. All respect for law and order we have lost and care no hoot, and we're drifting to the border of black chaos and its loot; but we'll stop before arriving and our uncle, still surviving, will be hold us nobly striving to o'erwhelm that chaos brute. For a time we're lost our senses, after all the war-time strain, and we're tearing down the fences—but we'll put them up again; for we all are too blamed clever to keep up this lick forever, and we soon will make endeavor to convince you that we're sane.

"There is no criminal in our midst more deadly and diabolical than the bomber. The charred ruins of the Lawler home calls out for the death penalty for all the accomplices in that horrible crime. Any man found guilty of placing a bomb with intent to kill, even if his evil designs are frustrated, should be compelled to surrender his own life. As for the profiteer, he is an outlaw with a heart of ice and cold water for his blood. I am opposed to the Japanese method of flogging prisoners, but I would be willing to make an exception in the case of the profiteer. Good whippings, humanely given, would send the profiteer back to the walks of life properly chastened and humiliated. One of the great questions of the day is the problem of the disposition of Shantung. The peace treaty, in giving the resourceful province of Shantung to Japan, is committing an act of great injustice, as any fair-minded person will admit. China should have Shantung because it belongs to her. Shantung was stolen from China by a German Junkerism. The unreasonable pretext for this theft was the killing in 1897 of two German missionaries in a quarrel with some Chinese natives. When America entered the war China declared war against Germany and notified that country that the treaty and grants forced from her in 1898 were abrogated and must automatically revert to China.' It now appears that ten days after China joined the Allies a clandestine agreement was entered into between Japan and Great Britain by which Japan was guaranteed the right to occupy Shantung at the close of the war. If it was a felony for Germany to seize Shantung, is it any less than a compounding of a felony for the peace commission to justify Japan and and give her possession of valuable territory which belongs to China and to no one else? If Japan is permitted to hold Shantung the seeds of another world war will be planted and China will follow in the footsteps of France in resenting the seizure of Alsace-Lorraine."

"In the present warfare between capital and labor a great quantity of valuable foodstuffs is being destroyed and many noncombatants will suffer. But what can the church do? She is expert neither in economy, sociology nor industrial management. This is not her field of work. But there are great moral issues involved in every great industrial problem and it is the duty of the church to proclaim the teachings of Christ until his great principles are recognized in every realm of life's activities. Christian employers and Christian employees should seek to know the will of Christ and apply it in their industrial life. Human selfishness on the part of both capital and labor is the cause of much trouble. Christ's Golden Rule is a certain antidote. His basic principle is a universal brotherhood instead of contesting brotherhoods."

REV. J. NEWTON JESSUP.

"Those of us who thought that the successful conclusion of the war would bring cessation of unrest and would bring peace and happiness have been grievously disappointed. It now appears that our real work toward the restoration of what we call normal conditions has only begun. Now we are learning with amazement and disquietude that what we called normal conditions were not normal at all, but were quite abnormal and now we must begin all over again on new foundations and with clarified and enlarged ideals.

"The great war is over, but the great work has just begun. And the great work to be done is more difficult than the successful prosecution of the war; because it is always easier to deal with material forces and things than it is to deal with moral or spiritual forces. The great work to be done is of a moral and spiritual character. Amazingly new and difficult problems have followed the war.

"The law of love as the solution of present-day troubles is contemptuously scouted by many men because it comes with religious sanction. Some men hate everything religious or that has religious sanction. They would repudiate the law of gravitation."

"With the preacher telling the strikers to be content with their wages it looks like the church was against the strike, and the question was settled. As a matter of fact it is only opened. The strikers are to be content with their wages as against deception and violence. If they must lie and burglarize to get more money the church and all decent men are against them emphatically. If justice and mercy demand more wages the church and decent men are with them emphatically, if they must walk. The church is forever driven to the side of right. Its queries and record clamp it down and rivet it to every good thing on earth.

"The burden the church carries is that it can never be partisan. It cannot, after the Bolshevist fashion, give the two coats to anybody. If one coat to everybody while the coats hold out. It cannot hang the publicans, but demands that they only collect their dues. It cannot dismiss the soldiers though Romans or even Germans. It insists simply that they do their day's work and neither lie nor steal. Sooner or later the whole world gets against the church. Did the whole world ever do that thing at the same time there might be no church. But God is building His church, and the right is with this church, and that partisanship is immortal. The time comes about when everybody would have the church its friend and that way lies the hope of the earth. Were the church to join the union it would be the death of the union and a double funeral. Should the church sell out to capital it would be starvation for rich and poor. The day is near when the world will grow sane and be glad the church is here to stand or fall with nobody. It is partisan with everybody as they go right.

"It is the garment that has value. To be one side only of the scissors is to go cold. It is the flour that feeds. Either side of the millstone would starve the earth. Either root or branch is desert sand. Root and branch make a planet sing. It is the working together that spells good. Co-operation, charity, patience, good will, are the great words under the sun. All aboard!"

"The storm did not cease with the end of the war. To some observers it seems as boisterous and as menacing as it was a year ago. Perhaps it is more menacing, because now the demons we must fight are on the inside instead of the outside, because they are not so clearly revealed to us, because we are not yet thoroughly united and organized for their defeat, and because all of the demon of selfishness has not been cast out of ourselves.

"But God is still in His world. He who was revealed in Christ is with us yet. His right name is Father. His nature is love. His changeless purpose is to bring His world into righteousness, freedom and brotherhood. To fear lest He will let His children perish in the storm of selfishness is to deny, not only His Fatherly love, but also His purpose and His power. After centuries of progress during which history clearly reveals His guiding hand it is most unreasonable to think that the heavenly choir's heralded "Peace on earth" can be doomed to pitiable failure.

"As Christ stilled the waves of the Sea of Galilee, making it possible for the disciples to row their boat to the desired harbor, so will God quiet the passions of men's selfishness that those who work for Him and with Him may bring His will to its accomplishment. It is for us to trust Him and to keep on rowing."

"The world significance of the forthcoming Jewish State in Palestine is commanding public attention everywhere. Zionism aims to obtain a publicly recognized and legally secured home for the Jewish people in Palestine. It asserts that the Jews form not merely a religious community but also a nationality. The Jew, who is the racial marvel of the world, is returning to Palestine.

"More than half of the world's Jews live in eastern Europe where they have been cruelly persecuted and misunderstood for generations. Thy hail with joy a restored Jewish state in the land of their ancient glory. According to the Bible this return was prophesied in ancient times. History is unveiling prophecy at an astonishing rate. Restored to their rightful home which has a strategic position at the gateway of three continents and surrounded by sympathy rather than assailed by the pogrom, the Jews will as a nation again attain a high place in civilization. If the individual Jew has proved such a blessing to humanity in the various fields of human endeavor what may not the Jewish nation contribute.

Prophecy asserts that they will yet prove a blessing to all the nations. The most significant fact concerning the return of the Jews is that it is a scriptual sign of the imminent return of Jesus Christ to the earth. The Jews will finally accept Christ as Lord and King and with the Christians will participate in the great millenial reign of Christ on earth—something to which the Church of Christ has looked forward through the Christian ages."

DR. BRUCE BROWN.
THE WHITE TEMPLE.

Man is not quite a devil. He is still a man for a' that in spite of all his sins and crimson stains. And it is equally true that the good man is not quite an angel. He is only "a man for a' that." The priest was greatly concerned with religion and had ministered faithfully in the temple that day. With prayers and incense and sacrifice he had sought to appease his God. Even now he was conning his ritual. Perhaps he was so religious he had no time to be righteous like many of us. Any way he passed by on the other side like many another man. Every church has discovered that the preacher it now has is just a man with the passions common to humanity. But the preacher whom it is going to get is to be an angel. He will work miracles. Every church wants a little preacherette, with a little halosette around his little headette. It wants him to preach a little sermonette and pay him a little salaryette. But when you get him you may find that he is only a man.

"The poor man oppressed and distressed, hungry, homeless and jobless, ignored and enslaved, is a man. He has God-given rights that no king can usurp. Slow of speech, dull-eyed, work wrenched and storm-drenched, born without gladness, buried without pity, wounded, robbed, naked and half-dead by the roadside, not of your language or religion he is a man. I know full well that many a grimy toiler has no use for me nor my preaching. He believes I am waiting for him in the belfry with a brick to beat him in the back. But a tenderness comes into his tone when he speaks of the great Commoner who told about the "Good Samaritan." He seems to feel the touch of a brother's hand easing his heavy load. He shakes his first at the locked door of the church but lifts his ragged cap when he hears the Army Lass kneeling in the street speak that name in prayer. Perhaps, sometime we shall find that name is the long lost word for which many have searched."

"Since the past fifty years, the seductive delusions made headway under the name Spiritism, New thought, etc. Today the people are perplexed in respect to these things and have asked for information as to the origin of their claims that the spirit of the dead can communicate with the living. Some claim they do while others deny it and say it is all fraud.

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

"In order to educate the people regarding the subject it is necessary for us first to enlighten them regarding the state of the dead.

"The scriptures tell us that the dead are not alive but dead, are "silent," have "no knowledge," "no memory," no "praising," no "cursing"—Isaiah 38:18, Eccles. 9:5, Psa. 6:5, 115:17. They are stone dead "dead as a door nail."

"God made Adam mortal, he had no immortal soul—comdemnation resting upon him was not torment but death. At that time burning hell and purgatory were not patented. Gen. 2:17.

"The first ore that ever preached "a never dying soul" was the devil. It is remarkable that he made almost everybody believe that they have immortal souls. God said "You shall surely die"—Gen. 2:17—but the serpent (the adversary) said no, "Thou shall not surely die." Gen. 3:4.

and in due time take up work somewhere else."

"Under those conditions, do you mind stating to what church you will go?" the doctor was asked.

"At the present moment I cannot say," he answered. "I have not made any promise to any church whatsoever. I might decide to go into evangelistic work. A number of friends have urged this line of service on me and have agreed to finance the campaign if I will take it up.

"Of course, I shall hate to leave Los Angeles. It is the most delightful spot on the face of the earth in which to live. I love the people of this city, and they have treated me like a king. In my church and out of it, no man could ask for more delightful associations or cordial consideration. Nevertheless, I have preached self-denial and self-sacrifice, and our churches have talked them. If there is ever a union of Christian forces, some of us have got to begin practicing these principles as well as proclaiming them."

It was stated by church officials yesterday that the matter of the proposed consolidation of the Temple and First Baptist churches will probably be taken up about the middle of this month when Dr. Francis, who is now on vacation in New York, returns to Los Angeles.

GRAPE PICKERS GO BY TRUCK TO FRESNO.

RECRUITS QUICKLY FOUND BY PUBLIC BUREAU OF EMPLOYMENT.

Two hundred fruit pickers, among which there were twenty families, left Los Angeles by truck yesterday for Fresno and vicinity, to help with the picking of the grape crop. Eight trucks, accommodating twenty-five people to each truck, were used to transport the crowd. Mr. O. V. Cobb, manager of the Valley Fruit Growers' Association, the organization by which these laborers will be employed, started his recruiting campaign here Saturday morning, through the Los Angeles branch of the Public Employment Bureau of California. There is no labor shortage in the San Joaquin Valley this season, according to a statement made by Mr. Cobb, but the normal influx of fruit pickers from Southern California to the San Joaquin Valley was decreased this year by the strike, and in order to get them there this measure was resorted to. Mr. Cobb expects to return next week to get a trainload of laborers for service around Fresno.

Grape pickers are paid this year at the rate of 3½ cents and 4 cents per tray. A few days' experience will enable a picker to increase his earning capacity. For the accommodation of the employees a new group of camps has been opened this year by the Fruit Growers' Association, at which the cost for board and quarters is $1.25 per day. These camps, as regards equipment, have surpassed the requirements of the State law. Camp Fowler, which is fifteen miles from Fresno, has five shower baths, five toilets and running water to all the buildings.

This is the fourth consecutive month that the number of positions filled through the Los Angeles office of the Public Employment Bureau of California has exceeded 5000 per month.

The local office is conducted by Emil J. Bernatche, under supervision of John P. McLaughlen of San Francisco, head of the Bureau of California Labor Statistics.

The Fruit Growers Association is run on a co-operative plan. There are 90,000 acres signed up for a three-year period. Each grower pays 10 cents per acre per year to the association, which defrays all expenses for telephones, office expenses and labor. The association officials employ all the labor for its members, and take care of the distribution of pickers to the growers, who have only to supervise the actual picking of the crop.

Contractor Announces Firm Is Determined to Collect.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Aug. 31.—Porterville people will be compelled to eventually pay for the street paving work which was done here by the Federal Construction Co., even if it is necessary for the corporation to tear up all the present work and lay it over again. This was the statement of M. F. Hanrahan, the secretary of the corporation, in the course of a visit here from San Francisco.

The corporation, Mr. Hanrahan says, is awaiting the outcome of a petition for writ of review, which is to be argued before the Appellate Court on September 22. If the corporation loses, he said, the work will be done over again.

The Porterville City Council has refused to validate bonds for payment for work valued at $120,000 with the statement that the construction was not in accordance with contract.

EDUCATION FOR BUSY WORKERS.

Y.M.C.A. School is to Open for Term Tomorrow.

Record Enlistment Expected for Practical Studies.

Ex-Service Men's Interests Create Added Needs.

Educational courses in sixty different business, trade and technical subjects are scheduled to re-open tomorrow at the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. Registrar W. H. McCauley announced yesterday that preparations were being made for the largest enrollment the Y.M.C.A. schools have ever enjoyed.

With the demobilization of enlisted service men, a new conception of the value of education in business and trade lines has made itself apparent, according to Mr. McCauley. Hundreds of former service men are taking up courses that will fit them for better positions in business. In many instances the new determination has come from contact with the Army. The work of the Personnel Department in the Army probably did more than anything else to demonstrate to young men the need of specialization in education.

Since the period of demobilization began, the automobile and tractor courses of the Y.M.C.A. schools have received a large inflow of students from among service men. Several hundred have been prepared for larger business activities in these courses. Young men fresh from overseas also have taken up special courses such as engineering, wireless telegraphy, advertising, accountancy and other commercial studies, in both day and night schools.

EXPANSION PLANNED.

In assuming the directorship of the educational department, Capt. Roscoe A. Goodcell expects to devise still other means of meeting the returned mens' needs for re-education. Capt. Goodcell will arrive in Los Angeles, September 15.

A number of additional courses are to be included in the curriculum during the fall and winter. Special emphasis is being laid upon what will be known as "business opportunity courses," to be given only at night for young men who are employed in Los Angeles offices. Among the courses offered in this special department are accountancy, advertising, Spanish and salesmanship.

CLASSICAL EDUCATION CHILD DANCER'S AIM.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL ENTERTAINING ALEXANDRIA GUESTS IS AMBITIOUS.

That the soft climate and picturesque beauty of Southern California are the two principal factors, among many others, which are fast making the Southland one of the chief art centers of the world, is the opinion of pretty Mary Gillespie, aged 11 years, who last week entertained hundreds of people at the Hotel Alexandria by her remarkable interpretative dancing. Let not the highbrow critic assume that this auburn-haired, brown-eyed little beauty is too young to discuss art intelligently, for, although not old in years, she is very, very old in knowledge and discourses on Shakespeare and other classical literature in a way that would make the average literary student ashamed of himself.

This fall she will enter high school in Shreveport, La., where she was born and where she began her career in Terpsichore. Her chief ambitions are to become learned in books and to be the greatest dancer in the world, and, from present indications, she has a fair chance of realizing both ambitions. Miss Gillespie began to dance before she was 2 years old, and last week, in the dining-room of the Alexandria, she danced the Pavlowa gavotte—which is quite a leap in nine years, even for a dancer. Her programme also included "The California Fox Trot," a creation of her own. In fact, Miss Gillespie creates many of her dances and places her own interpretation on the dances taught her. She is fond of music and flowers and often runs into the garden, picks a rose and composes and dedicates an impromptu dance to her favorite blossom. At the age of 6 years Mary was engaged by the Saenger Motion Picture Company for a tour embracing several large southern cities. During the war she danced at several cantonments for the Y.M.C.A. and she has been featured at many ceremonials and conventions of the Elks, Masons and other fraternal orders. Yet, with all her knowledge and her natural genius for expressing the poetry of motion, the little girl seems hardly conscious of her talents, but is perfectly natural and wholesome in mind and body. Her mother, Mrs. George Edwin Gillespie, attributes her daughter's good health largely to her training in the Terpsichorean art. Mrs. Gillespie and her gifted daughter will remain in Southern California for at least a month before returning to their home in Shreveport.

SANTA ANA STORE HAS BIG FIRE LOSS.

STOCK DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $50,000 WITH SMALL BUILDING LOSS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, Aug. 31.—Fifty thousand dollars is the estimated loss to the stock of the Reinhaus Brothers' Department Store on account of a fire early this morning, which had, in all probability, burned inside the store building several hours before it was discovered.

The building, a two-story structure at Fourth and Bush streets, is damaged but slightly. It is thought the fire originated in one of the rooms in the second story of the building which is devoted to offices and lodge rooms. The store was closed about 10 o'clock Saturday night and no one connected with the establishment was in the room between that time and the outbreak of the fire.

HEROIC FAMILY NEAR REUNION.

other two saw any more active fighting than the youngest brother. Twice he was gassed and once wounded in the fleshy part of his left arm. Not only has he received the Croix de Guerre, but special citations as well. He is a sergeant and will not be discharged from the service until the latter part of this year.

Emile Christopher at present is working with the Hoover Food Administration. His duties take him from Paris to the Rhine. It is not unlikely that he also will have completed this work by the end of the year.

Henry Christopher has already been discharged from the service and is re-employed in a wholesale house in Paris. He was married recently and is making plans to come to California with his bride.

TWO LUCKY DAYS.

All three of the boys have won the Croix de Guerre. Each in turn has sent his trophy to the father. The dates on which they arrived have led Mr. Christopher to believe his birthday and St. Valentine's are his lucky days. Emile's cross arrived on his father's seventy-third birthday. This was the first, received about two years ago. Henry's Croix de Guerre arrived about six months later, on St. Valentine's; Robert's the following St. Valentine's. Also, Henry was released from the service on Mr. Christopher's seventy-fifth birthday.

At one time each of Mr. Christopher's sons was serving in a different Allied army. Emile was attached to British headquarters, Henry to American, while the youngest boy was with the French troops. Henry's transfer followed a curious sequence of events. He was destined for the duty many months before the war closed, but April 23, 1918, during the great drive of the Germans, he was taken prisoner and sent to a prison camp in Turingen, where he remained until December 28, 1918. Upon his release he was sent to American headquarters to fill the duty with which his capture had interfered.

During his stay in the prison camp he had a very interesting experience. Owing to his knowledge of languages he was made interpreter for the camp and was treated with every courtesy. His quarters were of the best and he had privileges not accorded to the other prisoners.

The bars on the ribbons of the Christophers' Croix de Guerre bear the names of some of the greatest battles fought on French and Belgian soil. The war crosses are not yet complete either, and Mr. Christopher, Sr., is daily anticipating the arrival of the extra bars.

RARE GOOD FORTUNE.

The regiments to which the boys belonged, at least in the case of Emile and Henry, have been decimated in the battles they went through. Neither of the young men, however, suffered any wounds. They have seen replacements literally shot into pieces on the front and they have had many narrow escapes. They have been cutoff from their companions and lost even for days, but have always escaped without injury. Each of the boys has received citiations for bravery and the letters from the mother, with whom they were all recently together at the same time, have glowed with praise for her sons.

Mr. Christopher at his home in Venice, despite the weight of his years, is all animation when he speaks of the exploits of his sons.

"I am the happiest man in the world," he said. "As regards the past, I only wish that I could have been with my boys in France. If I had known then what I do now, I would have gone, because I feel sure my knowledge of languages could have been put to use for the service of my country. That is—I still remains the country of my birth, although I am now an American citizen. I received my final papers April 25 of this year. This also makes my wife and youngest son citizens of this country, and I believe the two older boys will become Americans in reality, as they are in spirit.

"As regards the future," continued Mr. Christopher, "I have but one cherished hope, and that is that my family may be reunited in dear, great Los Angeles."

Brothers Meet Again in Paris.

Left to right, Henry, Emile and Robert Christopher, with their mother, Mrs. A. D. Christopher, in the foreground. Below are shown the crosses awarded each of the brothers. Henry's bears the names of the battles of Verdun, Aisne, Marne and Argonne; Emile's, those of Champagne, Argonne and Verdun, and Robert's, whose insignia also has the regimental citation cord, those of Aisne, Verdun and Belgique.

RARE MINERALS METALLURGY CHEMISTRY.

You are politely requested to submit samples, carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make sample of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with send, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Silicate and Carbonate.

RICARDO, Aug. 15.—Q.: I send you by this mail three samples for classification and analyses. No. 1 gives a white precipitate with sulphuric acid from hydrochloric acid solution; is it strontianite or witherite, and how can the two minerals be differentiated? No. 2 is a silicate; like tungsten ore it is heavy, and I think it might be heavy spar; does it contain any witherite? No. 3 is some sort of crystal mineral; what is it? All of the samples from a locality between Ricardo and Randsburg. W.

A.: No. 1 sample is not the valuable mineral witherite (barium carbonate of chemistry;) it is strontianite, (strontium carbonate.)

Given a solution of hydrochloric acid with strontianite or witherite, chemically pure hydrochloric acid, as reagent, throws down a bulky while precipitate. To distinguish between the two carbonates it is well to remember: Strontianite dissolves in hydrochloric acid with considerable effervescence; witherite more slowly. Witherite fuses readily before the blowpipe and forms a clear bead which becomes opaque and white in cooling, and on charcoal boils violently, turns caustic and is absorbed by the charcoal. Witherite is poisonous. Strontianite, before the flame, fuses at the edges; swells up into a cauliflower-like mass, and becomes highly incandescent, and this mass is alkaline in reaction. While before the blowpipe strontianite colors the flame strontium red; witherite colors the flame yellowish green. Both minerals are No. 4 in the scale of hardness and both of them are brittle in tenacity. The specific weight of witherite is 4.2; that of strontianite is 3.7. No. 2 is impure "heavy spar," or baryte of mineralogy; witherite is not present in the sample, and the impurities are iron and manganese oxides. No. 3 is a reddish brown eight-sided prism of rutile (binoxide of titanium.) It is a valuable mineral, and when pure contains 98.5 per cent. titanic acid with 1.5 per cent. iron peroxide.

Sodium Sulphate.

GOLCONDA (Ariz.) Aug. 16.—Q.: Will you please tell what the enclosed samples are? Is No. 1 nitrate of potash? Is No. 2 potash? Both samples from a dry lake about fifteen miles from Golconda. T.

A.: Sample No. 1 is sulphate of soda (Glauber salt.) No. 2 is iron alum (halotrichite of mineralogy.) There is no available potash in either sample.

Sodium sulphate occurs so abundantly in the Far West, and in portions of Southwestern California, that the price of such mineral is very low. Iron alum is often utilized as a base for certain inks.

Sulphate and Carbonate.

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 16.—Q.: Enclosed find samples of rock, and I believe they contain strontium. H.

A.: Sample A is a fine variety of lime carbonate; acicular and massive, and it is Aragonite of mineralogy.; strontium absent. B is strontium sulphate chemically, and Celestite of mineralogy. The specimen is rather low grade.

Celestite, when pure, contains over 40 per cent. sulphuric acid, and strontia some 55 per cent. Baryte (barium sulphate) present in sample B.

Silbnite and Siderite.

RAY (Ariz.) Aug. 17.—Q.: I would like you to say what samples are, and state values, if any. No. 1 comes from twenty-two miles distant from Ray, and No. 2 is from a claim in Nevada. Will you also say if antimony has any value? M.

A.: Sample No. 1 is typical siderite (iron carbonate;) of vitreous luster; yellowish brown in color; brittle, and four in the scale of hardness. Siderite effervesces in weak acids, and is often found associated with sulphite ores and flodrite (iron carbonate;) of vitreous (kidney shaped) make up. No. 2 is high grade stibnite (antimony sulphite,) of lead gray color and grayish black streak. The sample is of columnar habit and fibrous in structure; it melts in the flame of a candle, and on charcoal, before the blowpipe gives a white coating which turns bluish-green in the reducing flame; it is soluble in hydrochloric acid.

Edson S. Baston, in bulletin of United States geological survey, entitled, "Antimony in 1917," shows that the United States is dependent upon three classes of material as sources of antimony or its alloys or compounds. (1.) Antimony ore is imported from China (direct or via Japan,) Bolivia (via Chile and Peru,) and Mexico, and small quantities of ore are produced in the Western United States. (2.) Liquated antimony sulphite, also known as "crude antimony," "needle antimony," and "antimony matte," is imported in small quantity from China. . . . (2.) Metallic antimony, known as antimony regulus, is imported from China, Japan, and Mexico, and is produced in small quantity in the United States. A fourth class of material is antimonial lead, carrying from 12 to 18 per cent. antimony. The United States has always been dependent mainly on foreign sources for its supplies of antimony.

There are many deposits of antimony sulphide in California, Nevada, Idaho and Utah, and the main reasons why the United States cannot compete with the countries named, are high wages, and railroad rates. The same reasons often apply to sulphur importations also.

The Western United States and Alaska produced ores of antimony in 1917. Nevada led, with a production of about 870 short tons, and was followed by Alaska, with less than 100 tons, and by California, Idaho and Utah with less than fifty tons each. The total reported for the United States was about 1060 short tons having an average tenor of about 37 per cent. metallic antimony. The highest grade of metallic antimony, New York prices, in 1917, was 20.69 cents per pound.

It would therefore appear that legislation is needed in order to protect home industries, not only on the ores of antimony, but on those of manganese, chrome, and the metalloid, sulphur.

Of Doubtful Value.

PASADENA, Aug. 18.—Q.: I am sending under separate cover sample of ore. Kindly tell me what it contains. P.

A.: The sample is practically gneiss; "soft granite" of the mining boys. It contains some hornblende; manganese-iron sparingly present; muscovite (potash mica) traces, and microscopical pyrite with molybdenite; traces of each.

Complex Minerals.

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) Aug. 17.—Q.: I am sending under separate cover a small sample of ore, in which I would like to know what kind of metal or metals it contains. I understand you maintain a bureau for this purpose. Thanking you in advance for this service. E.

A.: The sample consists of eight specimens, and they are of such a complex nature that it calls for quantitative analyses to determine definitely what they consist of. Qualitatively, and aided by the microscope, it is shown that uranium is not present in any sample. Crystallized galenite, and calamine appear under the glass. Cerussite (lead carbonate) is sparingly detected; lime-magnesia; ferrous and ferric oxides in the samples with quartz, and altered chrysolite traces. Vanadium not present, and not further sampled.

Sedimentary Detritus.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Q.: Please test. W.

A.: The sample is named in the sub-heading, and carries a very low per cent. of available (water soluble) potash.

Traces Microscopic Pyrite.

OCEANO, Aug. 19.—Q.: A party drilling a well for water finds the shale in small package sent from Oceano in well at 100 foot depth. Kindly inform me if it has any value. N.

A.: The large sample is hydrous magnesium silicate chiefly, and carries traces of iron sulphate. The small specimen is a silicious, talcose shale, and has a cast in it resembling that of the nesting place of a mollusk or shell. There is present in this shale microscopical pyrite in traces, with iron sulphate detected.

Salines.

LITTLE LAKE, Aug. 19.—Q.: I am sending you samples of earth from Little Lake, Cal. Please test each sample for potash. F. B. A.

A.: No. 1, sedimentary, contains some sodium chloride and sulphate; available potash approximately 2 per cent. No. 2 earth and rootlets, potash some 2 per cent. No. 3 like No. 2. All samples carry aluminum silicate, and traces of magnesia with lime.

Aluminum Silicates.

PASADENA, Aug. 19.—Q.: I am a subscriber to your paper and I would like to know what kind of ore the samples I am sending to you are. I think they are clay. This deposit is over 200 feet wide and is in San Diego county in the vicinity of Vista. There are five samples and will you kindly tell me what they contain and what is this material good for, also is there a market for it. Will you also tell me if there is any hope of finding oil in that vicinity for they are starting to drill around San Diego and Mission. In certain parts of this land there is a great deal of quartz all over the surface, there are several gullies cutting through and there is a hard black substance with streaks of sand running through it. Each sample will have a number. Thanking you in advance for an early reply. A.

A.: To judge oil territory by the samples you submit would not be encouraging for hydrocarbons, and relating to oil drilling at the localities by you stated, let us hope that success will be the result. The day is past when one can positively state that oil occurs in such and such a variety of rocks and minerals found therewith. Alkali metals or their carbonates, however, are not present in the oil lands. Petroleum is found in almost every country in the world. Every known rock (except the eruptive) contains the remains of vegetable and animal organisms; oil and gas are from the decomposition of organic remains. Oil and gas can possibly be found in rocks of any geological age, subsequent to the archaen. A most excellent indication in drilling is the finding of natural gas." There can be no gas, however, stored up in the oldest rocks, and according to Leslie: Whatever rock oil has been found there and in the surrounding region rock-gas is sure to exist.

Sample No. 1 is in part adobe—clay; hydrous magnesium, and aluminum, silicate present. No. 2 is of aluminum-magnesium silicate, and trace of sulphates. No. 3 is altered feldspathic rock with too great a per cent. of iron for clay values. No. 4 is altered rock; magnesium and aluminum silicate and sodium sulphate, low per cent. Quartz present. No. 5 is hydrous magnesium-aluminum silicates, with quite a per cent. of iron. Aluminum oxide traces in all samples.

FAVOR BOND ISSUE.

Tulare Citizens Vote to Erect Memorial Auditorium.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

TULARE, Aug. 31.—Tulare taxpayers, assembled in mass meeting yesterday, voted almost without exception in favor of a bond issue of $100,000 for construction of a memorial auditorium. The meeting was called at the instance of the Tulare city officials to consider the situation created when it was found that the bonds in the amount of $60,000 voted here some months ago, and sold to a Fresno bank, were found by the bank's attorney to be technically defective.

The taxpayers present at the conference were agreed that the large amount will be needed under present conditions with the large increase in costs of building materials of all classes.

EDISON COMPANY TO PENSION EMPLOYEES.

WORKERS WILL RETIRE WITH PAY AFTER SERVING COMPANY TWENTY YEARS.

A liberal pension system has been announced by the Southern California Edison Company and subsidiary organizations. The announcement states that employees reaching the age of 60 and having served the company for twenty years are entitled to a percentage of their salary, based upon the average amount received in the five years previous. In no case, it is said, is the pension to be less than $25 a month. Stress is laid upon the point that the innovation is not to be regarded as charity, but as a legal right.

An example is given in the announcement which was made in the Edison Company's magazine, Current Topics. A man receiving an average salary of $150 a month for the previous five years shall be allowed a pension of $82.50 a month during the balance of his life. Women are to be pensioned at the age of 55.

Employees of the Southern California Edison Company, Mt. Whitney Power and Electric Company, Santa Barbara Gas and Electric Company, Santa Barbara and Suburban Railway Company, San Joaquin and Eastern Railroad Company and the Huntington Lake Hotel Company are affected by the new ruling.

LOYAL FUND GROWS.

Angelenos Continue to Send Money to Men Who Rescued Cattle.

The fund being collected for the men who rescued the cattle abandoned by the striking steam railroaders reached $120 yesterday when Mrs. Elizabeth C. Fisher, of Heliotrope drive sent $10 to The Times.

NO SALOONS; HIGHER TAX.

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 31.—The city tax rate has been fixed at $2.25 on the hundred dollars valuation. Although this rate is lower than that of last year, the returns will be greater, owing to the increased valuation of city property.

The raise in assessment value was made necessary by the deficit caused by the lack of revenue from saloon licenses, when the county went dry.

TEST VALIDITY BLUE SKY LAW.

Former Service Men Declare Law Unconstitutional.

Say Commissioner Combines Three Departments.

Permission to Sell Stocks is Being Sought.

The constitutionality of the blue sky law will be brought before the courts September 8 when Superior Judge Andrews of San Diego will be called on to pass upon the application of a group of former service men for a permanent injunction restraining Corporation Commissioner Bellows from interfering with the sale of stock which they say they own in a company, organized under Arizona laws to develop oil lands in the Imperial Valley. The stock was transferred to them under some arrangement with the company and placed by them in the hands of a trustee for sale for purposes of development. They charge that their legitimate right to sell the stock has been restricted and hampered by the commissioner so as to render operation impossible.

CONSTITUTION MANDATORY.

Citing the language of the Constitution of California, declaring that all its provisions are mandatory or prohibitory, as the case may be, unless otherwise specified in the Constitution itself, the complaint goes on to declare that the so-called blue sky law is unconstitutional in that it attempts to confer upon the corporation commissioner a combination of legislative, executive and judicial powers, which the Constitution distinctly provides shall be vested each in a separate department of the State government and which cannot be lawfully combined in the same office or individual.

Furthermore, the complaint contends, the law is unconstitutional and void, for the reason that the powers which it pretends upon the corporation commissioner would make him a judge, that the Constitution provides that all judges shall be elected by the people, except in the case of a vacancy, in which case only the Governor can appoint a judge to office, and that the so-called blue sky law provides that the corporation commissioner shall be an executive appointee.

It is contended that the law is void because the Constitution forbids judicial officers, other than justices of the peace and court commissioners, diverting to their own use or that of their offices any fees received for services, and the blue sky law provides that certain identical fees received by the corporation commissioner, whom it is contended is in fact a judicial officer by the nature of the duties imposed upon him, shall be used to defray the expense of his salary and office.

Again, it is contended that by making the corporation commissioner a judicial officer with the right of appeal to the Superior Court only and strictly limited to an inquiry as to whether or not there has been an abuse of discretion on his part in a given case, the Legislature has attempted to make the commissioner a court of first instance and final appeal in one, in which hearings are ex parte and arbitrary, with no provision for the trial by jury to which a litigant is entitled by the provisions of the Constitution. It is held that the Constitution distinctly provides for rights of appeal to the District Appellate and Supreme courts.

RIGHT OF SALE.

Besides the attempt to have the courts declare the entire blue sky law unconstitutional because of the judicial powers conferred upon the corporation commissioner, the action is intended to bring before the judicial authorities the question of the right of the Legislature to interfere with and restrict the right of individuals to sell their stock holdings freely and to purchase such stocks as they may desire free from legal restriction so long as no actual fraud is charged or established. It is contended that the penal statutes of California provide ample protection against fraud without the necessity for the corporation commissioner exercising arbitrary powers of supervision and control over legitimate private buying and selling.

Another point raised is the right of the corporation commissioner to establish a censorship over the advertising columns of newspapers, which, it is asserted, he is attempting to put into force. The court is asked to restrain Commissioner Bellows from any attempt to prevent the press printing advertisements of the stock which they are offering for sale.

Atty.-Gen. Webb will appear in court in behalf of Commissioner Bellows and of Dist.-Atty Utley of San Diego county, who has been made a nominal co-defendant. The suit is brought by John A. Jose, et al, R. M. Widney of Los Angeles and Eugene Daney of San Diego, both former superior judges, are the attorneys.

Trust Company to Sell Securities in Order to Pay Taxes.

The Security Trust and Savings Bank and Wm. F. Sesser, as administrators of the estate of Alfred Shepard, deceased, in order to raise funds to pay the large Federal estates tax, amounting to about $90,000, to which the estate of the late Alfred Shepard is subject, are offering for sale $37,000 par value Liberty Loan Bonds, and $15,000 Municipal Bonds.

Alfred Shepard, a resident of this city, died here last September, leaving an estate of about $1,000,000, and under the terms of the Federal Law the tax on his estate is due one year after his death.

Bids are to be made at the Trust Department of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, and the sale will be made on or after the second day of September, to the highest bidder.

NEVADA MINES ACTIVE.

Several New Discoveries of Lead, Silver, Gold Made.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RESERVATION (Nev.) Aug. 31.—With several discoveries of rich silver, lead and gold deposits recorded in widely separated parts of the field the Mountain View district, approximately two miles from Reservation, is coming into the spotlight. Several strongly-financed companies have been formed recently to operate the most promising properties, and shipments are to start shortly from mines that have been undergoing limited development several years.

Controlled by California and Nevada people the V-7 Mining Company has been incoporated to operate a group of five claims in the heart of the district. On the 100 level of the fist shaft an ore body three to four feet wide has been uncovered that samples $145 per ton in silver, gold and lead. The ledge also shows in No. 2 shaft, which is to be immediately sent to a depth of 200 feet. The company is controlled by W. E. Casson and F. L. Wildes, of Carson City, George L. Hedges of Reservation, and a group of Oakland capitalists.

The Elkton Divide Company has taken under lease for three years one of the most promising deposits in the district, and expects to start shipments before the winter appears. This deposit contains a large vein of high-grade silver-lead ore, and mine development is to start early in October. The company also owns two claims in the north half of the Divide field. C. H. Church, Tonopah, is president, and S. C. Jamelson, of Tonopah, secretary and manager. Leading stockholders are Wils Brougher and W. E. Casson of Carson City, and O. F. and F. T. Krebs of San Francisco.

Arrangements are also being made for vigorous operations at the Reservation Hill, Packsaddle, Mountain View and other mines which have been developed sufficiently to demonstrate important deposits of shipping ore. The shipping point is Reservation, a station on the Mina branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

DEVELOP POSO FIELD.

Oil Companies Expect Big Returns from Wells in New District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—The Associated Oil Company is continuing its work in the new Poso Creek oil fields in Kern County with a vigor that augurs an increased production in 1920 if the wells are as productive as expected by the officials.

During the past week the Associated spudded in two new wells northwest of the old Kern field in section 28, 28-28, and more are to follow. Several wells are standing cemented and are expected to be brought in within ten days. A number of leases of oil land are pending awaiting the result of the wells, which will be tested for water shutoff within a day or so.

Lewis R. Byington, manager for Federal Receiver of Oil Lands Lewis F. Byington, is carrying on considerable work in the vicinity of Maricopa and has during the past week or ten days begun a new well for the Miocene and Obispo Oil companies on the property which is involved in government litigation. Development work is being continued on all the properties under the charge of the receiver as fast as practicable.

A new well, No. 6, is beinb put down on the Midway Pacific Oil Company's lease near Maricopa. The well is being drilled in after a successful water shut-off.

The No. 5 well of the Obispo company was brought in a few days ago with a 200-barrel flow. The well was flowing without being pumped, but has been put on the beam to increase the production about three-quarters more and to keep it under better control.

The No. 4 well on the Brookshire property, near Maricopa, is a new ninety-barrel well that was also completed during the week.

The rotary has been moved off the No. 13 well belonging to the Recovery Oil Company in the Fellows district, and the well is now being drilled in at 1900 feet.

Two new wells are in the course of being drilled in the Lost Hills district.

R. C. KERENS'S WILL.

Granddaughter Enters Suit Over Estate of Missouri Politician.

A "lost will," purporting to have been made by the late Richard C. Kerens, former Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, is referred to in a depcoalition just filed in the Circuit Court here in connection with the suit brought by Katharyne Janavince Kerens to break the will dated April 10, 1916, and probated as Keren's last testament.

Katharyne Janavince Kerens is a daughter of Vincent Kerens, the testator's son. Under the 1916 will Vincent Keren's share of the estate was put in trust and his income limited and there was a provision that his share would revert to other heirs unless he could show that he had abstained from intoxicants and had been of good habits for a period of five consecutive years.

The deposition just filed is that of William Allen, a New York lawyer, who at one time was Richard C. Keren's private secretary. It was taken in New York June 5 on behalf of the defense in the will contest suit.

One of the questions asked of Allen was whether he knew that it was the purpose of Miss Kerens in the will contest suit to bring forward the will of December 5, 1915, and try to have it probated, in the event of a successful termination of the contest. He said he did not know of this purpose, but had heard it had been alleged that the 1915 will differed from all others made by Kerens in that it gave one-third of the estate to Vincent Kerens unconditionally.

Attorney George H. Williams, who conducted the examination of the defense, was asked if he would produce the 1915 will. His answer, carefully worded, left it to be inferred that such a will existed, but that it was not in his possession.

Attorney Allen testified that between 1906 and 1914 he drew up eight wills for Richard C. Kerens, in each of which limitations and conditions were put on the bequest to Vincent Kerens. His testimony showed that in the later years of his life Kerens devoted much of his time to consideration of the final disposal of his estate.

An inventory filed in the probate court here valued Kerens's personal property alone at $6,565,000. In addition there were large realty holdings.—[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

FOOD PRICES DECLINING.

Crisis of Last Week is Passed; Adjusting of Costs Expected Soon.

The dog days seem to be over, both climatically and from a standpoint of business, investment and finance. The crisis which impended during the early days of last week has apparently blown out to sea without doing more than ruffling the surface of the waters. The good ship was never really in danger, and the disturbances failed to seriously affect the investment market or to retard the advance being made in Los Angeles and throughout the State in every line.

The most encouraging feature of the situation is the trend towards a lower food price level and while this has not yet made much difference in local markets, the very fact that such a consummation is coming, has been sufficient to hearten the long suffering ultimate consumer and the week starts under decidedly encouraging auspices.

The financial and commercial outlook is summarized by Henry Clews in a current review. "In stock market values," he says, "there has been a further shrinkage, which could only be expected under the pressure of so many unfavorable factors. Among these are the general unrest, the uncertain labor situation, the unsatisfactory status of the railroads, the fal lin exchange, the limitations of the money market, the regrettable delay in ratifying the peace treaty, and the Mexican outlook.

"It would seem as if these drawbacks had been sufficiently discounted by the heavy fall of the last six weeks, and that the attractive prices at which many good securities are offered would invite good investment buying. It is premature, however, to assume that the turn has been reached, when uncertainties are so numerous. As a matter of fact the market is quite as likely to show sudden changes for better or worse, as it is to settle down into comparative inaction. And yet, in view of the present low level of prices, there is really no reason for discouragement.

"General business will probably continue active, unless choked off by unreasoning demands. Labor leaders if they push too hard will surely injure their own cause and bring on stagnation under which they will be the chief losers. If wise they will exercise patience and allow time for business to gradually adjust itself to the new level. Profiteering which is common to all classes is being rapidly curbed by vigilance of the Government; and prevention, it should be remembered, will be an important if not unseen help in the future.

"The railroad outlook is not entirely discouraging despite the roads' unsatisfactory physical and financial conditions. In reality the situation is so bad that it must soon improve; and whether the roads are returned to, their owners or taken over by the Government, something will have to be done to compensate for the injuries inflicted upon the roads by the war.

"It would also seem that the public utility crisis has reached the point where the public in its own interest must see that they have fair play, due protection and be placed upon a self-supporting basis, in order to establish them in a position that will fit them for public service and attract needed capital. Activity in the building trade is becoming more and more pronounced; the only check to its further development being the high prices of raw material and the extraordinary wages obtained by labor.

"Western trade is active, and interior department stores report good business at all the large cities. Farmers are more prosperous than for many years. Labor is well employed, and despite the high cost of living a large proportion of wage earners have more money and more comforts than ever before. It should not be forgotten that this nation has been injured less and benefited more by the war than any other nation in the world.

READJUSTMENT DIFFICULT.

"The reconstruction period through which we are now passing in company with other nations is far more disturbing than was the war itself. Climbing up to new levels and adapting ourselves to new standards are usually processes of a painful character, and are necessarily accompanied with much inconvenience and friction. This has always been so. The movement is both economic and psychological; economic because the industrial problem is largely one of supply and demand; and psychological for the reason that the public mind, after five terrible years of sorrow and suffering, is irritable and very unreasonable.

"Under such conditions it is perfectly natural for human nature to react into all sorts of extremes, and these must be accepted with forbearance.

THE FIFTY-CENT DOLLAR.

"The high cost of living, the necessity of helping to provide food for the rest of the world, the big wages paid to all who were engaged in manufacturing goods and munitions during the war, the scarcity of unskilled laborers due to so many of that class returning to their home countries in Europe since the war ended and the demands of railroad employees, mechanics and skilled labor of all kinds for higher wages, have naturally lessened the purchasing power of the dollar; and has still more lessened the purchasing power of foreign money.

"Workmen of all degrees are demanding that railroad and industrial corporations give them not only higher pay but a share of the profits and a voice in management. This problem is a most difficult one to solve, and will require great wisdom for its settlement. Today the United States is the money and supply center of the world, and it will be for a long time to come, owing to the billions of money we have advanced to other nations.

"The outcome is difficult to even guess at, as there is no precedent in history with which to base a comparison. The best way for employees to gain an interest in the profits of the railroads with which they are connected, which they are now seeking to obtain, is to adopt the same system that the United States Steel Corporation has for its employees, that is, to make a purchase of the securities of the various properties with which they are identified. Then they become virtual partners. That is the only way I can conceive of that will enable them to achieve their ambition, and it is a perfectly feasible and legitimate way.

"The quickest and most effective way to put an end to the present strikes is for Congress to apply the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law in relation to the formation of combinations, for, when employees strike, they certainly operate in restraint of trade. If the power to strike were taken from labor and it was superseded by boards of arbitration, all questions between capital and labor could be amicably settled without creating the unsettled conditions that now prevail.

FALL IN EXCHANGE.

"The exchange situation is growing more and more difficult; and rates have declined to new low records, owing to the great pressure of commercial bills, especially grain and cotton. Sterling has fallen over 14 per cent.; francs, 25 per cent.; lire, 44 per cent., and marks nearly 80 per cent. Our export trade is already feeling the deadening effect of this great impairment of buying power; and unless some effective form of relief is found, serious injury will follow to our trade and shipping.

"If Europe does not soon obtain the sorely-needed credit, reconstruction abroad will be halted, and turned into industrial and political chaos, the ill effects of which would be seriously felt over here. Little progress seems to have been made at Washington with the Edge bill, which permits the formation of American corporations to finance foreign trade. But the American Bankers' Association is endeavoring to awaken public opinion to action upon this problem, which is vital to our foreign trade, as well as to European reconstruction, upon which our continued prosperity largely depends. One prominent foreign financial authority has suggested the formation of a co-operative international pool for the support of international credit. His plan is for a loan of £5,000,000,000 issued to investors in all parts of the world, and guaranteed by all the interested governments."

WAGE SCALE SETTLED.

Oil Men and Workers Arrange all Matters in Dispute.

The oil operators, refiners and pipe line companies for a week have had their representatives in session at the Federal Building, with the representatives of the workmen engaged upon the work of arranging the many details of the wage schedule, the main features of which have been agreed upon. The schedule ought to be ready to be given out before long.

Apparently, all danger of any labor disturbance in the oil fields has passed for the present. The new schedule is expected to remain in effect for one full year, after which if the plans of the radical element in the labor ranks are carried out the fight for the closed shop and still higher wages will be reopened. It is expected to be opposed to the utmost by the great body of employers.

The minimum wage will be $5 per day for roustabouts or semi-skilled labor. For all higher grades there will be a proportionate increase and a bonus will be paid at the end of the year to all men who have remained on the job, a plan which is calculated to discourage greatly any strike movement.

Ford Must Pay Tax on Six Cents.

The verdict of the Mt. Clemens jury awarding Henry Ford 6 cents damage for the Chicago Tribune editorial calling him an anarchist, was officially noted by James J. Brady, internal revenue collector, the other day and when the 6 cents is paid, it will be entered in the collector's books as additional income to Mr. Ford, and he will be charged income tax on it. Mr. Brady makes a point of watching all sources of income in Michigan, among which are court decisions.—[Detroit News.

THRONGS WILL PICNIC TODAY.

Merry Outings at Seaside and in the Hills.

Grocers to Hold High Jinks Down at Venice.

Gulf States', Scottish Clans', Shoe Folks' Affairs.

Several societies, other than those of union labor, are planning picnics for today, Labor Day, chief among which will be the entertainment at Venice, given by the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association, and the reunion at Sycamore Grove of the former residents of the five great States bordering on the Gulf of Mexico.

All who have lived in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama or Florida are included in the cordial invitation to attend the picnic at Sycamore Grove. As Monday is a holiday and all of the offices and stores will be closed all day, it is expected that all of the former residents of these States will attend the picnic.

Minor Moore is president of the Texas Society; W. A. Brown, president of the Alabama Society; Sidney K. Johnson, president of the Louisiana Society; R. L. Summerlin, president of the Florida Society; J. W. Falkner, president of the Mississippi Society. Further information may be had from C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, at the Hibernian Savings Bank, in the former location of the California Savings Bank, Spring and Fourth streets. Phones: 10459; Main 5635.

For those who have not yet made plans for the day a cordial invitation is extended by the Southern California Grocers' Association to join in on the big frolic at Venice. When it comes to having a picnic the grocers are "wizards" at the game, and they say that if the following programme does not appeal to a pleasure-seeker then his love for real wholesome pleasure is slight:

Location—"Race Through the Clouds" Grounds, Venice.

At 10 a.m.—Sport and athletic contests; 100-yard dash for men; 50-yard dash for fat men; potato race for fat men; relay race for fat men. For women: 75-yard dash; 50-yard dash; potato race; stout women's contest; relay race; $500 in prizes.

At noon—Free luncheon. Concert by the Venice of America Band. Addresses by prominent Southland speakers on "The High Cost of Living and Its Remedy."

At 1:30 p.m.—Canoe football contest between the quintette of grocers' beauties and the Venice bathing girls. A water contest that holds plenty of thrills with sidelights of comedy.

At 3 p.m.—Water contests; 100-yard and mile swims; free for all.

At 2:30 p.m.—Carnival features. Distribution of samples and displays of Southern California products.

At 2:45 p.m.—Trip around all the Venice concessions.

At 9 p.m.—Fireworks at end of pier. $1000 carnival at the Venice dance pavilion.

One does not have to be a grocer to come. Even the humblest customer will be assured of a first-class time.

The Caledonian Club and Clan Cameron will picnic at Eagle Rock, with a programme of sports and amusements in the afternoon.

The employees of the five retail shoe stores of the E. Olcovich Company will enjoy an outing at Santa Monica Canyon. Those participating will assemble at 227 South Broadway at 9 o'clock this morning and go by motors to the canyon.

Former residents of Lyon county, Kansas, forming the Americus Club, will hold their annual picnic at Brookside Park, Pasadena.

OIL BROKER HERE FROM TENNESSEE.

Hugh Humphreys, president of Humphreys-Godwin Company of Memphis, Tenn., is in Los Angeles after a cross-country trip by automobile. Mr. Humphreys heads the largest vegetable oil brokerage business in the Mississippi Valley. He is a member of the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' Association.

Accompanying Mr. Humphreys is Mrs. Humphreys, their daughter and two little sons. They are temporarily at the Maryland in Pasadena.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

Perry W. Weidner, Grand Warden of the Knights Templar of the United States, will leave today for the Pioneer Convention at Philadelphia of that organization which begins September 9. Upon the closing of the convention he will make a tour, visiting Detroit, Montreal, Boston and New York. Mr. Weidner plans on being in Washington on October 1. He will attend the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite order which opens October 20.

SHOOTS DRIVER, BATTLES POSSE.

Ex-Soldier Nabbed After Wild Chase to Santa Barbara.

Confesses Wounding Rent Car Man at Calabasas.

Victim Previously Wounded by Sailor Suspects.

After a wild pursuit by officers of two counties and several gun battles in the dark, a man who gave the name of Stanley Milton Baker was arrested in Santa Barbara early yesterday morning and charged with being the bandit who shot and seriously wounded Louis Iacano, a Los Angeles taxi driver, near Calabasas shortly before midnight Saturday.

A confession, in which the suspect said he fired in self-defense, but denied that he had any accomplices, or that any motive other than robbery lay behind the crime, was obtained by Capt. W. J. Wall of the Santa Barbara police, according to information received by Al Manning, superintendent of the criminal department of the Sheriff's office here yesterday.

The shooting of Iacano is believed by the Los Angeles authorities to have been planned with deliberation and for a motive stronger than mere robbery. It was the second attack on him, according to the police records. On the night of August 13, those records show, Iacano was hired by three sailors and a civilian to drive them to Long Beach and when the automobile neared Signal Hill one of the men in the back of the car shot at Iacano's head. The bullet plowed its way through the man's ear, and the men in the back part of the automobile threw him out, driving away with his car. According to the Sheriff's deputies here, three men were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Strong in a College-street rooming-house and later turned over to the naval authorities in Santa Barbara, where the ship was stationed at the time.

SHOT WITHOUT WARNING.

Saturday night Iacano, who lives at 434 South Figueroa street, and whose stand is at Pershing Square, was hired by one man to drive him to a ranch near Calabasas. At the time he was hired, Iacano did not recognize the passenger as anyone whom he had ever seen before.

As the car neared the destination Iacano noticed a smaller automobile. Two men inside of it ordered him to stop, but Iacano, remembering his recent experience, refused to halt and drove on.

The bandit then asked him why he refused to stop.

"I'm afraid those two fellows are bandits," Iacano replied.

"But you'll have to go back there because that's where I live and where my money is," the man replied.

The driver turned the car around and as it approached the spot where the other machine stood, the passenger shot Iacano twice. One bullet entered the abdomen and the other through one arm and passed on into the chest. The bandit then threw Iacano out of the car and drove on, the victim told the officers.

Iacano was found a short time afterward by a man who had been stopped on the road a short distance away and ordered to halt by two men. These, the police believe, were the same bandits that attempted to halt Iacano. The man in the second car refused to stop and drove by the robber-suspects. A few minutes later he found Iacano's body on the road, and took him to Calabasas, where he telephoned to the Sheriff's office.

Deputy Sheriff Hotz, in charge of the night crew, at once dispatched Deputy Sheriffs Modle and Johnson and at the same time gave the alarm to all Southern California points. Before being moved to the County Hospital, Iacano told Deputy Sheriffs Modle and Johnson that he recognized the bandit as one of the men who was in the car when he was shot the night he was taking the sailors to Long Beach.

DUEL WITH BANDITS.

The bandit left Calabasas in the touring automobile belonging to Iacano. A description of it was telephoned to Sheriff Rose of Santa Barbara, who informed Chief of Police Lester Beagrandchamp, and the latter called out all his force. Capt. Newman and Detective Marquette were stationed at the east limits of the city, armed with revolvers and a shotgun. At 3 a.m. the officers were dazzled by the headlights of an approaching car. They stepped into the road to signal it down, but the driver sent the car forward at redoubled speed. As it shot by the officers opened fire, but the bullets went wild.

They pressed a passing machine into service, and raced with the fugitive car through the city. Seeing the pursuing car rapidly approaching, the bandit abandoned his machine, and fled across vacant lots. The police fired several shots at him as he disappeared in the darkness.

Sheriff Rose covered one section of town and then drove to the Southern Pacific station, where the southbound train was due. He found Baker huddled up in a seat. The Sheriff recognized the fugitive at the first glance, so accurately had the wounded auto driver described him to the Sheriff of Los Angeles. "Two small pimples on the side of the face, and in army uniform," was the description with other details.

CONFESSES CRIME.

At the station he said his name is Stanley Milton Baker and that he did the shooting.

"I shot in self-defense; it was a case of who fired first," he said to Captain of Police W. J. Wall. At first the prisoner denied any knowledge of the shooting, but when the officers found in his pockets a box of cartridges, with two shells missing, he made a complete confession, claiming that he had hired Iacano to take him to Calabasas for $7.50 and that the driver had demanded $12.

"We got into an argument and he pulled a gun on me," Baker asserted. "I drew and fired twice. Realizing that I was up against it, I pushed the man from the car and beat it. If he dies I could not be remorseful, for it was a case of saving my own life."

The officer found two revolvers in the auto, one of which the youth claims and the other, he says, belongs to the auto driver.

SOLDIER AND CHAUFFEUR.

The accused claims to be both a farmer and a chauffeur. He says he enlisted in the Coast Artillery at Topeka, Kan., March 23, 1915, was transferred to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and from there was sent to Portland, Me. He was discharged from the army, he says, in New York, July 16, 1917.

He says he has lived with his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Cliett, on a homestead near Calabasas, where they have been for the past nine years. He formerly worked for the Lacy Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles as a riveter.

After he had thrown the wounded driver from the car he set out for the north and at Ventura got ten gallons of gasoline. The Santa Barbara officers state that had he not abandoned his car here he would have had a chance of getting away, as he had nineteen gallons of gasoline on hand.

He declares that after he made his way to the railroad station he bought a ticket back to Los Angeles, determined to return and surrender.

It is the opinion of the Santa Barbara officers that he planned to steal the machine and his claim of having fired in self-defense is not given credence. He will be brought to this city today.

Iacano's condition, at first reported hopeless, has improved, it was announced at the County Hospital yesterday. The abdominal wound is superficial and the one in the chest may not be as serious as feared.

MEXICAN NEAR DEATH AS RESULT OF FIGHT.

KNIVE SAND STILETTOS FIGURE IN CLASH WHEN HUSBAND LOCATES ABSENT WIFE.

Claiming that his wife left him for another man, Juan Saralegue, a Mexican laborer, living at the St. Elmo Hotel, attempted to vindicate his honor early yesterday morning by slashing and seriously wounding his wife and the man with her, when he found them occupying the same house at 255 Utah street. Saralegue was in turn severely wounded when the other man defended himself with a long stiletto.

According to the investigation of Detectives Box and Barnes of the Flying Squadron, Adale Saralegue left her husband a few weeks ago. Her disappearance was reported to the police, it being thought, however, that she had gone to Mexico to her people. Saturday afternoon the husband received an anonymous letter which stated that his wife would be found living at the Utah street home. Shortly before midnight Saralegue went to the address and is said to have found his wife with Jose Sahado. Breaking in the door the husband, drew a knife and first attacked the woman, slashing her across the throat, inflicting a 6-inch wound. When Sahado attempted to come to her rescue, the men engaged in a terrific duel which resulted in Sahado receiving four deep cuts across the face, and arm and one which nearly severed his left hand. The husband was slashed across the back part of the neck.

Hearing cries coming from the house, Patrolman Bomar ran to the house and observed the husband attempting to escape. Empying his gun at the fleeing Mexican the officer succeeded in halting him. Call officers Bouey and Behm of the Boyle Heights police rushed the three injured parties to the Receiving Hospital where Dr. Zorb took seventy-five stitches in their wounds.

All three were later taken to the County Hospital where the woman and her consort are reported as in a critical condition.

CHURCH FUND GROWS.

Methodists Raise Big Sum Toward Proposed New Edifice.

Trinity Methodist Church, South, yesterday raised $30,000 by subscription, making the total amount thus far raised $90,000. This, it is understood, is to be used in connection with the enlarged church.

Both services yesterday were conducted by Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker. "A Million-Dollar Sermon" was the title of the morning discourse and "Outside the Walls of Old Rome" the subject in the evening.

PIONEERS ATTEND FUNERAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Aug. 31.—Jacob Nidaffer, who came to Ventura in the 70's, and whose family located in Santa Barbara in the 50's, died here yesterday at the age of 76. Nidaffer was very well known, particularly by the older residents, and for many years was in the sheep-raising business. He is survived by his widow and one son, R. H. Nidaffer of Saticoy.

All pioneers of the county were invited to attend the funeral, which was held Friday afternoon, from the Congregational Church.

SAYS GOOD ROADS NEEDED.

If every State in the country had such roads as Southern California, a railway strike, even of national scope, could be broken through the use of motor trucks, in the opinion of Judge J. M. Lowe of Kansas City, president of the National Old Trails Road Association, who is visiting Los Angeles. Judge Lowe is one of the big men who see the future of motor transportation and is devoting his efforts to perfecting a national road system.

"While this strike has scarcely been felt in Los Angeles," he said yesterday, "it would have paralyzed such cities as Kansas City, St. Louis, Topeka and other eastern points not served by a system of dependable roads. Herein lies the advantage of good wagon roads over every other method of transportation. Every other facility may fail but the hard surfaced wagon road remains free for everybody's use every day in the year. This is the only city in the country that would not be seriously crippled by a strike, I believe."

In showing the importance of a national highway, Judge Lowe said, "Supposing the National Old Trails Road which is now hard-surfaced from Washington, D. C., to the western boundary of Indiana, was completed. We would be little affected by a railroad strike. This road is contracted across Illinois, financed with the exception of one county across Missouri and Kansas and across Colorado with the exception of three or four small stretches. We hope for an early completion."
